Two new apartment houses, to be erected at a cost of $30,000 each, are planned for construction within two weeks in Lima.

W. P. Cahill and A. H. Benedict will build a terrace containing six apartments on the northeast corner of Washington and High-sts. It was announced Saturday. The present building on the corner will be razed as soon as it is vacated and construction of the terrace will begin immediately.

It will be ready for occupancy by November 1, it is said.

Each apartment will be composed of either five or six rooms, with a sun parlor and breakfast room in addition.

August Fritz announced Saturday that work would begin within two weeks on an 8-apartment house at the corner of Grand-av and Elizabeth-st. The house will be completed within 40 days, it was said.

Each apartment will provide five rooms and a bath.

The L. & L. Co., operating a chain of men's and women's ready-to-wear retail stores, will move into the store room now being vacated by the Lima Tea Co. at 218 N. Main-st about June 1. The interior will be remodelled to the extent of $10,000 to $12,000, it was said.

Preparations for building material costs, which were rapidly rising, are being hastened.

Disrupting the home building programs of Lima and other cities, have been halted and an easier market will be seen, Lima realtors asserted Saturday.

THREATS EFFECTIVE

Threats from larger builders throughout the country to stop operations unless prices were kept within reasonable bounds have had their effect, it is said, and no further advantages are looked for at the present time.

A survey of conditions in Lima made by builder members of the Lima Realtors' association the past week revealed that Lima has suffered much less than other cities.

E. T. Layport, executive secretary of that body, said Saturday.

Practically all material necessary for the erection and equipping of homes now being constructed or planned was purchased last winter or early this spring, the survey showed, and as a result practically no impairment of operations is looked for.

Labor conditions have been causing practically the only difficulty here, Layport said, it being almost impossible to get the number of men necessary to carry out the work planned. Conditions are easier now and houses are being completed very rapidly, he added.

Costs of all materials have reached their peak, material men of the city state, and from now on the market will be considerably easier, it is believed. This is expected to keep new building going at a steady pace the remainder of the year.

MARKET QUICKENS

Coming warmer weather has resulted in a quickening of the real estate market and in the number of deals closed during the past week a new record for the year was established, Layport said. Transactions, as shown by real estate transfers filed by reports to the Multiple Listing bureau indicate that property valued at nearly $200,000 changed hands during the past week.

The greatest portion of the deals are for residence properties, it is said, and indicate that the home owning drive has started. Prices are steady and no appearance of inflation has been sighted.

Properties listed with the Multiple Listing bureau now number 344 and have a total value of about $1,500,000, Layport announced. Of these properties listed approximately $250,000 worth has been sold, he said.

Among the deals announced by him is a series of transactions totaling about $13,000, announced T. W. Blackburn, who includes a room house on Leland-av sold by Mr. Snyder to T. M. Edwards; an opera on S. N. West, sold by J. H. Rotzoff to George Schiff; a lot on W. High-st sold by Frances Connell to E. T. Layport and two lots and a six room house in Home-av addition sold by Mrs. John to L. P. Pates.

Women Stage
Street Fight
At Delphos

High School Teacher and Lima Girl in Hair Pulling Battle
As Hundreds Gather

Saturday night shoppers on the streets of Delphos witnessed a physical argument between two young women that almost ended in a private riot before Police Chief H. A. Kehres arrived to pacify the contestants.

According to police report of the demonstration, the young women had agreed on one thing, namely, to go riding with Richard Shaffer, proprietor of a gasoline station at the corner of Canal and Fifth-sts. But neither cared for the presence of the other.

Miss Lucille Stevenson, English teacher in the Delphos high school, and Miss Lovey Jacobs, Lima, first differed as to which should accompany Shaffer while the women were in the Palace confectionery, police declared.

One word led to another and eventually to hair pulling, witnesses report. Each anticipated the other's intention of going to the waiting car by claspings each other in embrace, a not too friendly embrace, police say. Thus they swayed out of the confectionery, across the sidewalk to the waiting car, where each made a dash for the front seat.

The first to reach the seat was removed impulsively by the hair and the remover took the place of the removee. The operation was repeated, Shaffer, meanwhile, putting about more or less ineffectively as referee, witnesses say.

At this juncture, or one of the junctures, Chief Kehres arrived and offered to arrest either or both of them if one or the other would swear out a warrant. Neither would do so and both women went by collectively accompanying Shaffer and the car thru Second-st.

Small boys of the town, who suspected that three would be a crowd, had attached to the car numerous tin cans which jangled noisily as the armistice car sped thru the lanes of hundreds of interested citizens.

Boost Penalty
For Tail Light
Lack On Autos

To Discourage Carelessness,
Judge Jackson Will Increase
Fine from $1 to $2

Persons found guilty in criminal court beginning Monday, for not having tail lights burning on their automobiles whether parked or in operation, will be fined $2 instead of the $1 which has been customary in the past.

This was the announcement of Judge Jackson Saturday, after 12 persons had paid fines for the violation of this section of the traffic law. There have been many different kinds of excuses given for not having the lights burning. Judge Jackson declares the practice must be stopped and the only way he can find to do it is to increase the amount of the fine.

Cars parked in the boulevard lighting system district do not need tail lights, but this does not mean cluster or arc lights, he said. Any car in operation must have the lights burning, or the owner will be fined, he warns.

Girl Sued For Return Of Rings

CANTON.—(United Press).—Suit for the return of two diamond rings was filed in common pleas court here Saturday by Bernard Loichot, son of Mayor Paul F. Loichot, of Louisville, Ky., against Miss Eileen Reigler, model in a Canton department store.

The rings, he said, were worth $650. He charges the girl refused to return them on his demand. Immediately after suit was filed Miss Reigler announced she intended to fight to retain the rings.

"He gave me the $200 ring as binding our engagement," she said. "At the time I didn't know he was so young. The other ring was a Christmas present. I was compelled to break the engagement because of Bernard's jealous disposition."

WAR ON BUCKET SHOPS
NEW YORK.—New York Saturday became the headquarters of a nation-wide campaign to ban the bucketeers.

With E. M. Fuller and Edward F. McGee, accused of bucketing, in jail for contempt of court, District Attorney Barton declared he has arranged for prosecutors all over the country to get after the bucket-shops.

JAR OF GOLD GOES

POT OF JEWELRY INCLUDED

Gallon Of Fancy Thimbles Also Among The Articles

GALLON, Ohio.—(United Press).—Thousands swarmed to this little town Saturday to take advantage of the auction sale of goods accumulated in the last 50 years by the "world's greatest bargain hunter."

The treasures of Mrs. Emma Lee, the shopping champion, who died several weeks ago at her Gallon home, went under the hammer.

Echoes of a romance broken many years ago when Mrs. Lee was divorced from H. D. Lee, Kansas City millionaire, were heard at the sale.

A half century the divorcee, made wealthy by a large alimony award, roamed the continent buying everything that took her fancy, whether she needed it or not. Her only explanation was that she "liked to shop."

The value of the goods, which went on sale here Saturday, it is estimated, will run into several thousand dollars. It includes:

LIST OF VALUABLES

A gallon jar filled with $20 gold pieces.

A quart jar of jewelry, set with diamonds and other precious stones.

Two tons of candy, some of it so old it bears the inscription: "Vote for Grant."

Forty ovens for gas stoves and 25 vacuum cleaners.

Several unpacked baby carriages and a $1,000 piano that had not been unpacked since it was bought 40 years ago.

One gallon of fancy thimbles.

A government bond, issued at the time of the Civil War and from which coupons have never been clipped. It is said to be worth $10,000.

The auctioneer said it will require all of next week to dispose of the property.

The extent of Mrs. Lee's purchases were never known, until her home was entered after her death.

Road Program No Longer Held Up

COLUMBUS.—(United Press).—More than a score of road projects which had been held up by Governor Donahy will go thru as originally planned, Highway Director Leon C. Herrick announced Saturday.

The whole original program, as planned by Herrick will go forward now, according to the announcement. Work has been delayed in some parts of the 750 miles of construction.

Donahy has agreed that his hands are tied entirely as far as he has any authority now over state highway work.

It was so agreed after a study of the supreme court's ruling in the mandamus suit brought by Oather Junk, Chillicothe road contractor, to compel approval of a highway contract and suits by the Highway Construction Company, Elyria, to compel Finance Director Baker to approve vouchers for estimated payments.

An expenditure of more than $200,000 is involved in the program.

CITY PLANS
BIG PUMPER

Fire Apparatus to Have
Gallons

WILL SCRAP ENGINE

Installation Will Lower Insurance Rates, Promised

Plans of City Manager C. A. Bingham and Fire Chief John C. Mack to obtain a new 750-gallon pumper apparatus for the fire department will be presented to the city commission Monday evening.

Insurance underwriters have promised a rate reduction if the high capacity pumper is installed, officials said Saturday. The present apparatus of the fire department has a maximum capacity of 350 gallons per minute.

The plan grew out of attempts to repair the old fire engine which blew out at the L. E. & W. fire and the fire at the Leader store some years ago. The engine has been more or less of a white elephant since that time.

It was sent out a month ago for repairs when a local company estimated that new flues and other repairs could put it in good shape for $775. Last week the repair company informed city officials the total cost of putting the engine in workable condition would be $3,000.

TO RAISE MONEY

Fire Chief Mack proposed that the attempt to revive the old engine be given up. The tractor, Mack said, could be sold for about $1,500. The hose cart could be sent to No. 5 station and the pump disposed of to some small city for about $4,000, Mack believes.

This revenue, plus the $3,000 saved on repairs to the old engine, amounts to $8,500. A new 750-gallon pumper may be purchased for $10,500. Bingham will propose Monday night that this disposition be made of the old equipment and that a bond for $2,000 be issued to make the required $10,500.

The new pumper, according to Chief Mack's plan, would be installed at Central station and would run to every fire.

City commissioners are reported as favoring the plan.

OUSTING OF TAFT

Chief Justice's Impeachment
Requested By Socialists

NEW YORK.—(United Press).—Demand for the impeachment of Chief Justice Taft of the United States supreme court for accepting an annuity of $10,000 from the Carnegie foundation was made by the Eleventh Convention of the Socialist party now in session here.

A resolution asking congress to impeach Taft if he does not resign, will be adopted Monday or Tuesday, leaders said. Adoption of the resolution will support a similar resolution recently passed by the national executive committee of the party.

While only routine business was on the program Saturday, delegates prepared for action next week on many important subjects. Among them is the question of whether the party is to continue its affiliation or sever connection with the conference for progressive political action.

One section of the party favors breaking away from this body and remaining aloof from all other political organizations. The party also will decide whether to accept the invitation of the Farmer-Labor Party to participate in the latter's convention on July 13.

Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, is scheduled to address the convention here Tuesday night.

Indianapolis Financier Resigns

CLIMAX TO MANY TROUBLES

Series Of Misfortunes Revealed
In Reverses

INDIANAPOLIS.—(United Press).—Stoughton A. Fletcher, nationally known banker and formerly owner of a racing stable, which included the famous Peter the Great, Saturday resigned as president of the Fletcher American National Bank, one of the most influential financial institutions in Indiana, due to "financial reverses."

In testifying Fletcher gave the bank a clean bill of health and said that his financial adventures were personal, due to cancelling of war-time contracts of the Mid West Engine Company of which he was interested and that the bank was in no way involved. The directors immediately met and the vice-president, Elmer W. Stout was named to succeed Fletcher. Fletcher is the last of a long time of Indianapolis bankers who have almost controlled banking affairs of Indiana for 80 years.

SERIES OF MISFORTUNES

The crash of Fletcher's supposedly impregnable financial system is the latest of a series of misfortunes which have visited his family in recent years. His wife committed suicide two years ago by drinking poison. Her mother discovering the dead body of the banker's wife, seized the bottle of poison and drained the drugs. She fell dead at her daughter's side. Louisa Fletcher, his daughter, was arrested a few days ago on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Before the Fletcher's fortune melted away, Louisa, becoming tired of the life of the "poor little rich girl" ran away from a summer place in Maine, and was located only after a nation-wide search.

Officers Held On Murder Charge

TOLEDO.—(United Press).—Three constables late Saturday night were ordered held on charges of first degree murder in connection with the death of Theodore Mayer slain Saturday afternoon during a dry raid on his bakery.

The warrants were issued for Constables Charles B. Moore, Geo. Buttz and Charles Kalas, at the order of Coroner Charles Henzler who charged the constables were inexperienced and did not have proper authority to make the raid.

The constables said Mayer attempted to interfere with the raid and that the shooting was in self defense.

Moore admitted he fired the shots which resulted in Mayer's death. He died in an ambulance enroute to a hospital.

INJUNCTION

Seek to Block Sale of W.
High-st Property,

PROGRAM IS FIXED

Fight on Present Form of Government May Result,
Counsel Says

Renewed efforts to block the sale of the old city hall on W. High-st are to be made immediately. Clarence C. Miller, attorney for opponents of the proposition, announced last night. He said one of two courses would be followed:

1. Application for a permanent injunction in common pleas court.
2. Circulation of petitions seeking a recall of the commission-manager form of government.

Miller favors an injunction proceeding, he said, rather than the circulation of referendum petitions, but should his clients fail in obtaining a permanent court order restraining the sale the other course will be followed, he said.

BIDS DUE MAY 29

Bids for the building will be opened at noon May 29. The proposed sale has been advertised for the last few weeks.

Miller declared the recall proceedings would be instituted, if necessary, to carry out the program of his clients, despite the clause in the city charter which guarantees the present form of government for a period of five years.

This clause, the attorney holds, is not constitutional and is to be tested out at Akron in the August primary. He quoted legal opinion from that city on the point to the effect that the clause would not hold.

If his clients, who have waged a hot fight on the proposed sale, seek a vote on the matter, it will be in the November election, Miller said.

HIGGINS IS ACTIVE

J. R. Higgins, known as the "maple sirup king," is one of the leading spirits among the opponents. He has been particularly active in the movement and recently solicited signers to petitions on the streets. City officials attribute his activities to the fact that his sirup business was interfered with thru city orders.

Miller declared he was confident activities under way would result in a revision of the proposed selling plan, at least. He is on record as declaring that it is not the sale but the manner in which it is to be conducted that his clients oppose. He holds the present plan places too much power in the hands of the city manager.

No definite date for the application for an injunction has been set by Miller, he said.

Clues To Accused Slayer Of Cleveland Policeman Fail.

CLEVELAND.—(United Press).—Police started Saturday their second week of searching for the slayer of alleged Danis Griffin, Cleveland patrolman.

Altho reported seen in various parts of the country—and always with his blue roadster and Marie Brive, his girl companion—John L. Whitfield had successfully covered his tracks.

State troopers and police of half a dozen cities east of Syracuse, N. Y., were the latest to admit failure in their trail of a man they believed to be Whitfield.

A report from Toledo was to the effect that Harry Laffamboy of Detroit, had seen the automobile in West Virginia. Toledo police notified authorities of Charleston, W. Va., to investigate this information. Laffamboy is the fourth person reported to have seen Whitfield's automobile in West Virginia. The total reward posted for Whitfield's capture "dead or alive" is now $2,350.

TRUBEY WILL NOT STOP PRACTICE

Will Continue As Attorney Until Appeal Is Disposed Of

SIMILAR CASES ARE CITED

Counsel Plans Further Fight For Convicted Official

R. R. Trubey, assistant prosecuting attorney, who was suspended from practicing in Ohio courts for a period of 19 months, will not discontinue legal work, pending disposition of his case on appeal.

Announcement was made to that effect Saturday by T. R. Hamilton, chief counsel for Trubey during the disbarment proceedings.

Hamilton declared in his opinion the statute governing cases of this character permit the attorney to continue practice under bond while his case is on appeal.

Notice of appeal was filed following the trial Friday and bond was fixed in the sum of $300. The bond will be filed in court Monday. Two alternatives are open to Trubey, it was learned.

He may carry his case up on error, or he may appeal. An appeal is said to be preferable to error proceedings.

If appeal procedure is followed, Hamilton said, the matter will be heard de novo, or from the beginning. It will be in effect a new trial.

Witnesses will be sworn and evidence taken, just as if the case had never been heard before.

TO CONTINUE PRACTICE

Trubey will continue his practice until his case is settled. He may permit his resignation as prosecuting attorney to stand, he declared. During the interval between filing the appeal bond and disposal of the case, he will endeavor to bring to trial or dispose of all legal matters in which he is now retained.

The appeal will be set down for an early hearing, it is believed, as is customary in cases of this character.

Eugene T. Lippincott, prosecuting attorney, was relieved of the necessity of accepting Trubey's resignation by the decision to appeal. The turn of events will also end speculation regarding at least a time, speculation regarding the identity of Lippincott's choice for assistant.

Plan of campaign outlined by Trubey's counsel, attorneys say, parallels the case of Judge John M. Killitt, of Toledo, who was once debarred, but secured a reversal in the higher courts.

The suspension placed upon Trubey by the special tribunal Friday, barring him in Ohio courts, will not hinder his practice in Federal courts, in the opinion of Clarence C. Miller, attorney, in discussing the case Saturday.

Miller declared that point had been settled in the Price Thatcher case, where an attorney debarred in state courts, continued to appear in United States courts.

ISOLATED PETROGRAD FINDS DULL BUSINESS

PETROGRAD — Petrograd still appears as an isolated city and, in comparison with Moscow, business life is as dull as in a majority of Soviet provincial towns.

The population of Petrograd fell to about 700,000 during the years of civil war, epidemics and evacuations, and it has risen but slightly since the coming of the new economic policy. Housing conditions, therefore, are very favorable in comparison with the congestion of Moscow, where two or more persons live in nearly every room. Here families of two and three persons may enjoy five, six or even ten or twelve room apartments, while scores of buildings are empty and nearing ruin for want of heating. Spacious warehouses are without goods.

Living is fifty percent cheaper than in Moscow. There is plenty of food and very little business. Only the Nevsky Prospekt, Petrograd's chief avenue, and a few other of the principal streets show signs of life.

FARMERS TO WAGE FIGHT ON TUBERCULAR CATTLE

Sentiment For Eradication Is Growing, Ridge Says

CLEAN COUNTY SET AS GOAL

Herd Owners To Form Mutual Insurance Pool

Farmers of Allen-co will combine in a fight against tubercular cattle as soon as organization plans can be effected, H. J. Ridge, county agent, stated Saturday.

Sentiment among farmers of the county has been rapidly crystallizing for a determined effort to rid the county of bovine tuberculars, Ridge stated, and many have visited the office of the Farm bureau to urge that definite action be taken toward that end.

Farmers in the county are heartily in favor of combating the disease among their herds on what is known as the mutual insurance basis. Successful operation of this plan entails practically no loss to herd owners in eliminating tubercular reactors.

Herd owners of the county will deposit in the central pool a certain sum to be paid as insurance to those who lose cattle thru confiscation of reactors. Added to this sum supplied by the owners will be the state and federal indemnity funds and the salvage value, insuring the owner against serious loss.

The mutual insurance system is in operation in several northern counties of the state, Ridge said, and farmers are finding it the best possible manner of cleaning out the herds with least financial loss to owners.

FARMERS READY

"I am highly pleased with the disposition of Allen-co farmers to rid the county of bovine tuberculars," Ridge stated. "I believe they are waiting only for proper organization to start a drive that will rid the county of every tubercular cow."

Ohio is more backward than other states in the matter of bovine tubercular eradication, Ridge declared. Wisconsin, the cleanest state in the union, has been working at the effort to eradicate for ten years. As a result, experts say, cattle values in that state have increased fully 25 percent.

That farmers of the county are fully justified in their fears for the health of their families is proved by the fact that in 1919, in Chicago alone, 583 children under five years of age died of tuberculosis contracted thru bovine sources.

The drive for the eradication of tuberculosis from Allen-co herds will start as soon as plans are fully materialized, Ridge said. With the cooperation of farmers, state and federal government, he hopes that Allen-co will be well on the way to tuberculosis-free herds by the first of September.

With a start toward eradication made in this county it is the ambition of the local Farm bureau office to see a determined fight extend to other counties until eventually it results in state wide eradication of all tubercular reactors.

U. S. ARMY OBSERVER TO BE MET BY LEGION COMMITTEE

Colonel Edward Davis, U. S. Army observer with the British forces in Palestine, will be received upon his arrival in Lima Wednesday by a committee representing William Paul Gallagher post, American Legion.

An illustrated lecture describing army operations in the Near East will be delivered by Col. Davis at the Orpheum theater. The views will show points of historic and biblical interest, as well as groups of British "Tomnies," Turks, wild Arabs, and moving pictures taken by German cameramen behind the Ottoman lines.

Soldier singers will entertain during the evening. Admission will be free. Bob Shaw, Legion publicity director, announced.

SHOWERS ARE IN FORECAST

Bernie Halloran, tempted fate in the form of an adverse forecast by the weatherman when he contracted for the appearance of a Cleveland team at Murphy-st baseball park Sunday afternoon, to meet the Independents.

However, managing a baseball team is like commanding an army—one is required to take a chance quite often.

Showers and probably thunder showers Sunday is the forecast. Monday generally fair and cooler.

Showers are not so bad, but prediction of cooler Monday isn't so good. Unseasonable weather conditions have been so pronounced during the spring, people generally are prepared for most anything, even now.

A snowstorm wouldn't surprise anyone a whole lot.

Just because the weatherman insists on musing up the scene with rain this day and possibly stopping a ball game, doesn't mean that anyone is going to lose heart altogether. Every cloud has a silver lining, somebody has said.

Besides, warm rains make the rainbow come down in Ohio, and there's a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. But don't start out to seek the gold. It's there alright, but not in the form some folks probably imagine.

MOSLEMS BREAK AWAY FROM THE CALIPH

BELGRADE — Albanian Mohammedans have taken the first step in what is regarded here in the eventual breaking away of many Moslems from the established church, leaving the Caliph at Constantinople, once recognized both as the Sultan of Turkey and the head of the hundreds of millions of Mohammedans, merely the spiritual leader of the Turkish branch of the church.

When the Kemalists forced the abdication of the former Sultan at Constantinople, and put in his place as Caliph of the church, his heirs, they did not permit him to retain his power as Sultan of Turkey. Now he is merely head of the church.

A great religious gathering at Tirana, the capital of Albania, now has denied to break away entirely from the Constantinople Caliphate, which means that if other Moslem countries followed their example, the Caliph would be stripped of spiritual as well as temporal power.

Ahmed Bey, the Albanian premier, asked the gathering at Tirana to declare that since Mohammed, no true Caliph has existed, thus preventing Albanian Mohammedans from establishing an independent religion.

COUNTY TO BUILD CITY BRIDGES

Ottawa River Will Be Spanned At High And Bellefontaine

OLD STRUCTURES UNSAFE

Cost Estimated At $164,000; To Sell Bonds

Plans for the construction of two reinforced concrete bridges across the Ottawa river at Bellefontaine and E. High-st have been authorized by the county commissioners. It was announced Saturday.

Cost of the two structures, which are to be built entirely from county funds, will aggregate $164,075. Negotiations for selling bonds to finance construction are in progress between county and the state industrial commission. The sinking fund trustees were unable to handle that amount of securities, commissioners proceedings show.

The old bridges at High-st and Bellefontaine-av were condemned as unsafe in a report to the county commissioners of Walter R. Toy, county surveyor. He asked that a competent engineer be employed to draw plans for two new bridges to be erected at the two points.

PLANS BY ASH

Charles Ash, former assistant city engineer, was designated by the commission for the undertaking. He recently completed the plans and submitted them for approval.

Cost of the Bellefontaine-av bridge will total $80,477. The High-st bridge is to cost $83,598.

Bids for the two bridges are to be advertised in the near future, and the county commissioners hope to let contracts early enough to permit completion of the bridges this year. The contracts will be let separately.

Ash will probably be retained by the county to supervise construction. He was in charge of construction of the Elm-st bridge in 1921.

Both E. High-st and Bellefontaine-av are recognized county roads and eligible to benefits of county money. For this reason the county can undertake the improvement.

The county and state may also undertake construction of a big bridge on the Harding highway, west of Elida, this season.

WOMEN REFUSE TO VOTE FOR SEX

Anti-Feminists at Atlanta Wage Hot Campaign

ATLANTA — (Special) — Do women always vote for women? An emphatic negative answer is being made by fair sex voters in this city.

And as a result of their determined effort to prevent a ticket composed entirely of women from gaining office—politically speaking, Atlanta is a turmoil of excitement.

When the Women's Political league recently announced a complete ticket, from mayor on down, for the pending primaries, their sisters of the ballot drew back in amazement. Mass meetings were held and voters urged to register a petticoat protest.

"Antis contended: That it was all right for women occasionally to hold political office.

That an effort to gain complete control of a city government was going too far.

WANT "GOOD MEN"

That good men should be chosen. That the burden of political responsibility belongs on masculine shoulders.

That women have other and more useful spheres. Undaunted by the sorrie, members of the league still insist that Mrs. J. E. Gibbs will run for mayor and be backed with a complete ticket.

Mrs. Florence Moore and Miss Frances Russell, leaders of the "anti-feminist" group, voice the opinion of hundreds, it reported, when they say the "league is going too far."

The chief point of debate between the two factions is the final contention of the "antis" to the effect that women have other and more useful spheres than politics.

Woman's place primarily is in the city hall, the cry goes up. But league members feel that to really accomplish good in a municipal way, it is necessary to completely control the city government.

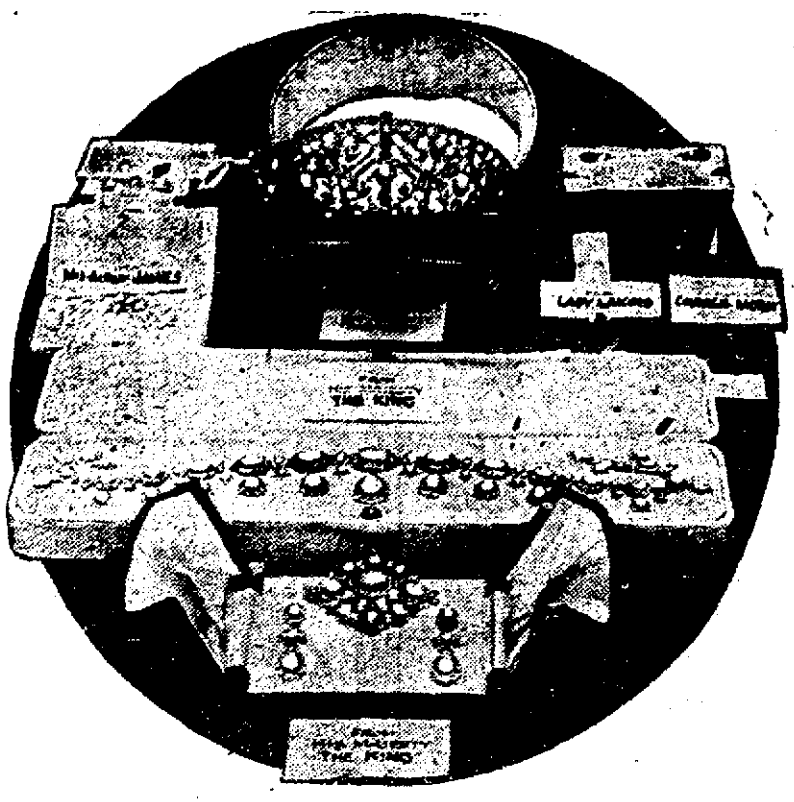

LIBRARY CIRCULATES PHONOGRAPH RECORDS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — The lending of phonograph records, as well as books and periodicals, has proved so popular in the city library here that the plan may be followed by libraries in other parts of the country.

The authorities' object in lending records was to give those unable to purchase the more expensive reproductions an opportunity to enjoy the best in music. One hundred records formed the nucleus of the "canned music" library, and these were early sought.

Only persons more than 18 years old have the privilege of borrowing records.

County Agent Ridge Discusses New Exhibits

Inducement to Allen-co farm boys and girls to enter the various clubs a valuable is contained in an announcement to H. J. Ridge, county agent, to the effect that prizes to the value of $11,550 will be offered for club work at the annual State fair next fall.

A change of policy calculated to bring more boys and girls into competition is the ruling permitting the entrance of more than one demonstration team from a county. Instead of but one team of three members from each county, three or more such teams may enter.

Club work thru the county is being taken up by many Allen-co farm youths, Ridge, who spent the week checking up work over the county, stated. No definite information as to the total enrollment is available as yet, he said.

Clothing and pig clubs are still open to entrants, he said. The deadline is June 1, by which time members must be ready for work, he said.

Ohio Wheatfield day will be held at the state experimental station, Wooster, June 22. A trip to the station will be well worth the money to the farmer who can spare the time, Ridge declared.

Included in the exhibitions are plots of wheat illustrating yields when different fertilizers and combinations are used. Plots in which the wheat is placed at different points in the rotation system are located beside plots in which there has been no rotation, all with the view to illustrating the best farming methods.

Cattle day will be held at the station the day before and egg production from different feed rations will be tabulated.

The farm bureau office received Saturday three blue prints from the engineering department of the state university which will be available to farmers who desire to use them. The prints, which may be ordered by number, include plans for a hog holding crate, a hog self feeder and a hog fattening coop.

C. F. Mertz, manager of the Allen-co Live Stock association, returned Saturday from a business trip to Cleveland and Erie, Pa.

The new producer's commission house at Cleveland is getting under way with good patronage, Mertz said. Two cars were received the opening day and six cars were handled Friday.

Shipping from Allen-co has maintained the average level, he said. Five carloads of hogs have gone thru cooperative channels this week, two from Spencerville, and one each from Kent, Cairo and Lafayette.

The Cleveland commission house is the second producers' firm to be established in the east. A third firm will be established at Cincinnati soon.

DIVORCE DECREES FOR 5 COUPLES

Four Wives, One Husband, Granted Freedom By Court

CRUELTY, NEGLECT CHARGED

Disparity in Age Trouble Cause In One Case

Cruelty and neglect formed the basis of five divorce decrees awarded to discordant wives and husbands in common pleas court Saturday. Four wives and one husband were successful in obtaining respite from marital grief.

Disparity in ages between George R. Lesh, garage man, and Maude M. Lesh, his girl wife, caused her love to cool, testimony given by neighbors showed. Lesh is 49, he said, and his wife 24.

While Lesh was looking after his brother-in-law's farm near Rockford last fall he alleged Mrs. Lesh sold furniture in their N. Central-av home and sought work in cigar factory.

"I can't love you any longer," she is alleged to have told Lesh, when he sought an explanation. Custody of a child of two years was given to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith, grandparents, 237 Harrison-av.

The couple was married in Emporia, Kansas, about four years ago, according to testimony.

$500 ALIMONY

Alimony amounting to $500 was awarded Mrs. Frances Napper, Toledo, along with a decree freeing her from George C. Napper, Toledo.

Custody of Helen Napper, aged eight, and $4 a week for her support, ordered. The wife told the court the defendant had neglected her for the past three years and was strongly addicted to the liquor habit.

Frank A. Toltord, Toledo, lavished time and money on other women, according to testimony given in court by Mrs. Bertha Toltord, who charges he led a dual life and neglected to provide for her.

She was awarded the household goods in her possession. They were married in Lima in 1919. Toltord is employed at the Toledo State hospital.

Mark A. Slusser, engineer, 945 1-2 W. High-st, was a fashion plate, spending his earnings in the purchase of an extensive wardrobe. Mrs. Bertha Slusser testified in her divorce action, heard by Judge Becker.

She was granted a decree, with custody of their daughter, Maxine, aged three, with $4 a week for the child's support. The defendant will enjoy the right of visitation at reasonable hours and intervals. He will also be required to pay the costs of the action.

NON-SUPPORT CHARGED

Mrs. Slusser told the court she was married to the defendant in 1920. He failed to support her, she charged, because nearly all his entire income went toward purchase of clothing for himself.

A second attempt made by Mrs. Minnie L. Dearth to find marital happiness with William Dearth, of Detroit, ended in failure, she told Judge Fred C. Becker. Dearth abandoned her at Sidney three years ago.

The couple was first married in Alger in 1916, but soon parted because of the husband's neglect, the plaintiff said. She was awarded custody of Frederick Dearth, aged six.

Later a reconciliation occurred and they were re-married in 1921. The second match was short lived. Dearth failed to keep his promise to provide her with a home, the wife declared.

NEWS OF PUTNAM-CO

RECKER STARS AS OTTAWA WINS

Third Annual Putnam-co Athletic Meet At County Seat

CONTINENTAL IS SECOND

Records In 9 of 16 Events Are Smashed By Young Athletes

Harry Recker, captain of the Ottawa high school track and field team, led it to victory Saturday afternoon in the third annual meet at the fair grounds in Ottawa, and won the lion's share of the individual honors.

Ottawa won 56 points. Continental was second with 36 1-2; Pandora third, 26 1-2; Vaughnsville, fourth, 18 and Columbus Grove, fifth, 14 points.

Recker took three firsts, a second and a third for a total of 19 points. Barton Sutter, of Pandora, was second individual score with 16 points. Owen Lowe, of Continental, was third with nine and a half points. At the conclusion of the meet they were presented with medals by Principal C. D. LaRue, of Pandora.

The winner of first place in each event was to be presented with a bronze medal, but due to an unavoidable delay they failed to arrive. Presentation of them will be made later.

County high school records were smashed by the youthful athletes. In nine of the 16 events marks were lowered. Perhaps the most outstanding records were made in the boys' 50 and 440-yd dashes. In the former Recker lowered the record five and one-half seconds. Wilkins of Ottawa, lowered the 440-yd mark from 50 and three-fifths seconds to 47 and one-fifth.

PLATE VAULT RECORD
Lowe, Continental, established a new record of nine feet in the pole vault. Ward, Ottawa, set a new mark of two minutes 20 and three-fifths seconds in the 880-yd race. Lowe fattened the running broad jump by over two feet. He jumped 20 feet 11 and one-half inches against a mark of 18 feet two and one-half inches last year by Hilty, Pandora.

Participants in the boys' century dash were unable to set a new record because a fan incident in the third heat. After running the first two in ten and two-fifths seconds the runners were held up in the final by a dog running onto the track. The trial had to be taken over and a mark of only 11 and one-half seconds was made. Sutter, Pandora, had the final heat won when the dog made its appearance. Objection was raised because one of the participants had to leap over the canine to avoid being tripped, thus delaying him. Had not this occurred, Recker and Sutter would have been in a neck-and-neck race for individual honors. Sutter may have taken first with a total of 18 points and Recker second with 17.

The county cup, won in 1921 and 1922 by Pandora, was presented to Ottawa high school. It will be placed on display at Ottawa high school this week amid appropriate ceremonies.

C. L. Waller, Lima, officiated as referee. E. A. Haugenstein, Lima, was the starter. The county athletic board in charge of the meet is composed of Edwin Sommers, Ottawa; W. A. Amstutz, Leipsic; C. V. Snyder, Vaughnsville; C. C. Romaker, Continental; Earl Smith, Columbus Grove, chairman and C. D. LaRue, Pandora.

NO TRANSCRIPTS FOR JURORS

Putnam-co Probers To Have Short Session Monday

Total absence of transcripts will make the May term of the Putnam-co grand jury, which is scheduled to convene Monday morning, the shortest in the history of the county, it is believed.

Prosecutor J. S. Ogan declared Saturday night not a single transcript is on file, but that the jury will be held in session for a short time for examination of witnesses in several cases that have come to his attention recently.

Two members of the original venire have so far been excused. They are Mrs. Blanche Borman, Union-twp, and Fred Kahle, Jackson-twp. Two others will be impeached in their stead before the jury convenes.

Other members are: Mrs. Charles Diemer, Van Buren-twp; Joseph Neit, Greensburg; B. F. Lugabill, Pleasant; Casper Fecker, Jennings; Felix Gukler, Ottawa; W. J. Varner, Ottawa; Ben Shafter, Palmer; R. POLITICS ENTERS CHURCH MEET

Presbyterians May Ask Vote On U. S. Entry Into League

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (United Press.) — A national referendum under an act of congress to determine if the United States should join the league of nations, will be asked in a resolution to be presented next week to the 135th session of the Presbyterian churches of the United States, it was learned Saturday night.

Injection of international politics served for a time to divert attention from the major issue of the assembly—the struggle between the liberals and the ultra-conservatives over evolution.

William Jennings Bryan, leader of the ultra-conservative group after proclaiming he would fight to have the "heretics of the church brought to task," went to St. Louis Saturday night to make an address.

He will be back in Indianapolis early Sunday morning to continue the campaign which he will wage against "the brute doctrine of evolution," and other "heresies."

Dr. Charles F. Wishart, moderator, from Ohio, after taking a firm stand with the liberalist group, declined to become involved in further controversy. The case of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, occupying the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church in New York, drew the fire of the ultra-conservatives by a sermon in which it was charged that he questioned the virgin birth of Christ.

LICENSING ORDINANCE WILL COME UP MONDAY

An ordinance licensing pool and billiard halls and bowling alleys will come before the city commission Monday evening for its second reading.

It probably will be passed, officials said Saturday.

None of the commission has registered objection to the ordinance and operators of the places regulated are reported to favor it. The city manager in a communication to the commission Monday said that several pool and billiard hall owners had asked the passage of the ordinance.

ARGUMENT LEADS TO SHOTS

Police searched Saturday night for two men who had an argument at Spring Central-ay which resulted in two revolver shots being fired. Officers who investigated could find no trace of the debaters.

COURT WILL HEAR FRAUD CHARGE

Mrs. Sarah Seitz Seeks $10,157.29 From John S. Best.

IS GRANDSON OF PLAINTIFF

Case to Open In Common Pleas Court at Ottawa, Tuesday.

May term of the Putnam-co common pleas court will open Tuesday with the case of Mrs. Sarah Seitz against John S. Best, her grandson and cashier of the Peoples Bank company, Columbus Grove, charging fraud in the handling of 100 acres of land, part of the estate of her late husband.

Two jurors, Arnold Mielis and Mrs. Rudolph Raabe, have been excused. It is expected there will be further changes in the petit jury before the time of sitting.

Mrs. Seitz, 88, now residing near Vaughnsville, sets forth she is the widow of the late John Seitz, owner in fee simple of about 300 acres of land in Union-twp, in all of which she had a dower estate and homestead rights. A parcel of 100 acres entering into the suit is said to be part of the estate.

DECEASED WON IN 1913
In a case tried in 1913, the plaintiff says, a decree was given in her favor establishing her rights to the real estate. Subject to her life estate, Mrs. Susannah Best, mother of the defendant, and B. L. Griffith, as grantees of Inez O. Seitz, devisee under the will of Albert Seitz, son of John Seitz, were owners in fee simple of the Seitz estate in equal proportions, the court found.

Mrs. Seitz remained at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Susannah Best, until Mr. Seitz's death in 1915. The husband of the latter, Jacob Best, died the following year, leaving the defendant, John S. Best, sole heir to the 100 acres of land, subject to Mrs. Seitz's life estate.

Without her consent, the plaintiff avers, Best took possession of the land and used it to his own purposes from 1916 to 1921.

He refused to make an accounting, Mrs. Seitz declares, alleging the rental value of the land from 1916 to 1921 was $1,200 per year, a total of $7,200.

The plaintiff recites that in 1921 she lived with the family of her grandson and that he caused her to believe that instead of being the owner of a life estate in the 100 acres, she was only owner of an undivided dower estate. Upon his representation, she says, she made a quit claim deed of her interest. In consideration he was to deed to her a life interest of equal value in another parcel of 125 acres.

Mrs. Seitz charges, but instead of doing that he pretended to convey to her one-third interest in rents and profits of the 125 acres, she says.

FRAUD CHARGED
By reason of this alleged deal Mrs. Seitz charges Best with fraud. She was excluded from the defendant's home, she sets forth, about the time she began the action against her grandson.

Mrs. Seitz asks judgment in the sum of $10,157.29, with interest. In an answer, Best sets up a counter claim of $9,338.61. He admits the life estate in the 100 acres. During his tenancy, he says, he greatly improved the land, building a silo and otherwise increasing its value. He also paid taxes, paid $1,000 in the liquidation matter concerning the First National Bank of Kallida and gave his grandmother board, which she refused to pay for, he declares.

AIRSHIP TO BE USED IN WAR ON MOTH
DAYTON, — Major H. A. Strauss, expert balloonist, is planning aerial warfare on the Gipsy moth in the New England states.

Strauss announced Saturday he will take his "O. A. I." the smallest two engine lighter-than-air craft ever built, to Concord, N. H. June 1, and that Concord will become the base of his operations.

The "O. A. I." is being equipped with a hopper from which Strauss will sprinkle insect powder on the moths which are said to be taking a heavy toll of New England vegetation.

NEGRO IS SHOT BY YOUNGSTOWN POLICEMAN
YOUNGSTOWN — Expert gunsmith probably saved the life of Edward Welsh, patrolman, 33, negro, in a pool room here Saturday night, just as the latter drew a .38 calibre revolver to protest the officer's attempt to search him.

Welsh, entered the pool room on the strength of a tip that Bell was armed, attempted to search him.

"You aren't going to search me now," Bell shouted, according to Edward Rogers, proprietor of the pool room.

Bell reached for his gun, witnesses said, but as he brought the weapon to his hip, his patrolman fired, wounding the negro in the side.

Physicians at a local hospital said Bell will die.

POSSESSION OF LIQUOR. INTOXICATION CHARGED
Two persons were arrested Saturday night charged with possession of illicit liquor and two with intoxication, by Lima police.

Men giving their names as J. F. Snyder, 54, of 148 S. Pine-st, and Clifford Ryan, 45, of Public Square, arrested by Officers Blair, Keller and Houtz, in Walnut Alley, and lodged in the city jail charged with possession.

The others arrested gave their names as Marion Wilson, 40, of Topeka, Kansas, and Thomas Holt, 50, of R. R. 4, both charged with intoxication.

PRESIDENT FEARS CUT IN FORCES

Coalition In Minnesota Threatens Slash In Administration

PLAN TO ELECT SENATOR

Democrats May Line Up With Farm-Labor Party

WASHINGTON—(United Press)—President Harding Saturday night faced the possibility of another cut in administration forces in the senate.

A coalition of Democratic and Farm-Labor forces in Minnesota may send another Farmer-Laborite to Washington.

Keenly alive to the situation which threatens his entire legislative program in the next congress, the president has determined to throw the administration's influence behind the Republican candidate to be selected at the Minnesota primaries June 18, to contest for the seat vacated by the death of Knute Nelson.

Altho the president will be unable to visit Minnesota on his western trip, he will write a letter, endorsing the Republican candidate or a personal spokesman into the state.

CONFERENCE HELD
This was determined Saturday at a White House conference between the president and Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the senate campaign committee, at which the Minnesota political situation was discussed for nearly two hours.

Democratic leaders here have already started a movement to effect a coalition with the Farmer-Laborites in Minnesota. Despairing of electing a Democrat, they see a chance of reducing the nominal senate majority to six by combining with the Farmer-Labor forces.

A meeting of the Democratic state committee of Minnesota has been called by its chairman to discuss the proposed coalition.

Governor Preus, who is almost certain to enter the Republican primaries, is understood to be the administration choice. Senator Moses, understands that Representative Anderson may enter the race. Representative Schall are mentioned as possible candidates. If Governor Preus take in the nomination, the president is understood to be confident of a Republican victory on July 16, when a special election will be held to fill the place of the senator Nelson.

Preus was re-elected governor last fall despite the triumph of Senator Shipstead over former Senator Kellogg and Mrs. Olsen.

Immediately after the Republican primaries, Moses will plunge into the Minnesota campaign, which will be a test of the Harding strength in the northwest. He intends to take in a score of Republican speakers and flood the state with literature.

ANDREWS COMPANY ONLY BIDDER ON MAIN AND NORTH-ST. PAVING JOB

Opening of bids for the repaving of Main-st. from the Market house to Kibby-st. and W. North from Main-st. to Pierce Saturday, disclosed the Andrews Asphalt Paving Co., of Hamilton as the sole bidder.

Contracts will be awarded that company Monday evening by the city commission if it is determined to repave the streets.

The Andrews bid for the Main-st. paving asked $20 a ton for asphalt and $10 a ton for binder. The bid also asks 25 cents a square yard for removing the old pavement.

The bid on W. North-st. asks $2.25 a square yard.

ASPHALT PLANT DRAWS COMPLAINTS OF CITIZENS

Notice was served by the city Saturday on the Andrews Asphalt Paving Co., which holds contracts for the paving of 13 streets, to abate an alleged nuisance neighbors complained was caused by the operation of its asphalt mixing plant.

City Manager C. A. Bingham gave representatives of the company until Wednesday to put an end to the spray of dust and smoke which residents declared intolerable.

G. B. Merchant, in charge of local work for the Andrews company, has agreed to box in the plant and install a spray in the stack. Merchant said Saturday the company had quit using coal at the plant and is now using oil to avoid unpleasant smoke in the neighborhood.

The city manager's warning delivered an ultimatum either "to abate the nuisance before further operation or remove the plant from this vicinity."

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE WEATHER?--

"DON'T LET THAT WORRY YOU," SAYS LIMA OBSERVER

What makes the weather act the way it does?

This question, which has caused amateur weather prophets as well as professional weather conversationalists in Lima much irritation, is answered in several ways. Scientists of reputation look accusingly at the sun and declare it is trying to cool off—and is succeeding. It has spots, they say. And it's a weak sun that can't change its spots.

Miss O. A. Long, 318 W. Kibby-st., who has been government weather observer for the last 22 years, refuses to enter the lists with any personal solution. It is a habit of the seasons, she says, to act up the way they are doing. But don't worry Miss DeLong adds.

Every 11 years, she has been informed, the sun has a chill, and an overheat battle between air pressures results in a high pressure forcing the northern current south. In other words, Lima gets a dose of Canadian climate and even the most conservative citizens talk of giving the public square back to the Indians.

MAKES NO PREDICTION
Miss DeLong shrewdly refused to credit what, if any, effect the May winter would have on the summer. She quoted professional prophets throughout the country to this effect: It will be a hot summer, with extremes of cold and it will be a hot summer without extremes of cold.

The majority vote, however, is for a hot summer, with occasional cool spells, much hotter and much cooler than it should be, she said.

A total of 4.62 inches of rain has fallen within the official rain gauge, according to the same period has ranged from 74 degrees May 9 to 30 degrees May 10 and 11. The greatest extreme in any one day occurred May 9. On that day the mercury dropped from 72 to 47, a slide of 25 degrees. The next most pronounced stunt of the nervous factor happened May 11. The day it went from 59 to 30 without the customary warning.

Indications are that this summer will be paradise for those conversational experts who open at you with "I remember."

(BY HARRY B. HUNT)
WASHINGTON.—Remarkable weather this spring, isn't it? Very unusual! Like to know what's causing it?

Well, the temperature of the earth depends upon the heat we receive from the sun," says Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institute and director of the Astrophysical Observatory.

"For several years the sun's heat had not fluctuated much until November, 1921, when the monthly values began to decrease. By October, 1923, the values reached a level of three per cent lower than before the decrease commenced. Since then they have continued on this low level. Since the earth's temperature, rainfall and other phenomena depend upon the sun's heat, one would expect that so marked a change would be apt to be reflected in the weather conditions."

THAT FREAK WEATHER
"How about it?" I asked Dr. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the United States Weather Bureau, citing Dr. Abbot's observations. "Is the sun cooling off?" is that responsible for this freak weather?" Marvin grinned and came back with a question of his own:

"Is the weather due to the apparent variation in solar radiation, or is the seeming variation in solar radiation due to the weather?"

"You tell me; you're the weather man," I continued.

"Well," Marvin continued, drawing from his desk a bunch of intricate graphs and charts, "I am not yet ready to accept the theory of variation in solar radiation as a basis for weather forecasting. Measuring the sun's heat is a very difficult task. Many atmospheric conditions, clouds, dust, etc., tend to disturb the accuracy of the measurements. But look at these charts—running back over many years. They indicate that as the methods for measuring solar radiation have improved, and as better equipment and better stations for observation have been obtained, the apparent variability of the sun's heat has diminished."

"That might indicate that the variation recorded was not due to any change in the heat of the sun itself, but to errors in measurement and to the influences of atmospheric conditions affecting the intensity of the rays as they reach the earth's surface."

EFFECT OF ERUPTION
"Following the eruption of Katami in the Aleutian Islands a few years ago, the variation in apparent solar radiation was so great that readings finally were discontinued. Volcanic dust mounted high into the air—far above the level to which any moisture ascends. Observations taken by the Smithsonian Institution in Algeria showed the presence of the volcanic dust even there—half way round the earth. This volcanic dust sometimes remains in the upper atmosphere for two or three years, and, of course, is an element in affecting the passage of the sun's rays."

"Maybe there is a real and actual variation in the heat of the sun. Maybe that is influencing the weather. I'm open minded. But I am certain that a good part of the apparent variation is atmospheric and earthly. In other words, while a change in solar radiation may be affecting the weather, I'm quite sure the weather contributes to the seeming change in solar radiation!"

"Well," we suggested, "how about sunspots? Maybe they're to blame for the weather. Maybe they'll give us another year like 1816, when there were frosts all summer."

"Ah-h-h!" said Marvin, apparently scenting another unpopular weather bugaboo. "Sunspots?"

"Well, in 1816—which is known as the year without a summer—we were in a period of maximum sunspots. The old sun was pretty well spotted that year. Therefore, many have said, the cold summer.

"This year we are in a period of sunspot maximum. If we say the sunspot maximum in 1816 caused the cold of that year, and now say this year's cold is due to a sunspot minimum, we are attributing exactly the same result to exactly opposite causes."

LONG DISTANCE FORECASTS
"My advice to the public—particularly to farmers and others whose activities are directly affected by the weather—don't worry. The sun isn't going to grow cold on us right away. Neither are its spots or lack of spots likely to affect us seriously."

"Is it to be a hot or cold summer?" I asked.
"No one knows and there is no way to tell," Dr. Marvin replied.
"But," I asked, "can't you give a definite forecast?"
"Such a forecast is impossible," he said. "There is positively no basis on which to make long-distance forecasts, covering a year or even a season. It can't be done."

The cause of the cold weather? Well, as I sum up the conversation, eliminating the variation in solar radiation and the effect of sunspots and such, the only answer that seems to remain, as Dr. Marvin said, is:

"The weather depends on the weather!"

LONDON CHURCH FOR DEAF DUMB AND BLIND TO CLOSE

LONDON.—One of London's quaintest institutions, the deaf and dumb church of St. Saviour's, is soon to disappear. So far as is known, it is the only church in the world devoted exclusively to worship by the deaf, the dumb and the blind. The increased real estate value of the site upon which this unique institution in built has made it necessary to close its doors, but it is hoped to re-establish it in a more modest part of London.

The foundation for the modest church was laid by the late King Edward in 1870, and it became familiar to the hundreds of thousands of Britons and Americans who pass along one of the busiest and noisiest thoroughfares of the capital. Yet it is doubtful if a tube of those passers-by even thought to step inside to witness one of the deaf and dumb services.

Like the United States, Great Britain is one of the most advanced nations in the care and education of its deaf and dumb. Recognizing the truth of Dr. Samuel Johnson's statement that of all physical deprivation, the deaf and dumb is "the most desperate of human calamities," the state now provides for the whole of the educational needs of this afflicted class of the population up to the age of 16 and gives them assistance in after years.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

HECTIC efforts to depress securities, and irregularity of the commodity markets, featured the week in business the country over. Production continues to go forward on the same broad scale inaugurated in the first quarter. As a barometer, the securities markets forecast no let-up for the summer, but a sagging and curtailment in the late fall. Increased dividends were announced in many stocks, and the Federal Reserve system was optimistic in its weekly survey but these usually noted conditions were disregarded entirely, and stocks sold freely at the week end.

Of a more serious nature is the steady withdrawing of building plans. Metropolitan centers are abandoning new construction, while in Lima contractors and real estate operators are making no new commitments for this season. This is a general effort to stabilize prices in the building trades.

Locally, conditions are sound, production on a broad basis and retail trade, fair, under adverse weather visitation. Spring is so backward as to be running into summer, but merchants have been buying only on demand, and keeping inventories well in hand.

Money is reported freer at some banks, and tighter at others. There is no lack of funds for needed requirements, but hesitancy on any new enterprises. Building and Loans remain in ample supply for moderate sums, principally for housing.

MOST FITTING MEMORIAL

THOSE who believe in doing things the most sensible way always cannot help but applaud the suggestion that the most fitting memorial which can be conceived in honor of the memory of American soldiers who fell in battle is in the planting of trees.

This plan serves more than one purpose. First, the simple ceremony is expressive of the gratefulness of a people for the sacrifices made by its heroes. Secondly, there is absolute need of a beginning somewhere in the matter of reforestation, as more and more trees are slaughtered year after year. Another feature is the fact that trees planted now will in future years be of the greatest service to mankind.

Where conditions make it impossible to lay out a memorial park and plant therein with loving hands myriads of trees, to afford shelter from the sun's rays for the populace in future years, a grateful people may at least give expression to heart gratitude and at the same time benefit future generations by setting out seedlings in public places and in out of the way places as well, particularly on hillsides, dedicating them to the memory of the fallen.

Statues of mute marble, no matter how beautifully designed or how elegantly carved, can pay no greater honor to the memory of heroes than living, growing trees. It has been the custom from the beginning of time for all the tribes and nations of the earth—according to the conditions of their lives and the character of their civilization—to honor the soldier dead—the heroes who fell on the field of battle or who died in the service of their country, for the honor safety, liberty and preservation of their native land.

What better thought could be suggested than perpetuating the memory of the dead with living things? All things material succumb inevitably to the ravages of time and the elements. Statues of stone or statues of metal disintegrate in time, having served no real purpose save as reminders of men and deeds. Trees are a benediction as they thrive and spread their leafy branches.

DANGER IN DIRT

WHILE Lima has many points of interest that citizens may be proud of, there are a few things which the pride of the people impels them to keep under cover and away from the gaze of visitors to as great an extent as possible.

While this may be commendable, the observation is forced that really there is no occasion for it. Conditions that citizens generally are ashamed of should not be permitted to exist. We boast of our parks, our boulevards and our unexcelled places of employment of skilled artisans and labor. We point with pride to our churches, some of our public buildings, our well shaded streets and our up-to-the-minute business houses.

The city commission is working as rapidly as possible toward the installation of intercepting sewers along the river and the building of a sewage disposal plant, to remove offensive odors from Ottawa river in the warm season, the inevitable penalty of the pouring of sanitary sewage into the waterway.

This city possesses ample transportation facilities to make it the hub of northwestern Ohio. We have one of the best systems of waterworks in the state and steps are rapidly developing that will insure an abundant supply of electric current for all purposes. Factories are constantly broadening and increasing in importance in output and payrolls. Street improvement work is progressing rapidly and many thousands of dollars are being expended in public work.

More pride is being shown as time goes on in the matter of the designing of new structures. Symmetry is sought, city planning is developing, civic societies are paying more attention to public affairs and there is a growing tendency to place the city's institutions on an impregnable basis.

In one particular we appear to be lagging. Streets and public places are not kept as clean as public health conditions demand. There is laxity in keeping alleys clear of debris and the garbage disposal situation is a menacing one. There is danger in dirt. Many lives annually are the toll of carelessness of that character. It is unnecessary, besides untidy conditions are unattractive to the eye.

A BLOT ON OHIO

IF anything were needed to afford final proof that the Ohio legislature seeks to deliberately thwart the will of the people of the Buckeye state, so decisively expressed in the 1922 election, the ruling made by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe on the status of the general assembly and recess appointments by Governor A. V. Donahy supplies it.

While the opinion given by the attorney general may be the only one possible in the premises, that fact makes the position of the Republican leaders in the eyes of those who believe in fair play doubly reprehensible. With a studied attempt to set aside the will of the electorate and punish it for having refused to turn all departments of the state government over to its organization in 1922, the Republican controlled legislature so manipulated its final acts that the attorney general could not do other than rule its five minute recess in reality extends to December 23, 1924.

The opinion relates in particular to the matter of a recess appointment of a member of the public utilities body, which the senate rejected. The ruling by the attorney general is accepted as applying also to other appointments the Democratic governor may wish to make, blocking him effectually; robbing him of a prerogative that is his by right of having been given a majority of the votes of a sovereign people.

As the matter now stands, the public utilities commission personnel is not satisfactory to the governor and will probably continue so, barring death or resignation of members. Even then the governor could not make appointments unless the senate actually returned. In his ruling the attorney general does not specifically say that the Ohio senate is in session under its "five-minute recess." The inference is left that he holds the body to be in session and he acts upon the assumption that it is.

In consequence of the high-handed tactics employed by the Republican leaders, any failure on the part of the utilities commission to function in behalf of the people of the state generally can be laid only at the door of a conniving and scheming G. O. P. controlled legislature and political leaders.

CLUTCHING THE WIND

STRAWS may indicate which way the wind blows, but the breeze from the electric fan is another matter.

The presidential straw vote of Collier's Weekly is not likely to have any tremendous effect on political engineers at convention time. Theodore Roosevelt was the only man popular enough to win a nomination in spite of the politicians. Even he could not repeat in 1912.

The way to make a straw vote amount to anything is to make it a binding primary vote. As long as the politicians can hold the convention fort, the touted will of the people is a myth. Ford Bryce in "Modern Democracies" demonstrates with almost mathematical precision why the American system "cannot put a really great man in the president's chair."

In 19 states presidential primaries are held. In some states the results of the primary are binding, but more often they are not. And even where they are binding, there is no penalty for the delegate who disregards the "mandate."

A house to house canvass for straw-votes could show, however, who might be president if political machinery actually gave the people its choice. It may encourage the diffident Mr. McAdoo to come out of his hole—or to crawl farther into it.

It ought to be remembered, in judging results, that Collier's while having a circulation of near a million, goes to a special class of persons. They are all more or less alike; otherwise, they would not all read the same magazine. Therefore, if the straw vote shows an overwhelming majority for one man or two men it ought not to cause surprise—nor persuade any too-popular man that he can worm a nomination out of the politicians.

TO LIVE LONG

WILL you live to a ripe old age? That depends more on your ancestors than on yourself. Such is the conclusion reached by Dr. Raymond Pearl of Johns Hopkins University.

Says Pearl: "The most important thing a person can do toward attaining a ripe old age is to pick the right kind of parents and grandparents."

This expresses a definite idea, tho in a way that will seem impossible to most of us. However, there are many who believe that we select our parents before coming into the world. This belief is a branch of the mysticism now epidemic.

Many of us die young or drag along with bad health, as a result of some ancestor's dissipation or the unhealthy economic conditions that surrounded him back yonder in the past.

Dr. Pearl compares us with clocks that are wound up to run varying lengths of time. "Some men have been wound for a full 90-year run, others are only partly wound and stop at 40, 65 or some other point. In human affairs the original winding is heredity. Sand in the works is environment—disease, or mode of life."

You have often heard it said: "He'll live to a very old age. He comes from long-lived stock."

If you get out the records kept in the family Bible or elsewhere, and figure the average age at which your direct ancestors died for several generations back, you'll have the most probable age of your own death. Observe that the figure will express your AVERAGE or most probable chance. You may differ from the average—live longer or shorter. That depends largely on the care you are able to take of your body and mind.

The clear-cut lesson in all this is that the way we live and take care of our health today will, to a large extent, fix the number of years our sons, grandsons and later descendants will live. The greatest legacy for the future is sensible living in our generation.

A HEALTHY BLOOD PRESSURE

Every live person has an arterial or blood pressure within certain minimum and maximum limitations which need not worry us here.

High blood pressure has nothing whatever to do with "too much blood" and is frequently present when the victim has too little blood or blood which is weak in red corpuscles. This fact obviously nullifies the common belief that a bleeding will remedy excessive blood pressure or that the use of any kind of salts will lower the pressure.

Another common fallacy which leads to neglect and improper treatment in many cases is the notion that a florid or red or flushed face indicates high blood pressure. The truth is that many persons of florid or abnormally red complexion have a blood pressure which is normal or rather too low; in some of the disease conditions in which the blood pressure is abnormally high there is pallor.

The very conception that high blood pressure is in itself a disease condition is an unfortunate error, for it encourages much useless or injurious maltreatment or improper treatment. The individual who contents himself with any line of treatment purporting to be good for "high blood pressure" is simply fooling with fate. There is no remedial measure of whatever character which can be considered advisable in every disease condition in which the blood pressure happens to be too high.

I carefully refrain from giving any arbitrary figures for the estimation of blood pressure, for that isn't a health problem, but a problem which should be left to the consideration of one's physician.

Still another common misapprehension is that high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) are synonymous. In a large share of all cases of arteriosclerosis the blood pressure is not too high; indeed it is often too low. In at least nine out of ten instances in which the arterial pressure is found on measurement to be above the normal range, there is no hardening of the arteries. It is true that in many cases of arteriosclerosis there is an associated elevation of the blood pressure above normal bounds and that there is a certain tendency toward apoplexy (cerebral hemorrhage; stroke of paralysis) when this increase of blood pressure is extreme. But it is the arterial disease, not the blood pressure, which predisposes to apoplexy.

Bleeding, still one of the best emergency remedies at our command in certain conditions, practically has no effect upon blood pressure. If the pressure is mo-inevitable when we bear in mind that it is not a problem of "too much blood."

One with high blood pressure is certainly not a good risk. His expectation of life is probably shortened, but to what extent depends partly on what ails him and partly on how long he may be content to fiddle around with treatments which purport to be good for "high blood pressure."

SAID STUDY TO PLEASURE

Said Pleasure to Study: "I'm better for man, I take him from trouble whenever I can, I lighten his burdens and soften his woes."

And lead him to laughter wherever he goes; With thoughts of his duty I never offend, I make him happy, and I'm his best friend."

Said Study to Pleasure: "I better his mind, I help him to conquer the cares he shall find. I make him wiser. A day spent with me And stronger and braver in trouble he'll be."

You bring him laughter that fades with the hour, But I bring him knowledge and I bring him power."

Said Pleasure to Study: "You trouble him so. You whisper of work when to play he would go, You hold him fast to a book or a dream, I take him out to the banks of a stream, I give him music and dancing and fun, I set him free from the tasks to be done."

Said Study to Pleasure: "I strengthen his hand, I make him able to rule and command. I give him courage and wisdom to bear Whatever life sends him of trial and care, I talk of duty and I hold him fast, But I give him triumph and joy that shall last."

'ROUND LIMA HOUR BY HOUR

WITH APOLOGIES

BY OH. OH. JACKENRIM

A Page from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter: This day lay late abed. A big, brilliant, buzzing bug, having the night thru got on my nerves, and nose. Albeit, died when it missed a step in walking the smoke lines over the radiator. So, belowstairs to prunes and bacon, and thence out to the poste. Where nothing of import developed. To the printers, finding there Warren Melly, newly come from Detroit, and Dr. Henry Brunk, the famous pullologist.

Out, and about the town, chatting with Mose Mitchell, the banker, on the great advantage of owning a balance. Thence to my tailor to try on a pair of linen trousers. Howbeit they too long in the pouch. So, back to the shoppe, there pretending to be labouring hard when a collector called with a bill. Reads the tale of the securities markets, to no good cause. And so, to the Wilson Hughes beaery for lunch.

Saw there many people of import, including M'sieur Gordon, Mawruss Rosenbloom, the ad scrivener; M'sieur Cajacobs, the eminent optician; Dr. Glenn John, the hero of the late unpleasantness; and Capt. Kenneth Kerr, newly come from Wilmington, he being the big chief of the noble cavalry company hereabouts.

In the late afternoon, taxied a bit with Fred T. Outhbert, the Solar genius, and newly made banker. Wayed in fyne fryndliness to the Hon. John L. Cable, and mayhap, governor to be. Thence about my stint with no zest, and less incentive than for many a day. At High and Main saw a woman dressed in man's fashion, with derby hat, loose fitting coat, wing collar and a long walking stick. And she jumped almost out of her togs, when a Ford started to charge her way. She must be a speaker on equal rights.

Dined graciously on a well fed beeve, serving my wife the sir and myself, the tenderloin side. The sweet was an orange marmalade on toasted biscuits, very good. In the evening, walked long out towards the west end, passing few whom I recognized. Times were when you walked you met friends. Nowadays, you only see them whizzing by, or getting in and out of their benzine wagons.

About city affayres, have learned naught these many a day. The tip is, Main-st will be paved whether or no, before the new election date comes about. Speeches are the main diet of the higher ups in all branches of municipal endeavor. A taylor one addressess span the other day. About why a husband is like a savings account, but could see little therein. So home, and early to bed.

TEXANS KEEP EYE ON MEXICO

Periodic Outburst of Bandits' Activity Due HAPPENS EVERY TIME, CLAIM

Obregon Strong. May be Able to Restrain Outlaws

EL PASO, Tex. — (Special) — To our ranchers are keeping a wary eye on Mexico. They hope, and many believe, that at last permanent peace has come to that narrow strip of land along both sides of the Rio Grande. But past history makes them uneasy. They expect trouble.

It was ever thus on the eve of recognition by the United States of an insurrection-born southern neighbor.

Any such acknowledgment of the present government looks an approaching reality.

A joint commission of two Americans and two Mexicans is meeting in Mexico City for an exchange of views in an effort to negotiate a basis of concession.

In the past, similar overtures, in the runnings of a storm, have proven but ominous signals for raids by flying squads of Mexican desperadoes, who had been thoroughly incited by their own government.

Hence folk hereabout are wont to view official Mexico at such times to a small boy out in company.

Just when mamma finishes praising her Ethelbert, little Ethelbert proceeds to astonish the visitors by cutting a case at the piano in charming innocent merriment.

"LITTLE WILLIE"

And to carry out the simile, no sooner does one president of Mexico arrange his slap of state and proceed to proudly display his protegee neighbor Uncle Sam, than little Willie Mexico acts up.

And so this may be significant: Just as the joint commission near Laredo are engaged with the murder of six Mexicans who had bribed them to be smuggled across the border.

Circumstances show the whole-gate slaughter was not to thwart a robbery, but purely for robbery. The result, however, in a way is the same.

For since May 27, 1910, when Porfirio Diaz was driven out, trouble has been on just such occasions as now exist. Five administrations came and went before Alvaro Obregon assumed office December 1, 1910.

And in each instance, just as the United States was about to recognize the powers in control, or immediately after such recognition was given, banditry broke loose.

Father they crossed the border and harassed Americans, or they started persecuting one.

STUDENT VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Aubere Not Purposely Killed At Northwestern, Jury Finds

CHICAGO — (United Press) — Death of Lois Aubere, Northwestern University student, killed in an automobile accident as an alleged sequel to a hazing episode, was held to be an "unavoidable accident" by a coroner's jury late Saturday.

An automobile loaded with students searching for a classmate kidnapped by rival classmates, collided with another car, according to police reports at the time. Aubere was killed and several other students hurt.

Some time after the accident Roscoe Conlin Fitch, a student being quizzed in the Leighton Mount mystery, told John Sbarbaro, assistant state's attorney, that one of the automobiles colliding was wilfully zig-zagged, and then retracted this assertion as well as alleged admissions in the Mount case.

The coroner's jury absolved the students with Aubere from all blame and recommended that a bridge at the scene be "widened to avoid further accidents."

J. Allen Mills, 1921 freshman class president at the Northwestern University, again took the spotlight in the Mount investigation Saturday night, by wiring state's investigators that Charles "Chuck" Palmer, football star, is innocent of any knowledge of Mount's mysterious death.

Mills, who was brought here from Akron, Ohio, sometime ago and questioned, also telegraphed John Sbarbaro, assistant state's attorney, that he is "morally sure" two other men will "break under pressure."

The telegram was sent from Akron. Mills was a close friend of Palmer who was questioned after Mrs. Violet Bachman had told officials that Palmer declared to her he "knew where Mount was" shortly after Mont's disappearance.

Sbarbaro said he regarded the Mills telegram suggesting the two other men be questioned as "merely another tip."

Following his release from jail, where he was held without charge, Palmer Saturday night was a hero on Northwestern campus. He and his associates combined in describing Mrs. Bachman's story as a "batch of lies."

A reward of $10,000 to any one who will produce Mont alive within 30 days, was offered Saturday by Samuel Harrison, former justice of the peace of Evanston. He made the offer as a challenge to persons claiming that Mont is alive.

Northwestern University had previously posted a $10,000 reward for any one definitely solving the mystery.

AUTO HIT BY CAR

Portland, Ind. Man Injured At Snyder's Crossing

Orla Gagle, of Portland, Ind., suffered severe injury to his hip and cuts about the face and head when his auto was driving was struck by a south bound car on the Western Ohio at Snyder's crossing Saturday.

He was taken to St. Rita's hospital in a delirious condition but at his insistence was removed to the home of his brother at Wapakoneta before full extent of the injury to his hip was determined.

Gagle, according to Western Ohio officials, approached the track from the north, stopped his car and started over the track directly in the path of the oncoming car. The car was demolished.

600 MINNESOTA STUDENTS POISONED AT LUNCHEON

ST. PAUL, Minn. — University of Minnesota students were thrown into a panic when scores who participated in the annual cap and gown luncheon became ill from food poisoned Saturday.

Nearly 600 students "mobbed" the university health service for aid and one fainted from the pain and is reported in a serious condition.

An investigation was started Saturday night. It was said that several employees of the cafe where the luncheon was served, became ill.

CLARA PHILLIPS UNDER GUARD

Expected To Attempt Escape Or Try Suicide

SHERIFF PLANS HER RETURN

Rather Die Than Come Back, She Declares

(BY HERNAN ROBLETON, TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras. — (United Press) — Hoping to bring Clara Phillips back to the Los Angeles jail from which she escaped months ago, only to roam over Mexico and fall into hands of authorities here, Under-Sheriff Biscailuse of Los Angeles-co Saturday night is attempting to arrange for her deportation.

Extradition documents have been delayed and Biscailuse fears she may commit suicide or escape.

"I would rather die than return to San Quentin for life," she told authorities.

SULEN GREETING

A careful watch is being maintained over her.

American Minister Morales has arranged a conference with the president of Honduras. He will seek to have the "hammer murderer," convicted of slaying Mrs. Alberta Meadows, turned over to Biscailuse immediately.

Clara greeted Biscailuse in sullen silence when he confronted her at police headquarters in the presence of the American minister and local authorities.

"Well, Clara, you gave us a merry chase," Biscailuse said, smiling.

The "tiger woman" only stared intently at the floor.

"Yes," he continued, "and we are going to take you back."

Still she gave no sign that she knew he was in the room.

SISTER WITH HER

It developed after the sheriff's arrival that the woman who was held here as "Mrs. Young" and who, for a time posed as Clara, is a sister of the murderer. She is known in Los Angeles as Etta May Weaver.

When she was brought into the room, the sheriff looked at her and said:

"It was quite cute of you to ask me to get Clara's clothes after she had made her escape."

When Etta May did not answer, he continued:

"Where was Clara when you asked for her clothes?"

She shrugged her shoulders at this.

"How did I know?" she said.

"I wanted to get them to keep for myself."

Officials fear there may be some difficulty in the extradition proceedings. Etta May is not wanted in California and the Jess Carson, who posed as husband of Clara, is facing no indictment. In view of these circumstances, it is considered likely that only Clara will be brought back.

USES OF LIBRARY LITTLE KNOWN

Public Unaware Of Facilities, Miss Gamble Says

That the general public is frequently unaware of the uses to which a library may be put, is the opinion of Miss Martha Gamble, librarian.

A complete index of reference works in the Lima library makes it an adequate workshop and vault of tabulated and miscellaneous facts, she said Saturday.

Included in the list of reference works available at the library are the following titles indicating the comprehensive variety open to the Lima patron: a catalog of all books in print, which is brought up to date each month; an index to periodical literature; international year books; library of literary criticisms; the Who's Who to date; Lima city directory to date; Allen-co history; state history; library of wit and humor; prose and poetical quotations; messages and papers of the presidents; heroes and heroines of fiction; legendary and mythological art; cyclopedias of painters and painting; encyclopedias of religion and ethics and many other works of reference.

SMALL BOYS AND CAP PISTOLS STIR CITY OFFICIALS TO ACTION

Numerous small boys Saturday discovered a source where contraband cap pistols and ammunition therefore might be obtained and by noon such a nuisance in the vicinity of Main and High-sts that city officials instructed Fire Chief John Mack to detail two men Monday to notify every store in the city that juvenile trouble may be expected if the harrage continues.

City ordinances prohibit the sale of cap pistols and fireworks except within a few hours before the Fourth of July. Last year boys were allowed 72 hours before July 4th in which to store their armories.

Several complaints received at city hall Saturday moved officials to action.

REWARD LACE WORKERS

PARIS — Skillful and industrious lace workers in Northern France will be rewarded. They will receive 100,000 francs from William Nelson Cromwell, American philanthropist. Mr. Cromwell, who is honorary president of the Retour au Foyer, has done much for blinded French soldiers.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY THURSDAY

Fifty Inspectors Will Visit City To Hunt Hazards

LOCAL BODIES COOPERATE

Open Meeting For Showing Of Movies Is Planned

Fifty fire inspectors will arrive in Lima Thursday morning, for a thorough inspection of buildings in the downtown district.

The army of inspectors is being brought to Lima by the Lima Fire Insurance association for the purpose of pointing out fire hazards in the city and assisting in the survey that is expected to reduce fire danger to the minimum.

Fire prevention day is being conducted with the aid and cooperation of business men, municipal organizations and the public schools. The survey will reach all parts of the city.

The Board of Commerce will be headquarters for the visiting inspectors, where they will be met by members of the local associations who will conduct them to automobiles to various parts of the city.

DINNER PLANNED

After the inspection, local insurance men will entertain the inspectors at dinner at the Argonne hotel. Following the dinner a meeting will be held, to which all citizens are invited. The meeting will be devoted to a discussion of fire hazard elimination and plans for fire prevention will be shown. The state association will furnish a speaker whose name has not been announced.

In addition to the fire prevention films and the state speaker, Mayor Harold Cunningham will be asked to speak, J. J. Wyrre, president of the local association stated.

Survey of home fire conditions will be accomplished thru the use of questionnaires distributed thru the school children. Superintendent of R. E. Collins has given his consent to such distribution. Wyrre arrived Saturday, and the survey blanks will be sent out Monday.

Answering the questions included in the blanks is entirely optional with the householders. Wyrre pointed out, and will serve much as interest challenges to the residents.

The questionnaires will be returned to Superintendent Collins, who will then turn them over to Wyrre. Eventually they will be placed in the hands of Fire Chief Mack, to complete his files on fire conditions in the city.

"Fire Prevention Day is distinctly not an insurance company benefit day," Wyrre declared. "It is to the interest of every citizen to do what he can to locate and eliminate all fire hazards in the city."

LIONS TO SEEK ELECTION OF ASHLEY TO DIRECTOR'S OFFICE AT STATE MEETING

Twenty members of the local Lion's club will attend the state convention at Akron May 24, it was announced Saturday.

The local delegation will go to the convention prepared to obtain the election of R. E. Ashley as state director. Instructions to present his name at the convention were issued to the delegates at the luncheon April 25.

The state convention will be attended by representatives of 19 Lion's clubs throughout the state, who will appear in the Lion regalia of marching caps.

Delegates to the convention are: H. H. Miller, R. E. Ashley, H. J. Fast, E. O. Sellers, P. Reid Marshall, Rev. G. M. Baumgardner and A. S. Cheno-well.

The state convention was held at Lima last year.

SPENCERVILLE MAN IS TAKEN TO REFORMATORY

Roy Krugh, Spencerville, member of the interstate ring broken up by Sheriff Harvey B. Croson and detectives recently, was taken to Mansfield reformatory Saturday by Van Wert-co deputies, to commence serving an indeterminate sentence for the stealing. Sentence was imposed by Judge H. W. Blachley, after the youth admitted the charge.

Krugh fled from Spencerville at the time Floyd Moffatt was arrested and was apprehended in Toledo. He was turned over to Van Wert-co officers after pleading guilty to stealing tires from stores in Convoy. Krugh or Crooks, as he was generally known, was employed as a waiter in Spencerville. He has a wife and family at Mendon, he told Van Wert authorities.

BOYS, GIRLS MISSING FROM WARREN ARE SOUGHT HERE

Police here were notified late Saturday that two farmer boys and two young girls from Warren had run away and were believed to be coming to Lima.

They were A. C. Scribner, 20; L. Maxwell, 17; Ruth Kennison, 14; and Rosella McCracken, 14. According to information received, they drove away from Warren in a touring car with license 156-683.

3 MEN CONFESS HARNESS THEFT, POLICE REPORT

They are Albert Parish, 32, of 349 E. High-st; Floyd Ruffe, 19, and Roy Vorhees, 26, of 184 S. Pine-st.

All were lodged in city prison charged with grand larceny. Bond of $100 each was furnished for the first two named.

Instructions Given in Proper Form, Officials Say.

Members of the train crew in charge of passenger train No. 2 when it crashed into local freight No. 53 on the L. E. & W. between Coldwater and Ft. Recovery Wednesday afternoon are blamed for the wreck, in the report of Superintendent A. D. Peters, made Saturday.

The trainmen should have stopped at Oakland and waited for the freight train to pass, the report says. Failure to do this, in compliance with orders that were in proper form and read by all employees on the trains, caused the wreck, the report asserts.

The order to wait at Oakland, not a regular stop, was given the trainmen on No. 2 at Ft. Recovery, Peters' statement says.

The passenger train was in charge of Engineer Bassler, who died in the wreck; F. C. Early, fireman; E. Rowe, conductor and F. J. Derby, brakeman. Men in charge of the freight train were J. E. Meyers, engineer; E. H. Bates, conductor; E. L. Benner, fireman; Gale Hook and Joe Gress, brakemen.

EMPLOYEES BLAMED

Peters' report in full follows: "Evidence of employees involved in the accident at Oakland shows there was no irregularity in orders and instructions issued to those in charge of trains involved."

"Train orders were in proper form, specific as to rights given each train; properly delivered and it fulfilled in proper manner the accident could not have happened."

"Engineer and conductor of each train received a copy of orders, and all employees on each train were fully understood same."

"Accident was caused by failure of crew of train No. 2 to comply with order which they had received governing movement of their train with respect to train No. 53."

GOVERNOR CANNOT RULE AS CZAR

Supreme Court Rules Adversely

IS KNOCKOUT FOR DONAHEY

Legislature Has Governor Balked

THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU,
Columbus, May 19.
(Special.)

COLUMBUS — Whether or not the Davis reorganization code made the governor of Ohio a little tin czar by authorizing the chief executive, thru his finance director, to hold up all state projects, has been decided by the supreme court, adversely.

The measure was adopted under the Republican administration and it is said to have been designed primarily to get rid of a number of Democrats who held over from the Cox administration, at the same time it apparently lodged a lot of power in the hands of the governor. It was a handy instrument for Governor Davis who shortly after the passage of the measure tangled with the senate, despite the fact, it was a good Republican bill.

It ended with the governor sending the senate home, but he held a strong whip over the power he had the reorganization bill gave him.

Like most bills passed for political expediency, however, the reorganization bill proved a two-edged sword when a Democratic governor came into power and Governor Donahue did not fail to assert the authority the bill gave him.

He could not fire State Highway Director Herrick, but he could (to his hands by having Finance Director Baker refuse to approve his contracts, and "veto" overlooking chances.

It was a bitter deal and while Director Herrick made no attempt to stick the pet measure of the Republican administration, contractors who had landed a number of fat jobs from the highway department, let out a howl that was heard in Cleveland.

Right away they brought suit to compel Director Baker to approve contracts and estimates for work done and last week the supreme court, five of whose members voted the measure was an emergency and not subject to a referendum, had the pleasure of listening to Judge William C. Meale, of Cleveland, orate on the terrible condition of affairs when a mere governor, thru his finance director, can hold up a contract or refuse to spend the state's money.

Incidentally Attorney General Crabbe was placed in a delicate position by reason of the fact he must represent a Democratic governor, who was contesting a proposition the Republican state highway director wanted to put across. His position was made even more difficult by virtue of the fact he was a member of the general assembly when the reorganization bill was passed and he voted for it even to the emergency clause.

Three judges who voted the measure an emergency, Judges Robinson, Jones and Matthias, still are members of the court, as are also two who voted against it. The two dissenters, Chief Justice Marshall and Judge Wannamaker, together with the two new judges, Florence Allen and Robert H. Day, constitute a majority of the court and there was no little speculation as to how the court would hold on the question of authority of the governor to club state departments into line by holding up the work of the departments.

Seniority rights and length of service may mean something when one is working for a "soulless" corporation, but sometimes they are a drawback when working for the state of Ohio, as Charles C. Marshall, member of the public utilities commission, has learned.

Marshall was the Democratic member of the commission holding the long term when Governor Harry L. Davis took office. Like other members of the commission, he was drawing $4,500 a year, but the legislature two years ago raised the salary to $6,000 and Governor Davis appointed George T. Poor, Cincinnati, and Frank Mauller, Chillicothe, to serve with Marshall. The two new members drew $6,000, but Marshall continued to worry along on $4,500.

Despite the fact that Marshall was the poorest paid man on the job, he evidently liked it for he refused to get out when fired by Governor Donahue, and when the Republican senate refused to confirm the appointment of William A. Hopkins, Cincinnati, as his successor, Marshall found himself sitting pretty and tried to collect the difference in salary.

Attorney General Crabbe ruled Marshall still is on the job and cannot be removed by the governor on the ground that he holds office till his "successor" is appointed and qualified, and that the governor cannot appoint a successor unless the appointment is confirmed by the senate if that body is in session.

The fact that the senate has recessed until December 31, 1934, does not constitute an adjournment it is held and the governor's hands are tied in the matter of making appointments requiring confirmation.

The same opinion, however, poured a little vinegar in Marshall's cup of sweetness by holding he is not entitled to the increased salary on the ground no state employee may receive an advance in salary during his term of office. Marshall still is serving his old term and cannot draw the increase, Crabbe holds.

The appointment feature of the ruling doubtless is good news to William S. Bundy, Republican member of the state civil service commission.

Bundy is regarded as the lucky member of the old Davis administration.

Because of school day friendship and some good work done in organizing Ex-Service Men's Republican clubs during the Harding campaign, Walter C. Rogers, former executive clerk under Governor Davis, got Bundy a minor job in the office.

College friendships do not always last thru life and it was not long until Bundy and Rogers were looking daggers at each other, but Bundy found favor in the eyes of Floyd Waite, then private secretary to the governor, and soon Rogers was working in the highway department and Bundy resigned his old boss' job.

When Thad H. Brown was elected secretary of state he resigned as chairman of the civil service commission and Bundy, who had but a few weeks left to serve as executive clerk was named by Governor Davis to succeed Brown. The job looked good to Bundy over until August, when he was generally expected Governor Donahue would appoint a Republican of his own choosing, but if the ruling of Attorney General Crabbe in the Marshall case holds good, Bundy may be on the job for another year and a half.

Thomas J. Duffy, chairman of the industrial commission, is another affected by the ruling, as his term expires next year. In this case, however, it is not likely Governor Donahue would desire to make any change, despite the fact Duffy was a candidate against him for the Democratic nomination for governor. Duffy was tendered the position of director of industrial relations by Donahue, but turned down the job because he wanted to give his attention entirely to the workmen's compensation department, with which he has been connected since its inception, so it is hardly probable the governor would entertain any desire to remove him.

The ruling, however, does open up another phase of the fight between Governor Donahue and Highway Director Herrick. The highway director is slated to go at the expiration of his term in July and would go sooner if Donahue could get rid of him, but the ruling of the attorney general indicates the governor cannot appoint his successor without confirmation by the senate.

Governor Donahue's proclamation declaring an open season for mayors, is said to have the chief executives of some Ohio cities hating their trousers with asbestos in the fear they will be the next on the griddle.

When Donahue removed Mayor Herbert Vogt from the city hall at Massillon for failure to enforce the prohibition laws, the law and order crowd took heart and promptly asked for the removal of William F. Grall, mayor of Lorain. Then the folks at New Philadelphia waited on the governor when he came home to spend Sunday and asked him to do a little sweeping in the old town house at home.

As a result B. F. McDonald, state prohibition director, sent some of his agents to the governor's old home and the agents brought back a report to the effect that, while Mayor Fair might be alright himself, he had one rotten police force.

They said the police made liquor raids occasionally, but expressed the opinion it is worse for the cops to seize liquor and drink it with wild women than it is to let bootleggers sell it to make wild men issue, but do not name it, and optimistically assert they will gain not only the great wave of voters that followed Roosevelt from the ranks of the G. O. P., but will also Both mayors were called before the governor during the week and Mayor Fair was ordered to clean up the town in 30 days or get off the job. Prohibition agents say Herrick's job of cleaning the Augean stables was a cinch compared to the job faced by Fair, but the governor says the job must be done even if the mayor is compelled to resort to the stunt of running the Tuscarawas river thru the town jail. Mayor Grall, however, was left to sweat a while longer as the governor has taken his case under advisement and Lorain's executive will not know his fate for several days.

Ohio's navy, which long has surpassed that of Switzerland by one sub chaser and a bulk, soon is to be put on a par with that of Mexico by the addition of a real gunboat, provided the consent of Canada can be obtained, was the glad news indulged from the office of Adjutant General Henderson last week.

Now that the war has been over some time, the United States navy has no pressing need for the gunboat Wilmington and is giving it to Ohio for the use of her naval militia, but owing to a treaty with Canada, which forbids either the United States or Canada to increase its lake naval armament without the consent of the other, the present cannot be brought home until Canada gives her consent.

Talk of third party in 1934 which has been taken with a barrel of salt by Ohio politicians, received a slight boost last week when members of the "Committee of 48" asked Secretary of State Thad H. Brown for a blank form on the presidential ballot in Ohio the name of Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho.

Friends of the movement, while not numerous, are all cocky and assert that the Bull Moose movement which cut such a swath in 1912 had no larger following two years before the Chicago convention than their movement has now.

They admit they have no Roosevelt to lead them, but insist Borah will not be up against Teddy's difficulty of facing the electorate as a disgruntled leader turned down by his own party convention, whose only campaign issues were steam roller method and bossed politics. They say they will have a real issue, but do not name it, and optimistically assert they will gain not only the great wave of voters that followed Roosevelt from the ranks of the G. O. P., but will also gain thousands who learned to know and love the great fighting president better after his death than they did before.

That is what causes that grainy appearance, that muddiness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that impossible "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify! The foundation for a beautiful skin simply is not there, and no face treatment can give it to you. But increase your red-blood-cells—and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, the complexion becomes vasculine and immaculate! Try it. It will do it every time. S. S. S. builds the red-blood-cells you need for a beautiful complexion. Most of us haven't enough red-blood-cells, even though we may be in fairly good health and have no skin eruptions. Begin using S. S. TEST WELLS DUE TO COME IN

Wild Cat Operations Watched by Local Men.

Great interest attaches to the bringing in of several wells the first of the week in the Ft. Recovery field, local oil operators stated Saturday. Wells to be brought in Monday and Tuesday are test wells and several are wild cat wells, they said.

Developments the past week have been retarded by almost impassable roads. The Ft. Recovery district is now getting in better shape and barring more rain this week should see stimulated activity, Lima operators declared.

Among the wells brought in during the past week was one by W. E. Masters and others drilled two miles across the Indiana line. The well has been flowing and has filled all available tanks. It is now flowing on the ground and is causing some excitement among operators in the field.

The Mondark Oil & Gas Co. drilled a well south of its Gerlock lease in Darke-co which is making a nice showing.

The Illinois Oil Co. drilled in another well last week which is reported to be showing nicely.

The Neely interests drilled No. 2 on the Current lease. The well was not a producer and was plugged.

OHIO BANKS JUMP TO NEW LEVELS

Resources Highest in History, Superintendent Scott Reports

$50,465,193 GAIN SHOWN

Declared To Presage Indefinite Period of Prosperity

COLUMBUS—(United Press.)—An indefinite continuation of prosperity in Ohio is seen by H. Scott, state bank superintendent, in a statement made public here Saturday night in which he declares that returns by 750 banks under his supervision "reveals the increasing habit of thrift and the fact that the highest levels of resources have been reached in the history of the state."

"From virtually every standpoint the department considers this statement of condition the most excellent it ever has issued," Scott declared. "It presages an indefinite continuation of prosperity."

Scott pointed out the report furnished a certain index to the steady increasing habits of thrift and industry by the people of Ohio, the growth and progress of business generally and the strength of banks of the state.

Combined resources of the banks reported under the call, which was of April 3, 1923, according to Scott, amounted to $1,626,648,903.

This represents a gain of $59,465,193 over the previous call of December 29, 1922.

Ohio banks between the two calls had decreased their liabilities for borrowed money and borrowed funds and redemptions in the sum of $482,853.

"The banks of the state were never in better condition," said Scott. "They are pursuing a conservative policy, especially where over-expansion seems imminent."

LIMA BUSINESS WOMEN TO ATTEND COLUMBUS MEETING

Local members of the newly organized Business and Professional Women's club will attend the state convention at Columbus, May 30.

Attending the convention will be representatives of each club composing the state federation.

Judge Florence Allen, of Cleveland, will be the principal speaker at the convention. Mrs. A. J. Donahue, wife of the governor, will throw open the executive mansion in the afternoon for a reception to visiting delegates.

Members attending the convention from Lima will be Miss Rosemary Christian, Miss Mary Lamb, Miss Genevieve Blain, Miss Georgia Fair, Miss A. Y. Corder, Mrs. Odessa E. Bell, Miss Martha Fivehouse and Miss Thelma Day.

RIVER BANK INSPECTION PLANNED FOR THIS WEEK

Inspection of the banks of the Ottawa river to determine the probable cost of constructing walls to prevent cave-ins where the river was recently widened, will be made some time this week by city officials.

Several property owners, officials said, have agreed to pay 50 per cent of the cost of constructing the walls. The city has $12,000 in the bridge fund available for the work.

Since the river was widened there have been numerous small cave-ins along the banks, in several cases approaching property lines.

BOND BUYERS REMIT FOR REJECTED PAPER AFTER IT IS DESTROYED BY CITY

Seasoned & Mayer, Cincinnati bond firm, which recently refused to buy a city bond issue of $3,000 because the first bond matured a few weeks before the legal date, sent a check Saturday to the city auditor for $3,300 for $7,300 worth of bonds.

An ordinance passed two weeks ago by the city commission destroyed bond No. 1 of the issue to meet the demands of the bond company.

The check received Saturday included the purchase price of the first bond, which had been cancelled.

MRS. EM BEASLEY WAITIN' FER TH' JURY T' COME OUT

How Mrs. Em Beasley's lawyer can make a jury believe she ever had her husband's love, or how she knows a wealthy widder has it, or how it can be proved her husband ever had any love for her t' begin with, is what gits us. At th' trial she valued her husband's love at $500,000 an' her attorney insisted that she be paid that amount. Those who know th' Beasley's say that Mrs. Beasley never treated her husband, Al, as tho she considered his love worth thirty cents, but we guess love immediately jumps in price th' moment it begins t' wander, an' then th' shootin' or suin' begins. We recall that Bosko Moon fixed th' value o' his wife's affections at $75,000 an' finally took $135. Mrs. Gertie Plum's husband & sorted her fer a counter girl at th' Little Gem restrint an' she didn't fix no price on his affections at all. She threw some vitrol on th' counter girl, but she never tried t' collect anything. Some times if a woman don't feel like goin' t' court about her husband's love she jest shoots him, an' then nobuddy gits it. Often a feller'll shoot his wife when she switches her love t' somebody that hain't got nuthin', an' sometimes he tries t' git all he kin. Rich clummen an' th' like find it much cheaper an' less exasperatin' t' quietly pick out another wife when their homes break up. Ther's no regular fixed price fer heart balm. Some times if a husband don't care fer money he'll jump in an' shoot his wife an' all her folks he kin round up. Then he'll flee, showin' that he kin live, an' wants t' live, without her. Joe Lark's first wife ran away with ole Abner Craw, an' Joe sued an' got $2,500 damages, an' then his wife switched her love right back t' him an' they went t' housekeepin' till th' money was gone. But by that time his wife had grown bulky an' had lost her symmetry an' she finally skipped out with an elderly fruit tree agent. When Al Beasley heard that his wife figured that his love was worth $500,000 he thought some o' goin' back t' her, or at least o' lookin' around a little more before settlin' down with a woman much older than himself, feelin' that he might do better. It's hardly likely th' jury'll allow Mrs. Beasley $500,000 as her husband is a travelin' man an' had neuritis, but you can't tell what a country jury or a reform mayor'll do. We don't know what love's worth, but we do know that th' folks that are asked t' pay these awful prices never do it without exhaustin' ever legal resource. We often wonder how a woman feels when th' feller that steals her love an' affection kicks on payin' fer it.

LORD CURZON MAY SUCCEED LAW

Expected To Become Premier When Incumbent Resigns

LONDON. — (United Press.) — Stanley Baldwin or Lord Curzon may succeed to the premiership of the British empire. Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, who held the reins while Bonar Law went on his vacation, is favored, but Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs, is considered the most logical selection.

While this turmoil over possible candidates is on, Premier Bonar Law, with a throat affliction which prevents him speaking above a whisper, sits in seclusion in his home. His friends agree that he cannot hope to retain his office. They say his resignation is a matter of days.

Bonar Law returned Saturday afternoon from Paris, where he had been carefully examined by throat specialists. He showed no improvement from the condition which forced him to desert his post for a vacation more than a week ago.

If the premier resigns before the end of July, he will obviate the necessity of having his ministry resign in case a conservative is chosen to succeed him.

A provision of British law permits the government chief to retain office without competing in a by-election if the government changes within six months of his appointment.

POLITICAL FORECAST
BERLIN — (United Press.) — Lloyd George will soon return to power and will appear in the same political constellations with Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm of Germany.

Premier Poincaré of France will be confronted with critical days in September and October of this year.

President Ebert of Germany is destined to succeed despite many difficulties and Chancellor Cuno, if he can remain in office until 1924, will achieve great success during the following year.

These horoscopes are cast in Oskar Schmitz' new book, "The Spirit of Astrology," which is creating a sensation here.

SPEED TRAPS TO BE ELIMINATED

New Law Expected To Protect Motorists In Ohio

AUTO CLUBS TAKE UP FIGHT

Methods Of Arrest In Montgomery-co Probed

Elimination of speed traps in Ohio is predicted by James I. Heffner, manager of the Lima Automobile club, after July 26, when the new state uniform traffic law enacted by the legislature becomes effective.

The law, Heffner declares, will deliver the long suffering motorist from the clutches of village justices and their constables who have operated traps for profit in the past.

"Motorists who are arrested in strange communities will get a square deal when the new law becomes operative," Heffner declared. "The law provides a jail penalty of five days for persons convicted of driving faster than 35 miles an hour on country roads, and 30 miles outside congested traffic centers in cities."

While this may seem harsh, Heffner pointed out that it gives the car owner the right to appeal to higher courts, and trial by jury. Final jurisdiction is taken out of the country justice's hands and lodged in the upper courts.

ARRESTS PROBED

An investigation was launched by the club Saturday to probe circumstances surrounding the arrest of Guy Howard, W. H. Cramer and Walter Worthheim, by constables operating out of Justice R. P. Jones' court in Montgomery-co.

The trio, in company with their families were motoring back from attending a Masonic gathering in Dayton. They were halted by officers and held before Justice Jones.

for a hearing. Their trials were set a week or so ahead, which necessitated their giving bond. If they fail to appear, the bond can be forfeited.

Heffner is endeavoring to learn if the Montgomery J. P. is operating a speed trap. One year ago, Justice Cox, also of Montgomery-co, was compelled to refund more than $1,000, which the court of appeals found had been illegally collected from tourists by constables as security for their appearance.

The case was prosecuted by the Dayton Automobile club.

Here Is The Point!

Paint cost depends not upon what you pay per gallon for the paint, but upon how much service you get out of every gallon of paint you buy.

Because there is quality in B. P. S. Paint, it gives service and satisfaction.

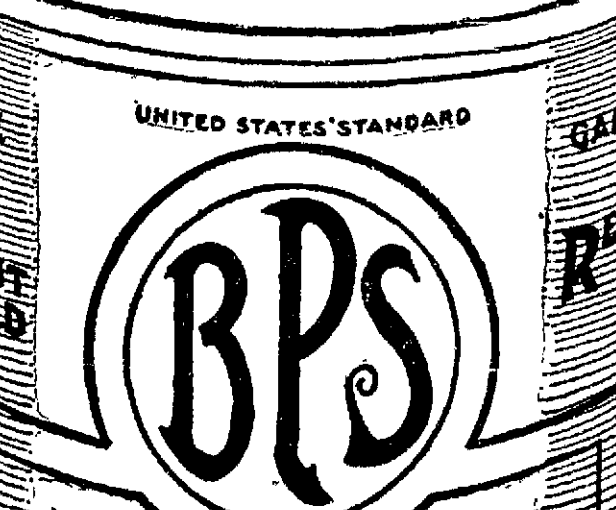

B. P. S. Paint covers from 350 to 400 sq. feet, two coats; a cheap paint will cover not to exceed 250 sq. feet.

B. P. S. wears for years and leaves a surface fit to repaint, and the colors are permanent as it is possible to make them.

Think it over seriously; figure out the cost per year and the cost per gallon. B. P. S. will be the best investment.

LIMA INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

SPARKS FROM THE SPORT GRINDSTONE

BY THE SPORTING EDITOR.

As far as some of those fellows over at Ada, in the track meet were concerned, this was leap year.

These bachelors who stay at the Y. M. C. A. know that as they saw their suits, so do they rip.

We'll get a lot of publicity from now on until the Fourth of July on Shelby, Montana. People will find out more about the place now than those who lived there ever knew. Which just shows that those who advertise.

We'll have to hand it to our noted friend, "Line O' Type," for this one. There have been plenty of take-offs on the book "Winter Comes," but in our opinion this beats them all: "If winter comes, when the hell is spring?"

By Bob is banking on Sylvester rather peculiar side-arm style, which at times is a bit like that affected by Carl Marx.

Without a doubt Syl Johnson is the big question mark in Detroit's pennant chances.

If there is anyone in Lima who can present a good reason why they can't afford to pay admission to the baseball park on Sunday afternoon, Manager Bernie Holleran announces that they will be given a free ticket. This is an offer for real baseball fans only and each should drop a line to Bernie at the shoe fits.

A successful flat hunter thinks his apartment is the real home suite.

All the fish in this vicinity have been warned to stay down pretty deep in the water Sunday. A number of policemen are going to go out and get their luck. If Willis Kipker, the chief of detectives, goes along he'll probably ask the fish into jumping on his hook, from the way to get the questions out of people he questions.

Baseball produces many unusual situations. The case of the veteran pitcher, Earl Smith, and Jim Bagby, of the Cleveland Indians, is a case in point. Last year Smith was with Cleveland and Bagby was with the Cleveland Indians. Smith was the outstanding feature of the National League last season. In 1920 Jim Bagby was leading all pitchers in the American League. Last season Bagby was with Cleveland and Smith was with the Cleveland Indians. Smith was the outstanding feature of the National League last season. In 1920 Jim Bagby was leading all pitchers in the American League. Last season Bagby was with Cleveland and Smith was with the Cleveland Indians.

On an off day it is an easy thing for a Lima golfer to drive himself mad.

Many a husband is on the carpet in the spring, altho he has done no wrong.

The way Babe Ruth socks a ball, no wonder it makes 'em sweat.

By the way, don't forget to be out at Murphy-st park at 3 o'clock Sunday to see the Cleveland and Lima baseball teams hit the horsehide around for nine innings.

95 VICTORIES ARE USUALLY ENOUGH TO WIN FLAG

ACCORDING to the law of averages, 95 victories in a season are usually sufficient to enable a team to win a major league pennant. For in a schedule of 154 games, it gives a club a percentage of .615 which as a rule is enough to lead the rest of the field, providing it is at all evenly balanced.

Of course in a class where two clubs far excel the other entries the above doesn't always hold true, as has evidenced here in 1915 when the Detroit Tigers, though they turned in an even 100 triumphs, were forced to be content with second place, the Boston Red Sox coping the flag with 101 victories.

There is no doubt the only occasion in the history of the game, however, when a team in reaching the century figure in games won failed to meet the goal.

Only once, the Tigers hold the record of having won the pennant with the lowest percentage ever compiled, turning the trick in 1908 with 90 games won and 63 lost, a mark of .588. That was the year in which the four western clubs in the American League were in the thick of the pennant fight right up until the last two weeks of the campaign.

In the National circuit, the Phillies claim honor to the same sort of feat, their 90 victories and 62 defeats in 1915 giving them a percentage of but .592. Incidentally, this was the only time a team in the older loop has captured the flag with the mark below .600 in the past 20 years, the finishes in the parent body not being so close as those which have characterized the one in the American.

To the Chicago Cubs goes the honor of having won the most games in a season, the 1908 outfit grabbing 116 wins for the remarkable percentage of .763. In the American League, the Red Sox hold the best record with 105 triumphs and with but 47 whippings in 1913 for an average of .691.

blowing and had played havoc with a number of shots.

An argument arose as to whether Hager should lift his ball and permit Sweet to play. Sweet was also on the green in four. Before the dispute was settled a sudden gust of wind blew Hager's ball into the cup.

The officials ruled that Hager holed out in four, which won the hole for him, otherwise it would have been halved. Winning the ninth hole in this extraordinary manner carried the two players to be all even at the end of the eighteenth, three extra holes being necessary before Sweet was returned the winner.

BIG LEAGUER WAITS SIX YEARS FOR FIRST SHUTOUT

Further Rolly Naylor of the Philadelphia Athletics had the big thrill of his major league career at Chicago Saturday, May 12.

Working against the Chicago White Sox, Naylor scored a 5 to 0 victory over Gleason's tribe. That shutout was the first that Naylor has ever pitched in the big show, although he came to Connie Mack in 1917.

In a career spread over a half dozen years Naylor has pitched many a fine ball game for Mack, but in all that time he has never succeeded in holding the opposition shut until his recent exhibition against the White Sox.

Scores of times he has been on the verge of scoring a shutout, only to have the breaks of the game rob him of the glory at the last minute.

Naylor did not play during the season of 1918, doing his bit in the World War that year.

WEST VIRGINIA BEATS PITTSBURG IN DUAL MEET

MORGANTOWN, W. Va.—West Virginia University defeated the University of Pittsburgh in a dual track meet here this afternoon by a score of 74 to 61. The Virginians took the lead by scoring heavily in the first events and were never overtaken. Pitt made a strong comeback in the latter stages of the struggle by scoring heavily in the jumps and pole vaults.

Murphy-St Will Be Used

BY RICHARD THORNBURG

Saturday afternoon industrial league baseball games will be played each week at Murphy-st park, according to announcement of Virgil Bird, Y. M. C. A. industrial secretary, who has worked out plans for the loop.

The first games of the season will be played next Saturday afternoon between what will probably turn out to be the main contenders for the Saturday afternoon league. This game will be between the Locomotive works mine and the outfit representing the L. E. & W. railroad.

"Pug" Marshall, sporting goods dealer, has offered a bat for each home run made and a silver cup for the champion team if a certain brand of baseball is adopted by the league. This matter will be decided at a meeting of managers Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. at which time final plans will be made for the opening day game.

Called at 2 P. M.

The first game each week will be played at 2 o'clock and the second as soon as the first is completed. Seven innings will be considered a completed contest.

The council in charge of the league affairs is made up of the following managers, acting with Bird and Physical Director I. G. Maxwell, of the "Y": Charles Shockency, Lake Erie; W. L. Flager, Ohio Power; W. C. Milnor, Crane Co., and F. C. McClain, Loco.

Fifteen hundred printed schedules will be distributed in the shops and among baseball fans of Lima. Poster advertising will also be used.

Admission of 10 cents will be charged for women and children and 15 cents for men, according to Bird. This money will be used to finance the league.

$350,000 PROFIT ON RUM CARGO

Sums Realized by American Manipulators in London

SHIPMENTS MADE TO U.S.

Runner's Life Made Hazardous, However, by Pirates

LONDON—(United Press)—Volunteers from all parts of England's underworld are flocking to the skullduggery of the pirate fleet.

These pirates prey on the rum runners that are found along the U. S. Atlantic coast. The pirates are so strong that it is making rum-running almost as bad as being honest.

Reports here are that the liquor pirates now operating off Long Island sound are mainly from British ports—the stock that in other days, manned the buccanering ships which took toll from the world's merchantmen.

And there are other reports that the "merchants"—the bootleggers—are doing what their forefathers did—sinking on crews who can fight and making it worth their while to meet machine-gun with machine-gun.

It is declared here that the first rum pirates operated from the United States, their existence was due to an ambitious plan formed in London to sell bootleg liquor in the United States without going to the trouble of taking it all the way across the Atlantic—or paying for it.

The pirate fleet is declared to be well organized, with the usual mysterious "men higher up," and a firm, if unfeeling, intention of making a dishonest living from the "honest" rum runners, as their turbaned ancestors did from honest merchantmen.

The organizing genius of the pirate fleet operating from England, and controlling most of those operating from the States—there are a few amateurs—is believed to be the former chief steward of an Atlantic liner.

It is the safest form of piracy ever known. The ships that engage in it can obtain clearance papers in the ordinary way, as fishermen or tramps. They prey on an illegal traffic. It does the bootleggers no good to "sneak"—even when they have the chance, for all they put up a fight the odds are against them. A complaint to United States authorities that a cargo of illicit whiskey had been stolen would do them no good, even if it did them no harm.

The bootlegging game has grown to large proportions here. There is no way British authorities can prevent ships from taking aboard perfectly legal cargoes of spirits.

Any day in the coffee and restaurants of the West End of London there may be seen Americans, prosperous and idle, who are engaged in the traffic. There are others, idle but not prosperous, who have come over here on a "shoestring," to sell their knowledge of the game to speculative Britishers.

Those who come over here with the money buy stocks of whiskey and gin themselves. The others raise the money from gamblers or book-makers willing to take a chance. In any event the "goods" are seen safe on board the ship that is to take them to the States—a schooner, a trawler or an old tramp steamer.

Then comes the anxious part. The loaded agents sit around buying drinks and the unmonitored ones just drinking them, whiling away the fortnight or month or two or three that may elapse before a carefully worded cablegram comes informing them that the "goods" have arrived at an American port, or have been sold at sea.

A BIG PROFIT. It means a profit of from $10,000 to $350,000 to be split up among those who financed the trip and those who organized it.

It used to work almost too easily. Occasionally a ship would get caught and would be picked by revenue men and there would be no cablegram.

But now there are many disappointments. It was not until recently that the real reason was found—pirates.

It began to leak out that there was a new variation of the double cross at work, and that there was a three-mile limit to honor among thieves, as well as to the activities of revenue men.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS WARN AGAINST "SCHOOLS" THAT CLAIM CIVIL SERVICE AID

Warning against using the services of individuals and so-called schools by applicants for civil service commission positions was contained in a communication from Washington Saturday to C. F. Walther, local secretary of the commission.

Assistance is offered to persons desiring an appointment as postmaster the statement declares, and a fee of $10 is collected with an additional sum of $20 stipulated in the event the applicant is successful.

The impression is given by these concerns that something they can do will aid the applicant before the civil service commission, which is untrue, officials declare. All eligibles affected by no other consideration for civil service is determined by no other consideration, they warn, a dishonesty is neither need nor opportunity for outside influence.

To Fathers of Daughters--

After Your death—
If your daughter should die—
Without leaving children—
Your son-in-law—
Would inherit from her—
Whatever share of your personal estate—
Your daughter leaves—
And on his death—
That entire amount
Would go to HIS family.

THIS may be satisfactory in your case, but if not you can avoid any possibility of its happening and at the same time assure your daughter an independent income, which will be hers in spite of whatever the future may hold in store for her, by inserting in your will a provision putting her share of your estate in trust for her benefit. Washer is a radical departure from all the former known principles of electric clothes washers. It is different in every way. (1) It does not look like any other washer. (2) It does not wash like any other washer. (3) It is as different as the modern airplane is from the old gas balloon. (4) It has less working parts and operating levers. (5) It washes clothes in from 3 to 7 minutes. (6) It washes quilts, comforts, blankets and rag rugs in from 2 to 3 minutes. (7) It will not injure the faintest garment. (8) It has the only self adjusting wringer on the market. (9) It is self cleaning. (10) It is adjustable to the individual height of the owner.

On May 5th a special 30 car train containing 3,000 washers valued at nearly a half million dollars passed through Lima from the factory at Newton, Ia., to a dealer in Philadelphia—the largest shipment of washers ever made. There must be a reason for this. The dealer, before placing such an order, had to know that he was investing in a washer that would meet with instant approval and a ready sale. That it was so mechanically perfect that service on it in the future would be reduced to the minimum.

Make us prove all we have said about it in a demonstration at your home. After the demonstration if you are not convinced, our delivery man will remove the washer and the transaction is at an end.

OHIO FEDERATION NEWS

By Mrs. George Elliott McCormick

With the stage all set for the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs at Steubenville May 21 to May 25, inclusive, club women of that city have arranged for the entertainment for more than 1,000 delegates and visitors. The eyes of over 100,000 club women in Ohio will be turned to Steubenville while the convention is in session.

Mrs. Cornelius Selover, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Federation and Ohio director for the General Federation, will make her report on the work of the general council meeting at the recent general council meeting at Atlanta that many Ohio club women had the pleasure of attending. Mrs. Selover recommended for adoption a resolution for the Federation to be a part of the general council meeting. She will touch on the fact that the general council voted $1,000 annually for a loan scholarship in medicine to college graduates and stress the importance of the action in every branch of the Federation in interpreting the eligibility clause of the General Federation to admit organizations, the objects of which are non-political and non-sectarian, regardless of name. This was referred to the membership committee.

Among other important measures of the general council were appointment of a committee to investigate the extent of narcotic use in America and general approval, informally, of the budget as presented by Mrs. Edith M. Lure Patterson, Dayton, budget specialist for the General Federation, who spoke on practical finance and had an exhibit to demonstrate her points.

Reports from various parts of the state indicate that the Steubenville convention this year will be attended by more club women than usual. Every year interest in clubs and their work is growing seemingly by leaps and bounds.

Miss Elizabeth Haymaker, vice president of the Northeast district, has achieved a notable record for her district since the last state convention. She has recently welcomed two county federations, Lake and Trumbull, also the City Federation at Wadsworth, and eight new clubs, making a total of 23 newly federated organizations in the Northeast district. Miss Haymaker also recently attended a meeting of the Warren clubs and assisted in the organization of a City Federation, which planned to become a member of the Ohio Federation before the Steubenville convention.

Human interest characterizes a report of scholarship fund of the Dayton Federation. Thrills, because of such wonderful results achieved from the small amounts given by club members, may be experienced by many club women who have devoted much of their time to building up this work in their community after reading what the Dayton women have done. The "One-Cent-a-Week" fund created by them has given budding talent a chance to blossom.

Several musicians, splendid nurses, a valued member of the high school faculty and others there are doing a work, for which they are best fitted, about the assistance of the Dayton scholarship fund. The repaying of these loans makes possible an endless chain of substantial help, and Dayton club women are anticipating that, sooner or later, the scholarship work as conducted by them will appeal to all club women in the county with the result that "they will fall in line very quickly."

The Civic Lecture course, under the auspices of the Dayton Federation, was both a financial and social success. The committee, aided by votes of the subscribers to the course, considers itself to be most fortunate in the selection of lecturers, among them Hugh Walpole, Stuart Walker, Madame Ponaffine, Isaac Marcoss and Hamlin Garland. The course not only paid for itself, but a special lecture for children was enjoyed in addition, and still there was a comfortable balance as a nucleus for the season of 1923-24.

DRIED CORN

Corn cooked on the cob should not be wasted. The grains may be taken from the cob by running a sharp knife between the rows, not cutting. They should then be spread in a thin layer on a bake sheet and dried in the oven. When dried, place in a close receptacle and keep in a cool, dark, dry place.

JACKSON, Tenn.—If there have ever been delegates to any state convention younger than Carolyn Cawthorn and Helen Buck of this city—let them come forward!

The older of the two, Carolyn, is but 11 tender years, and as president of the Juvenile MacDowell club recently attended the Tennessee Federation of Music Clubs in Chattanooga. Helen, 9, went along as delegate.

The two youngsters gleaned valuable experience in the rudiments of parliamentary law, and friends are hopeful it will stand them in good stead in future years should they decide to enter the political arena.

Those attending the convention say it was a decided and refreshing innovation to see the young president swinging down the aisle with her nine-year-old delegate, each clad in dotted stockings. Their club has 49 members, and plans to be a power in state musical circles. At least the convention showed they were alive to the importance of proper representation.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart:

I am a constant reader of your column and am very much interested in it. I have a few questions I would like to ask you.

(1) I am 10 years old and am 5 feet 4-inches tall; how long should I wear my dresses?

(2) How much should I weigh? (3) What do the initials B. V. D. stand for?

(4) How old is Gareth Hughes? (5) Am I too young to go with boys on Saturday and Sunday afternoons?

(6) I am in the eighth grade; am I too young or too old for that grade? (7) May I write again?

(8) How is my writing? (9) How is my writing?

Y OUR dresses should be at least 12 inches from the floor.

(2) You should weigh about 118 pounds.

(3) B. V. D. is the name of the firm that makes men's underwear of that name. The initials were chosen for advertising purposes and mean nothing.

(4) Gareth Hughes is 22 years old.

(5) Yes.

(6) I think 14 is the average age for the eighth grade.

(7) I would be glad to hear from you again—if you are satisfied with your initial letter.

(8) Very good.

Dear Miss Smart: Could you tell me where there is a good mind reader in this city? BLUE EYES

I know of none. In 1906 there was a city ordinance passed which prohibited practicing by mind readers and fortune tellers in the city.

Dear Miss Smart: I am a girl 13 years of age. I am five feet three in height. How much should I weigh? Am I too young to have dates twice a week? Thanking you in advance.

Dear Miss Smart: You should weigh about 115 pounds. Yes, wait until you are at least 16 until you have dates as regularly as twice a week.

Dear Miss Smart: We are interested in movies and would like for you to give us the address of one of the best moving picture companies. We prefer one in California.

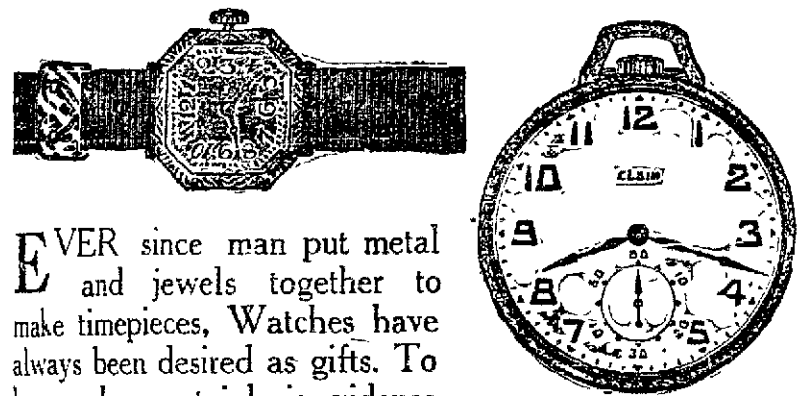

Write to the employment department of the Famous Corporation.

BOB AND DICK.

BIG PRODUCTIONS TO FEATURE WEEK AT LOCAL THEATRES

BRILLIANT OFFERINGS AT QUILNA

Clara Kimball Young and Gloria Swanson Appear in Latest Screen Releases

(By GERTRUDE GILLHAM.)

BIG productions are the order of the week, with many popular stars. Including Gloria Swanson, Douglas MacLean, Theodore Roberts, Ralph Graves, Eleanor Boardman, Richard Dix, Barbara La Marr and a host of others appearing in the various casts.

Two brilliant screen offerings are announced at the Quilna theatre, where "Prodigal Daughters," Gloria Swanson's most recent picture, and Clara Kimball Young in "The Woman of Bronze," are being flashed.

The former, which opens a four-day engagement today, is a startling story of the ultra-modern girl, her wild quest for adventure and her revolt against the laws of propriety. Ralph Graves and Theodore Roberts are seen in the excellent supporting cast.

"Souls for Sale," written and directed by Rupert Hughes and featuring an all-star cast headed by Eleanor Boardman and Richard Dix, is the attraction for the entire week at the Lyric theatre. Hughes, according to his custom, has sought in "Souls for Sale," for new applications of reality and truthful characterization to the screen. These qualities of reality and fidelity have marked all his photoplays and form the basis of the present one; however, in this film he has gone a step further and heightened the dramatic intensity of his narrative and ended it in a spectacular climax which is the talk of the film world.

As its Sunday and Monday offerings, the Lyric is showing Milton Sills and Wanda Hawley in "Burning Sands," a romantic story of the desert filled with love, thrills and swift dramatic action.

Absolutely novel and ingenious situations have been combined with skilful characterizations into "Bell Boy 12," one of the funniest and cleverest farces yet produced. Modern hotel life has been used as the background for this rapidly moving story of a young college chap who tries to earn his own living as a bell boy when a rich uncle disowns him after he tries to elope with a pretty actress. Douglas MacLean is seen in the leading role while Margaret Lonnie plays opposite.

At the Lyric
RUPERT Hughes has undoubtedly made his biggest picture out of the screen version of his novel of life in the motion picture colony in Hollywood, "Souls for Sale," which is the attraction today and for one week at the Lyric theatre.

One of the numerous funny situations in Al Wood's comedy hit, "Up in Mabel's Room," at the Faurot.

It is an absorbing tale of everyday human life made picturesque through its depiction of motion picture people, their activities and relationships.

Hughes has long been one of the country's most popular and most human novelists, and has excelled in printed form, on the stage and on the screen—in revealing life as it is lived by those with whom we come in daily contact. His attitude towards life, and toward his characters—that of the sympathetic, the often amused onlooker who wants to make us both love and understand them—has not been abandoned in the present photoplay. There are a number of incidents in "Souls for Sale" which are of a more or less melodramatic nature, but Hughes has kept these entirely credible and an integral part of his story.

As may be surmised by the title, the story deals with the unfounded belief that a girl must sell her soul to win fame in the movies. The heroine, pretty Eleanor Boardman, believes this, but finds souls are a drug on the market in the movie colony. However, she does obtain a part in the movies, and the film discloses how success is actually won before the camera.

The climax of the story comes with the burning of the big circus tent in which the entire cast was involved. The movie company in the circus when a real storm cuts loose and brings catastrophe to the director and his staff of players. Hughes' task of director was to picture this "storm" within a storm, which wrecks the circus. The big tent is set on fire by a bolt of lightning and in the resulting confusion and excitement, the villain meets his just end.

The cast is a long and most excellent one. Included in its leading roles are Eleanor Boardman, Barbara La Marr, Mae Busch, Richard Dix, Frank Mayo, Lew Cody and many others.

At the Quilna

THE Quilna is keeping up a pace in providing brilliant screen entertainment that must be a source of supreme satisfaction to its patrons. For this week it provides two favorite screen stars, supported by casts of distinguished players, in photoplays that have every element of surpassing entertainment.

"Prodigal Daughters," which opens a four-day engagement this afternoon, is Gloria Swanson's most recent Paramount picture. It is a startling tale of modern society, a jazzy, swift-moving story of a girl's rebellion against convention told amid scenes of dazzling magnificence and sensational thrills. It has its real dramatic appeal, for concealed beneath the froth and frilleries of its incidents is a strong lesson for both parent and child.

Miss Swanson is at her best as "Swiftie" Forbes. Her gown and her goings-on will both make you gasp at times, yet the critics say she has invested the role with a certain appeal that will excite your sympathy. In the supporting cast are Theodore Roberts, Ralph Graves, Vera Reynolds, Louise Dresser, Charles Clay, Robert Agnew, Maude Wayne, Jaquel Lanoe and Eric Mayne, who collectively supply another reason to expect great things of "Prodigal Daughters." Added features of the bill include the Quilna News and Asop Fabrics.

"The Woman of Bronze," in which Clara Kimball Young comes to the Quilna next Thursday, is a Metro picturization of the play by Paul Kester in which Margaret Anglin successfully toured for several years. King Vidor directed the production and the supporting cast includes John Bowers, Katherine McGuire and Lloyd Whitlock. Playing upon all strings of human emotion this picture is said to provide Miss Young with the best role she has had in some time. "The Woman of Bronze" will be accompanied by the Quilna News and a new Christie comedy, "Bucking Broadway."

The Rialto's Pictures

"ROSS OF CAMP FOUR," the Fox picture starring Charles Jones began a three day run Saturday at the Rialto theatre. It is a tensely vibrant melodrama and sweeping action from the very beginning rises thru a hurricane of incidents to a whirlwind, dynamic climax, the very center of the tornado is Charles Jones. He is ever surging ahead to some new effort that adds to his prowess as an actor of daredevil roles.

Jones tears along breakneck speed, doing things that one doubts are possible until they happen. There are many surprises in the film which would be spoiled if related here. Added to the adventure is a wealth of natural scenic beauty, furnishing fitting background for the romantic theme that is no little part of the screen offering. The girl is Fritz Brunette, who lends her charm admirably to the rugged work of Jones.

A Harold Lloyd comedy accompanies the production.

At the Majestic

SOFT nights on the desert, the gay life of Cairo, dark skins and white, love and intrigue, mingle in "Burning Sands," George Melford's Paramount special production featuring Wanda Hawley and Milton Sills which opens a two day engagement today at the Majestic theatre. It has the atmosphere and charm of "The Sheikh," but an entirely new set of characters and situations.

The picture has as its central character Daniel Lane, a student and philosopher who lives among the Arabs and who, by his insight and sympathy learns to know them as the ordinary man never does, and so finds in them so much to admire. Lane is a splendid character, sympathetically portrayed by Sills. The other featured part, that of Muriel was allotted to Wanda Hawley. Muriel is the present-day type of pleasure-loving, materialistic young woman, who refers to herself as "emancipated," but who is really a slave to her whims and desire. She is an English girl, the daughter of Lord Blair, His Majesty's "Chief Commissioner" to Egypt and the Sudan. Muriel, petite and spoiled, meets Lane, and out of the encounter of these contrasting characters grows the drama. Lane does not flatter; he admires, but in silence, because while he realized Muriel's great charm, he is convinced that it would be a great mistake for him to yield to it.

The story rises to its climax as Muriel, in love with Lane and baffled by his indifference, determines to break it down by flouting convention and going to see him at his oasis in the desert. There is an attack by renegade Arabs and many thrilling incidents follow until Muriel and Lane are finally brought together on a sound footing of mutual admiration and esteem.

Pathe has issued a novel campaign book for exploitation of Ruth Roland's new serial, "Haunted Valley." It includes a night mask which kiddies can slip on over the ears in an instant.

WORK OF REAL MOVIE COMEDIANS IS SEEN IN "BELL BOY 13"

INCE PLAY APPEARING AT SIGMA

Comedy, Romance, Thrills — Norma Talmadge To Be Seen In "Within the Law"

OCCASIONALLY a producer has upon the happy combination of having comedy situations worked out by real comedians. Thomas H. Ince has accomplished this in his new comedy picture, "Bell Boy 13," appearing at the Sigma the last times today. The picture does not rely upon beautiful scenery or gripping drama to carry its story, but rather upon the most entertaining way.

The plot spins about an uncle who disinherits his nephew because he does not wish him to marry the girl he loves. Then there is the girl who is intercepted by the uncle just in time to have the same uncle on the honeymoon alone. The boy following his love, only to learn that she will not marry him without his uncle's consent. When he does a bellhop's uniform, however, he turns the tables in such a manner that the boy soon has his poor uncle begging for mercy. Douglas MacLean's portrayal is one of the funniest of his career. He has a great many splendid comedy characteristics to his credit, but the part of the boy in "Bell Boy 13," gives him an opportunity for the sort of fun making at which he shines. Margaret Loomis has the role of the girl who elopes with herself, and John Sterling adds a goodly portion of mirth in the role of the uncle.

Starting Monday at the Sigma and continuing until Saturday, Norma Talmadge will be seen in her latest release, "Within the Law," adapted from the stage play by Bayard Veiller. Miss Talmadge portrays Mary Turner, a shop girl sent to prison for a department store theft of which she is innocent. After serving her sentence she seeks employment in New York, but always she is turned down, with the police constantly hounding her. Discouraged, she attempts drowning and is rescued by Joe Carson, a former prison companion, who, with Aggie Lynch, a former prison companion, induces her to join a gang of blackmailers. Always, however, does Mary keep "within the law" and this leads to one of the most amazingly dramatic romances ever brought to the screen.

Jack Mulhall appears opposite as Nick Gilder, selected as one of Mary Turner's "victims" in the exercise of her specialty — breach of promise suits.

Other important parts are played by Lew Cody, Eileen Percy, DeWitt Jennings, Lincoln Plummer and others.

VAUDEVILLE AT NEW ORPHEUM

Continuing the summer policy of presenting Sunday vaudeville, Manager Shaw of the New Orpheum Theatre announces five splendid acts as the attraction for Sunday only.

Barbanks Trio, which has recently concluded a tour of the Shubert circuit, will offer a specialty that contains everything a vaudeville fan could wish for in good entertainment. Their offering consists of real banjo picking, saxophone playing and enough comedy, singing and elaborate stage settings to make an act long to be remembered.

Rufus and Avery are well known Lima theatre-goers, having appeared here with various productions. The act is entirely new and unique, will give his famous "rube" character sketch. A laugh a minute is promised by the Ramez-Avery combination.

Casson Brothers and Marie have a Jeropichorean specialty that is new and surrounded with beautiful stage settings and a wealth of personality, this is one of the outstanding vaudeville features of the season.

"Study in Case," is the title of the comedy offering presented by Lorraine and Byron direct from the New Palace Theatre in Cleveland. The act affords these clever comedians an opportunity to display their Ethiopian qualities and always registers 100 per cent on any vaudeville bill.

To conclude the excellent program, Manager Shaw has obtained the wire classic billed as "Class, Learning and Class." Many surprises are offered the audience until the fall of the curtain.

A two reel comedy will precede the program. There will be three reserved shows at 2:30, 7:30 and 10:15 p. m. Seat sale opens Sunday at noon.

"MABEL'S ROOM" AT FAUROT

When Wilson Collison and Otto Busch settled down to write "Mabel's Room," the world-famous comedy that is to be the feature attraction at the Faurot Opera house this week starting with matinee only, they must have determined to carry into it all the legitimate fun they could conceit. That they have accomplished this is evidenced by the reputation this bill had first in New York and afterward on its road tour.

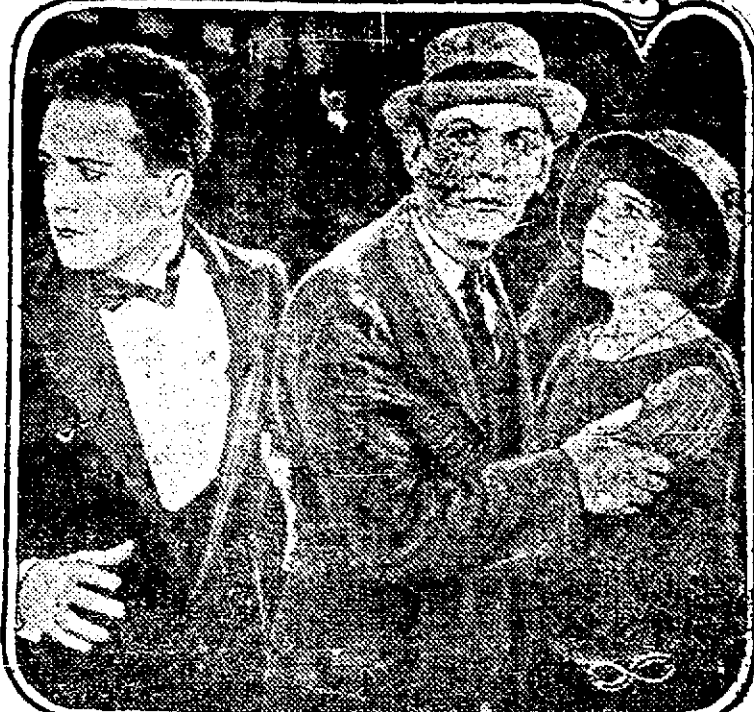

It stands as one of the funniest comedies that has ever been written in the manner in which the Hawkins-Ball Co. is planning to present it will assure a production well above the average.

Managers Hawkins and Ball have given orders that no expense be spared to make the presentation one that will be remembered by patrons of the Faurot.

The plot of the play is based on the story of a "harmless little pink cheek" given to Mabel Essington by Richard Dix, Barbara La Marr, Eleanor Boardman and Frank Mayo in "Souls For Sale" at the Lyric this week.

AUTOMOBILE SECTION

WARNING TO AUTO OPERATORS

Safety Equipment Needs Brains to Help Avert Accidents

Meeting the general public demand for safer automobiling is foolishly considered by altogether too many motorists to be merely a matter of equipping their cars with the various protective devices which the market offers and letting it go at that, according to Fred H. Gale, veteran motorist and executive secretary of the National Motorists Association.

"They fail to appreciate the fact," says Gale, "that with the increasing complexity of traffic these devices serve to offset only the increase in accidents, and that if conditions are to be improved drivers must recognize the personal elements as still being of the utmost importance. Failing to grasp the significance of the situation, the average driver falls into the habit of expecting too much from the protective equipment on his car. Thus a new hazard is chalked up to the discredit of motorists."

Mr. Gale's opinions on the average motorist's lack of cooperation with this safety equipment were voiced last week in Washington by members of the National Capital division of the N. M. A. Some new safety thoughts were expressed. Continuing he said, in part:

"The use of bumpers, for instance, is evidence of a trend toward safer and less troublesome motoring, but the growing tendency on the part of drivers of bumper-equipped cars to take risks which they would not take were the cars unprotected reveals serious misconception of the purpose of safety devices."

"During the past winter, investigators of the National Motorists Association were amazed at the high speed which drivers averaged when their machines were chain-equipped. Where motorists were so imprudent as to drive without chains over wet and slippery streets, the average speed fell just below the twenty miles per hour. The average for chain-equipped cars was twenty-five miles per hour, and—on certain streets—frequently higher."

"The purpose in equipping a car with chains is that by so doing the man who is driving at eighteen miles per hour in rain or snow can do so without the danger of skidding or failure to get traction when he is obliged to stop suddenly. Thus the moment a driver equips his car with such a safety device and exceeds this speed he introduces a new element of danger; he out-drives the safety limits of the protective device."

"The roughest experiment will show a driver that in driving thirty miles per hour, chain-equipped, he cannot stop any quicker than when driving eighteen miles an hour, with bare tires. It should be evidence enough that the purpose of chains is to make safe driving safer, rather than to make reckless driving a little less reckless.

"This under-recklessness which is so frequently observed when a driver adds some safety device to his car the National Motorists Association recognized as a plain case of over-confidence in protective equipment and a misconception of its real purpose. If automobile accidents are to be actually curtailed nothing can be gained by standing still; and that is exactly what happens when a driver adds a safety device and then becomes a little more careless. The device may offset this carelessness, but that is not its purpose. And progress in this direction can be had only when car owners equip their machines with safety devices and then drive as carefully as they would were they actually unprotected."

"This applies equally well to the use of automatic signaling devices. Since the adoption of direction signals and 'stop' lights there has been an increasing tendency on the part of drivers to stop more abruptly, commence right and left turns at unexpected times and cease hand signaling, which in many instances should be supplementary. In other words, the tendency is to place too much reliance upon signals, and rather than use these devices for what they were intended, make them cover a new set of hazards. As the National Motorists Association has discovered, the devices are doing their job well enough, but with the car owners overlooking their end of it the introduction of the new hazard of overconfidence prevents any actual improvement in conditions."

"With safety devices and brains working in unison conditions would quickly reach the point which protective equipment was designed to make possible."

FORD PRODUCTION BIG DURING MONTH OF APRIL

Production of Ford cars and trucks for domestic use during the week ending Tuesday, April 24, totaled 38,543. The highest day's production was 6,558.

Fordson Tractor production for the same period was 2,796.

EYESIGHT TESTS
Automobile drivers in France may have to undergo eyesight tests to insure against automobile accidents. A special committee, appointed by various medical associations here, has recommended to the government the adoption of such tests for all drivers, and the refusal of licenses to those suffering from certain eye troubles.

LIMITED TAXES WANTED
Automobiles ought to be taxed only so far as the revenue is spent for maintenance of improved highways and administration of state motor vehicle departments. This is advocated by the Motor Vehicle Conference Committee, representing various automobile organizations of the country. The state should be the sole taxing agency, the committee recommends.

BUICK OWNER IS SATISFIED

One of the basic reasons for the satisfaction which Buicks have given and are giving to individual owners lies in the very fact that sales have passed the million mark.

The immense demand for Buick models has made it possible to do many things for the benefit of the individual motorist. It has resulted in the steady development of huge plants at Flint, equipped to perform every detail of motor car construction with the utmost care and precision. It has made it possible to gather together an experienced body of skillful workers in every department and to retain them over a long period so that their whole interest is bound up in maintaining Buick standards. And it has insured that a maximum of quality and serviceability are built into every Buick car placed on the market.

This has been speedily recognized by an ever-increasing motoring public and even the huge production, which has passed the million point, has been inadequate to the demand. The motorist knows that every Buick model embodies the Buick standards of high quality, durability and correct design and Buick ability to meet all sorts of adverse conditions has been attested by thousands of owners, who have found that Buick measures up to every reasonable demand made on it.

High-Pressure Oiling—2 Gallons a Minute!

LUBRICATION is life—in motors. Because it defeats wear and vibration. Jewett has a hollow crankshaft, high-pressure system, forcing 2 gallons of oil per minute to all main and connecting rod bearings, and spraying the entire internal mechanism. Metal never rubs metal in a Jewett motor—a thin film of oil safeguards bearings.

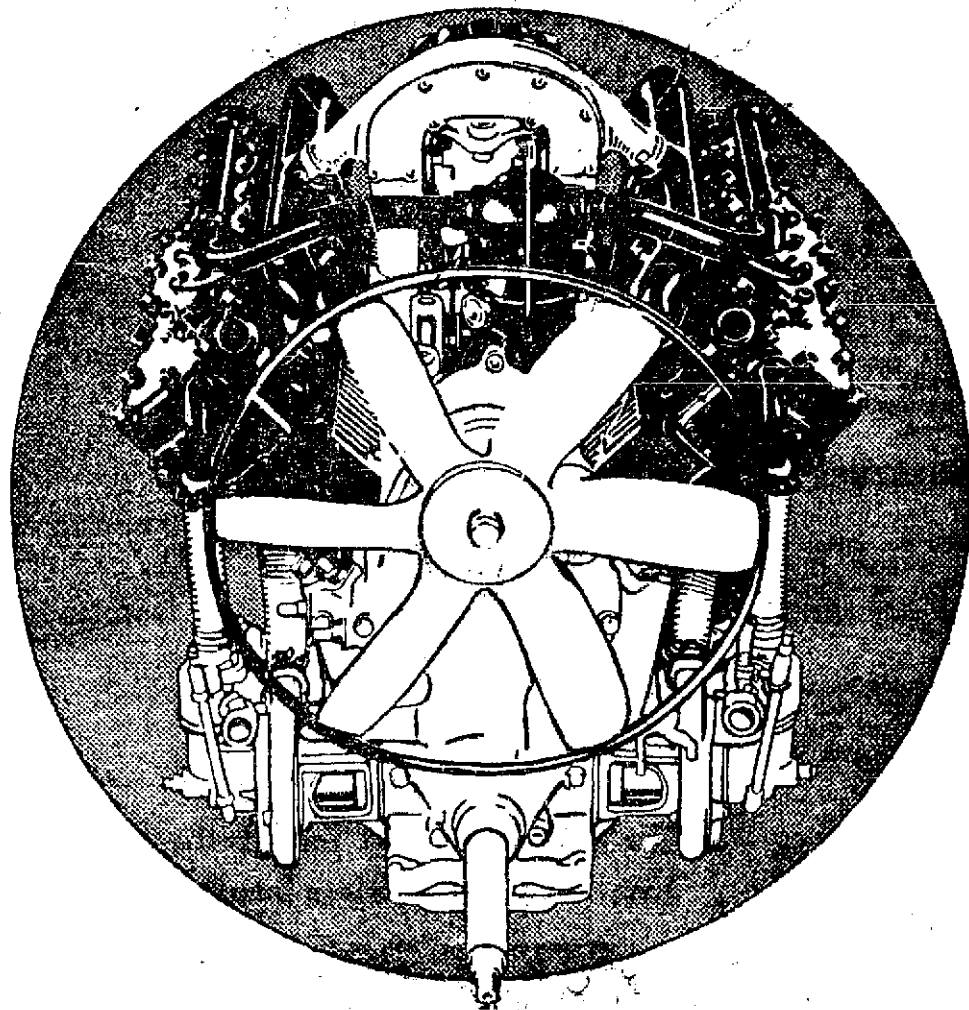

The results of such ideal lubrication are real smoothness and decided silence. Further, the continuous oil-stream tends to keep bearings cool, and Jewett takes long distances at high speeds, climbs continued grades, or trudges soft roads, without overheating. You know what happens to cars equipped with circulating and splash lubrication, under like conditions. Let us show you the Jewett! You try to overheat it.

Standard of the World

The Supremacy of the V-Type Principle

In 1914, Cadillac first devoted itself to the manufacture of motor cars equipped with V-Type ninety degree eight-cylinder engines which would be Standard of the World.

Since that time, this Company has produced, with constant refinements, more than 150,000 V-Type eight-cylinder engines and not one of them has ever been replaced by the factory for any reason.

Moreover, in recognition of the supremacy of the V-Type eight-cylinder principle, and of Cadillac's position as its leading exponent, more people have purchased Type 61 than all other cars combined at or above its price range.

SHOW AMERICANS SMALLER CARS

Indianapolis Races Will Have Many European Freaks

Europe is coming to teach Americans how to build small cars.

The occasion will be the international 500-mile race to be held at Indianapolis on Decoration Day. Then, for the first time since the war, foreign drivers will be at hand to take part in the event. South America (Italy, France, England and Germany) will participate on an equal basis—if not more so—with the American drivers. And from these, engineers expect to learn much about the construction of the small car.

For this will be a small-car race exclusively. The engine sizes are limited to 122 cubic inches piston displacement, quite a reduction from the 183-inch size of last year.

And who but the European engineers are greater experts at this kind of automobile? The war has made them so. High cost of fuel and machine parts have driven the foreign manufacturers to the small car. Now they have developed this motor to such a degree of perfection that America will have much to learn from them.

DEVELOPMENT SLOW
In the United States, not being so hard-pressed for economy, the engineers have not exerted as much effort toward the construction of a smaller, more economical motor. But the demand for such cars has been increasing so steadily that it has finally come up for serious consideration on this side of the Atlantic.

The American cars this year will be motor freaks. They will have only one man each, the mechanic being eliminated, and they will be just wide enough in body to allow the driver to squeeze into place. From the radiator tip to the rear axle pole car will be extremely streamlined to reduce wind resistance to a minimum.

What the European entries will look like is only a matter of conjecture. After the race, they will become subjects for investigation by American engineers.

ECONOMY SOUGHT

How to effect further economies in motor car construction will be the chief problem, the solution of which is expected to come thru the aid of these foreign cars. The Indianapolis and other races have already helped considerably toward the perfection of engine and carburetor designs and the reduction of fuel consumption.

In these respects the Indianapolis races are more than mere sporting events to the automobile driver. Their outcome points to the future development of the general run of automobiles seen on the roads today.

From the mechanical difficulties and experiences encountered on the race track will come the little corrections here and there that will make for better, more economical and cheaper automobiles in the future.

MAKE 139 LINCOLN CARS DURING A SINGLE WEEK

Under the super-quality manufacturing schedule in effect at the Lincoln division of the Ford Motor company, production for the week ending Tuesday, April 24, totaled 139 Lincoln cars.

TUBE WATER PAIL

A good section of an old inner tube may be cut off to make a water pail such as shown here. Heat one end until it becomes sticky enough to glue tightly together. Then turn the other end over a piece of wire that has been formed into a circle and handle. The tube will be handy for filling the radiator while on the highway.

Sixty electric lines operate motor buses in outlying territories. There were 90,000 taxicabs in the United States in 1922.

MOTORIZING SALE ORGANIZATIONS

Oakland Manager Gives Opinion on Sales Fleet Subject

The day is not far distant when large sales organizations and large service organizations will be as completely motorized with fleets of passenger cars as the great commercial and trucking houses are with fleets of trucks.

C. J. Nephler, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car company, Pontiac, Mich., makes this prediction as the result of letters from such organizations which have purchased Oakland two-passenger coupes and roadsters from their salesmen and service organizations. The sale of two-passenger coupes and roadsters so far this year has been the largest in the history of the Oakland company, Mr. Nephler reports.

"Summing up the reasons given for fleet passenger cars for salesmen," explains Mr. Nephler, "indicate that these cars increase as much as 25 per cent the number of calls made in the city and as much as 50 per cent in the rural districts and small towns, and consequently the same higher percentage of sales. They are economical because they increase sales."

"Incidentally, too, we are told that the use of passenger cars by salesmen strengthens the morale of the sales organization, and the self-respect of the salesmen makes them like their positions better, and often gains for them a greater respect from their customers."

The general opinion seems to be to standardize on one make of car, noted for performance, endurance and economy, and keep these cars always on hand to keep the cars tuned up. This has been found profitable than to encourage salesmen to purchase motor cars and allow them to keep their own cars. This enables the company to keep closer tabs on the cars at all times. This system also allows the more economical purchasing of insurance, tires, tubes, gasoline, oil, etc., thru one central organization."

FORD WILL BREAK OWN RECORD

Million and Half Cars This Year is Prediction of Officials

Sale of Ford cars and trucks in the United States alone for the first quarter of 1923 reached the enormous total of 395,962, the greatest sales record in the history of the Ford Motor company for a similar period of months. This is an increase of 125 per cent over the same months last year when Ford retail deliveries totaled 168,500.

Even these stupendous figures do not indicate the number of sales which could have been made had production facilities been greater. Every month dealer requirements have been far in excess of the company's manufacturing ability. For May dealers' orders reached the enormous figure of 266,000 Ford cars and trucks.

Following the expenditure of millions of dollars for new machinery, expansion of manufacturing units and enlargement of assembly plants, necessary to maintain the exacting high standards of Ford manufacture, production has been gradually increased since the first of the year until at present the company is operating on a schedule in excess of 6,500 completed cars and trucks a day.

While reservations are now being put on early predictions that this year would see 2,000,000 cars and trucks produced in the United States, increasing demand for Ford products will, all indications are, keep production at capacity rate for the remainder of the year, bringing it well over the million and a half mark by January 1 next, maintaining the established Ford percentage of producing as many cars and trucks as all other manufacturers combined.

NEW NASH FOUR IS NOTED CAR

Those visitors at the Automobile Show whose tastes incline them toward the highest in quality, yet whose judgment dictates a certain degree of conservatism, are expressing marked interest in the Nash Four. The unusual interest exhibited this year is due to the splendid account this car has given of itself in the hands of owners since its introduction nearly three years ago. This fact, together with the many improvements and refinements, has created a demand for the Nash Four that has made necessary plant extensions.

The Nash Four is built in five body styles, three open models and two closed cars, each mounted on a chassis of 112 inch wheelbase. The new Sport Model, the five passenger touring car, and the two passenger roadster comprise the open cars in the Nash Four line. The enclosed cars are the five passenger Carciolo and the five passenger Sedan. These models are all equipped with the Nash perfected valve-in-head motor, the power and smoothness of which have been accorded frank admiration. Recent refinements have resulted in a motor so smooth at all engine speeds as to amaze seasoned automobile men who for years have driven and handled four cylinder cars of high price.

"There is no question," says E. H. McCarthy, sales manager of The Nash Motors Co., "but that the Nash Four today occupies a field entirely its own. The Nash engineering and production departments have combined to produce a four cylinder car, so smooth in operation so fine in appearance and so comfortable in riding qualities as to eclipse anything heretofore deemed possible even in much higher price fields."

The show visitor's first impression of the Nash Four touring car for five passengers is one of beauty and bigness. This is due to the handsome body lines, set off by new type barrel head lamps, parking lamps of the same design, genuine leather upholstery, low handsome top, large steering wheel and 33x1 inch cord tires. The doors are wide, the floor room is ample and the broad deep seat cushions mean spacious comfort.

Riding comfort in the Nash is assured by the Nash overriding springs with which all models, open and closed are equipped.

Economy of operation and upkeep is an outstanding attribute of the Nash Four. This together with low first cost, makes a distinct appeal to the owner. The perfect balance of the car, its powerful and flexible motor, its easy-operating clutch and its short turning radius, combine to the comfort and pleasure of the driver.

Available feature of this model is the one man low set top with its large single rear window, stretched by twenty-four. The curtains fit snugly and all four open with the doors. The curtain panels are set lengthwise, giving clear vision. There is a pocket in the top where curtains are stored smoothly when not in use.

So great has been the demand for the Nash Four that the Nash four cylinder car factory at Milwaukee is being practically doubled in size. This will mean greatly increased facilities for production when the buildings now under construction are completed.

DEVELOPMENT IN RUBBER TRADE

A comparison of tire service standards today with those of ten or fifteen years ago reveals the fact that the development in the rubber industry has been most astonishing.

The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company points out that the developments in the rubber industry have been more revolutionary from an engineering standpoint and more beneficial to the world than those of any other industry in the same length of time.

The chemist has played one of the most important parts in this business. On him rests the responsibility of having brought tires out of the 2500 and 4000 mile class into a service range three and four times larger.

In the Goodrich factories at Akron there is one of the largest and most completely equipped chemical laboratories in the country. In this laboratory a large staff of chemists, physicists and experimental engineers are constantly studying new materials and their action in connection with rubber compounds. There is a huge testing laboratory also, where new mixtures are vulcanized and put thru tests to determine wear, strength and deterioration. These tests provide conditions of actual service.

A section of the rubber chemist's laboratory contains miniature machines for mixing compounds, milling and vulcanizing. These machines, tho in some cases resemble toy models, are the same principle as the mammoth machines used in the factory—and they do practically the same work except on a smaller scale.

In this section the chemist obtains the fundamental information that will enable him to know his experiment will work on a big scale.

OAKLAND COUPES FOR SALESMEN

The day is not far distant when large sales organizations and large service organizations will be as completely motorized with fleets of passenger cars as the great commercial and trucking houses are with fleets of trucks.

C. J. Nephler, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car company, Pontiac, Mich., makes this prediction as the result of letters from such organizations which have purchased Oakland two-passenger coupes and roadsters from their salesmen and service organizations. The sale of two-passenger coupes and roadsters so far this year has been the largest in the history of the Oakland company, Mr. Nephler reports.

"Summing up the reasons given for fleet passenger cars for salesmen," explains Mr. Nephler, "indicate that these cars increase as much as 25 per cent the number of calls made in the city and as much as 50 per cent in the rural districts and small towns, and consequently the same higher percentage of sales. They are economical because they increase sales."

"Incidentally, too, we are told that the use of passenger cars by salesmen strengthens the morale of the sales organization, and the self-respect of the salesmen makes them like their positions better, and often gains for them a greater respect from their customers."

"The general opinion seems to be to standardize on one make of car, noted for performance, endurance and economy, and keep these cars in the same station, with repair men always on hand to keep the cars tuned up. This has been found more profitable than to encourage salesmen to purchase motor cars and allow them so much per mile, as it enables the company to keep closer tabs on the cars at all times. This system also allows the more economical purchasing of insurance, tires, tubes, gasoline, oil, etc., thru one central organization."

DODGE BROTHERS TOURING CAR

To those who thoroughly enjoy the out-of-doors, Dodge Brothers Touring Car represents tens of thousands of invigorating miles in the open air.

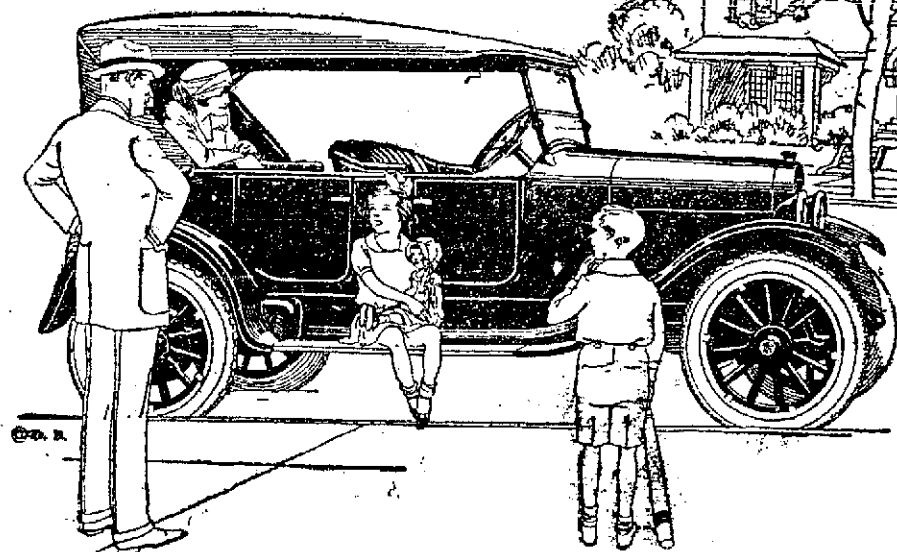

And owners who have had long experience with the car, know how trouble-free those miles are, and how little it costs to enjoy them.

They know, too, how light and convenient the Touring Car is and how easily cleaned.

Dodge Brothers power plant, the all-steel body, the permanent baked-on enamel finish, the genuine leather upholstery—all combine to explain why more than 850,000 owners almost invariably speak of the car in terms of highest praise.

STUTZ SIX

It's a Great Car

A Real Surprise

Lowest-priced cars have nothing to boast when the economy of the Stutz Six is mentioned. Owners enthusiastically admit that it exceeds even their highest expectations.

"Our gasoline mileage has been so great that neither you nor any other factory could have made me believe it possible if we had not actually observed it ourselves," writes one. And this is the consensus of all Stutz Six owners who by their own reports verify the universal average of from 16 to 20 miles per gallon.

SALES OF STUTZ NEW ELCAR 1923 CARS INCREASING MODELS IN

Surpassing every anticipation, the sale of Stutz cars continues to show an increase month after month. The records of the Stutz Motor Company of America, Inc., which are made through the retail sales made throughout the country now confirm the statement that the number of Stutz cars sold this year have almost equaled the total sales for the entire year of 1922.

In no small measure the addition of a popular-priced six-cylinder car has contributed to this remarkable increase in Stutz sales. However, the higher-priced Speedway and sport models continue to mount sales each month, so that previous records on these models have been left far in the wake.

Besides, the Stutz company now includes a comprehensive assortment of enclosed models in its line of both four and sixes, and the extreme small differential in price between these enclosed cars and the open models has made them exceedingly attractive.

At the present rate, production of cars and the corresponding retail sales of the Stutz product for all sales of the year should more than equal those of last year. April was one of the largest months in the history of the Stutz company and the orders now on file, May and June should set similar records.

With hundreds of the Stutz Sixes now in owner's hands and the accuracy check which the factory itself keeps on the performance of all cars shipped from the factory, insuring the most astounding record for preference and economy in service the Stutz company, with its national and industrial reputation and the support which comes from the control of it, should advance far forward in the ranks of automobile builders this year and occupy an even more important place in the industry than ever before.

RICKENBACKER PROVES IN TEST

DETROIT—A seven-day motor non-stop run by a Rickenbacker Six standard touring car, was completed May 18th at San Diego, Calif.

In honor of this achievement, and as a compliment to their friend, Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, American Ace of Aces, Lieut. Kelly and McEwen, army aviators, who made the recent non-stop trans-continental aeroplane trip, which is a world's record, and who also established several other auto records recently, took the lead and drove the Rickenbacker Six the last ten miles of its test.

The test was conducted by the Lee Motor Company, Rickenbacker distributor in San Diego, Calif., and the total distance made was four thousand and one hundred and forty-eight miles in two hundred and sixty-eight hours. The test was made over ordinary roads of San Diego co., except the last forty-two miles run, which was over the city streets and the famous half of the city of San Diego.

It showed an average of nineteen and four tenths miles per gallon of gas.

Just to prove that such a test was a real ordeal for the "Hot in the Tank" car, Lieutenants Kelly and McEwen drove the last twenty miles at speeds from fifty to sixty miles per hour.

Elcar sales and service, the Elcar distributor in Lima has compiled statistics to prove that the motor cars of the nation in 1923 will total three times the passenger mileage of all railroad facilities.

"The automobile is no longer the second line of transportation," said Mr. O. E. Ross. "It is unquestionably first. In volume of passenger traffic handled and in capacity of cars and the extent of finished road-bed. There are today 55,250 railroad passenger coaches in use having a seating capacity of 2,270,000 passengers. The seating capacity of 9,500,000 automobiles now in use (a very conservative estimate) is 47,000,000.

"Based on records for the preceding five years there should have been 47,000,000,000 passenger miles to the credit of rail facilities in 1922. The average number of passengers is two on the average annual mileage is 6,000. Hence the motor car must be credited with 114 million passenger miles for the same year.

"Another phase of motor car development is interesting. Government statistics demonstrate that the total railroad mileage of the country is 237,100 while the hard surfaced road mileage is 315,209. This is farther proof of the indispensable transportation factor that the motor car has become in the past ten years."

STUTZ PLEASES MOVIE STARS

CHICAGO—When Jack and Marilyn met after a six-months parting, a second honeymoon was inaugurated. No Overland Limited carried their freight of happiness, however, but a brand new four-passenger Stutz Speedway model.

"About the only time we have to ourselves," said Marilyn, "is when in our car. And, believe me, it's fun just to pal around with Jack by our lonesome. He and the Stutz are the best company in the world."

The dainty musical comedy star is continuing to break all records in "Sally," most successful of all of Florenz Ziegfeld's theatrical ventures, while Jack performs must ply his trade at Hollywood, two thousand miles away.

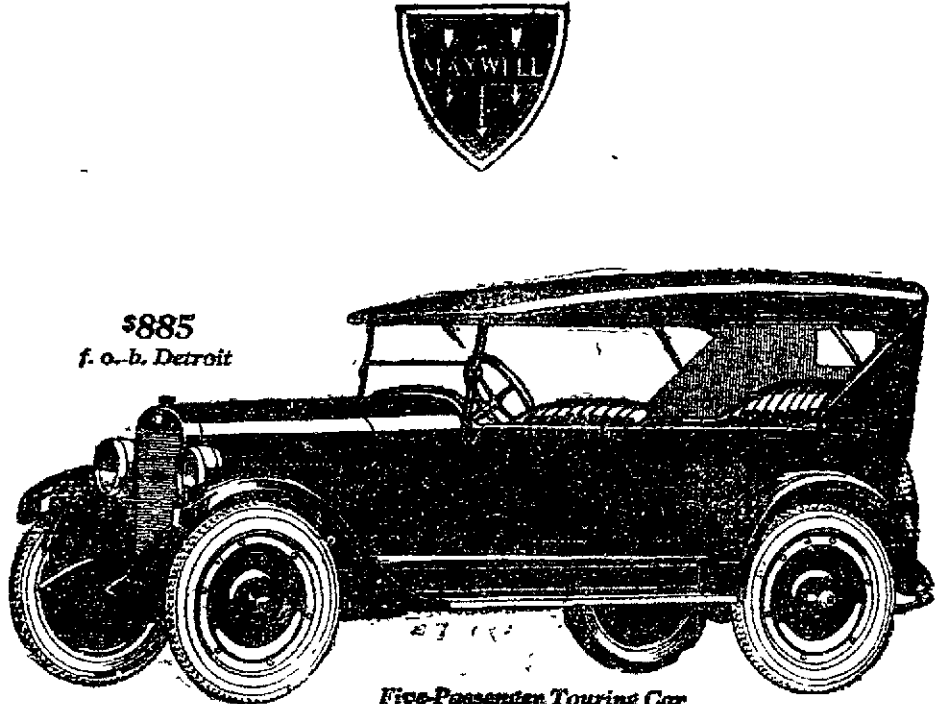

So it is that these two principals of the most romantic of all stage alliances see each other almost less than anybody* of their acquaintances. "Which," says Jack, "is not so good."

All the more delightful are those rare occasions when Jack is able to knock off work for a couple of weeks and speed East for a visit with his loveliest of brides. Then comes the call of the open road, of deserted woodland, of peaceful countryside. And the Stutz takes them there.

IF YOU ARE DISSATISFIED WITH LIFE, STUDY MASSON'S PHILOSOPHY.

into a most engaging work on applied psychology, Masson has tried the application upon himself.

This book is recommended to everyone who is at all dissatisfied with life, with all those who are not entirely satisfied with life stand so what they may be counted?

Explorations into Masson's philosophy has taken up much of the time that was planned for a review of fiction. This non-fiction work is non fiction.

Several very worthwhile novels have been only partly read because friend presented the reviewer with a copy of Irving Cobb's "Slickers." Intending only to glance at it I did not get far from the cover. Any newspaperman would read any other person to whom he romance of newspaper work appeals.

I recommend that the last chapter "The Lonesome Laugh," be omitted from a reading of the book as a whole. It seems out of place in this particular volume.

Received a note from the author of "Wasteful Water Tower," in which he tells why he has remained anonymous. He wrote a book once before. An author receives six free copies. This author had many relatives and acquaintances. Each wanted an autographed copy. This resulted in a lot of trouble and after-dinner speeches he had little time to himself. Remaining anonymous, he has saved himself much trouble.

A critical friend wrote in to say that in the review of "Wasteful Water Tower," said nothing of its literary quality. My only reply is,

I didn't have to refer to the dictionary once while reading it. I did have to puzzle over one or two words which were English or Latin phrase.

Whenever an author seeks to teach me under the guise of writing fiction, I generally pass up his book. I take my religion straight. I like my fiction the same way. I read past literature as I read past science. I don't know K. Jerome, but noticed that the sermon was coming a little later on.

lead lines and fittings therefor, all radiators and equipment therefor, all piping in buildings and steam lines and appliances and equipment therefor, All radiators and equipment therefor, one (1) cold water storage tank and all ice casing and equipment therefor, one (1) cistern and equipment therefor, one (1) brine condenser and equipment therefor, one (1) ice storage room and all cold water storage tanks and all cold water rooms, with all pipes and coils and equipment therefor, one water waste equipment, two refrigerating machines, all piping in building and equipment therefor, one milk separator, one milk machine, one sanitary milk piping and equipment for pasteurizing room and except cooking room.

But "Anthony John" was not a Union-coated preacher. The man who was born poor and struggled to climb to wealth and influence. He had to be made a member of the House of Lords, he abandons that he has gained to live again among the poor and to help them. This book seems to me to be a very timely and inspiring work that Jerome's other work of spiritual regeneration. "The Passions of the Third Floor Back."

G. O. P. LEADERS AWAIT REACTION ON HARDING COURT PLAN

STATE OF DOUBT RULES SOLONS

Consult Personal Interests Before Taking Stand

DONAHEY ASKS SHOWDOWN

Cartoon Harvey, Home from England, Evidences Temper

(BY J. W. FISHER)

There is reason to believe that the press boys in Washington are getting their wires seriously crossed concerning the trend of affairs politically in Ohio since Jim Fawcett is no longer here and there among them to get them right on the Buckeye state situation.

Of the several analyses of the state of the Ohio congressional delegation on the question of approval or disapproval of President Harding's international court of arbitration, not one looked thus far has been absolutely correct; in fact, it would be impossible to present a true statement of the situation at this exact minute.

The reason is simple. It's this: All of the members of congress have decided on which side of the fence they will drop. Many of them are perched on the topmost rail, making a fine side today and on the other tomorrow, endeavoring to gather momentum for a leap, one way or another.

For the most part, congressmen are just ordinary representatives of a happy family. They consult their interests first, that's considered human nature and the application of human sense in politics. Most of them look before they leap. And the reason there has not been a leap is because since the president took his stand for a principle, he has been a little more than the center of a split in the Republican camp on the world court issue. In fact, the schism has developed. It is a reality the moment the president was driven into the open by Senator Borah and others who have been clamoring for something in the way of tearing down the wall of isolation erected by the G. O. P. leaders. While there is no denying that for the most part the members of the Ohio delegation will line up behind the president on the court question, it must not be taken for granted that just because others are silent, they are for it. Not by any manner of means. Refusal to be quoted means there is extant some doubt as to the best plan to pursue.

There is no occasion for hurry on the part of members of congress in declaring for or against the Harding proposal. Those who did not look before they leaped may live to be sorry. Others, sensing something indefinable, but disconcerting, are using the ointment of caution freely, preferring to be certain before committing themselves.

When a showdown comes, as it must come eventually, they'll probably know just where they desire to land. In the meantime, alignment is coming slowly. There'll be opposition not now believed possible. The surprising thing is that opposition in his own party ranks to the president's court proposal is most pronounced in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, New York and other northern states, while in Ohio 14 of the Republican members of congress have been listed as friendly to the world court plan.

Political analysts, taking a poll of the situation, announce that General John C. Speaks, of Columbus, 12th district and Frank Murphy, 18th district, are the only ones of the 10 members opposed to the Harding plan. That there is at least one more at this time is certain, while others are on the fence, wavering in doubt. If progressive Republican can succeed in proving to Ohio Congressmen that the people generally are not warming up to the court plan, you may confidently look for an exodus from the old ship.

United States Senators F. B. Willis and Simeon D. Fess have lined up with the president. Congressman Theodore Burton of the Cleveland district has also come out into the open. Others are waiting, having their own interests in mind for decision before flopping on either side. In New York and Illinois the United States senators are split on the question, while Indiana, Massachusetts, Iowa, Connecticut and other states are doubtful.

In view of the fact that Democratic members of congress from Ohio adhere to the view that the League should be adopted as a whole or not at all, opposition to the Harding plan of amputating the court clause from the league proper is not viewed with enthusiasm. However, there is a large contingent of Democratic point of the president to steal Democratic thunder, but he is shattering his own party in so doing.

Rightfully dissatisfied with the evasion of the office of the attorney general of the direct question as to whether or not the senate is in session while the senate is in session and when it is not in session. Governor Donahey has directed a query to the Hon. C. C. Crabbe, dispenser of legal opinions.

Governor Donahey wants a flat re-indefinite, but disconcerting, reply; he is tired of wiggling and wobbling. The chief executive is determined to be certain before committing himself.

A ruling given several days ago by Crabbe aided the Republican majority of the general assembly in hog-tying the Governor. Three questions put to Crabbe by Governor Donahey forced that incumbent to make a move. He was asked to clear the atmosphere on the question as to whether the governor was robbed of his right to make appointments of officials. The opinion given was such as to thwart Governor Donahey in his effort to appoint William A. Hopkins of Cincinnati as a member of the state utilities commission, to succeed Charles C. Marshall of Sidney.

The striking feature of the opinion by Crabbe was a complete absence of any discussion as to whether or not the senate was in session during the so-called recess of five minutes. If the bodies come back into session, it will be as of April 28, 1923, although the real calendar day may be a year later, or as late as December 29, 1924. While the attorney general would not or did not say that the Theodore Burton of the Cleveland district is in session, the inference is left that he holds the body is in session and that he acts on the assumption that it is.

Governor Donahey is not only helpless so far as getting the utilities commission to function properly, if it does not desire to do so, but he is unable to make any other appointments that come under the provisions of the law which provides for action of that sort when vacancies occur "when the senate is not in session."

Thus, it is important that Crabbe be forced to declare, officially, from the league proper is not viewed with enthusiasm. However, there is a large contingent of Democratic point

George Harvey, American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, London, England, is home again. Whether he brought along his knee breeches is unimportant. The engrossing fact is that Gawge is again on home soil, and that clever newspapermen are helping him to do something at which he needs no help whatever—losing his temper.

He was met at the pier by political writers who scouted a good story. It was bruited about that Harvey had been recalled and that he would be given the opportunity to resign, to save his face. The maker of cartoons in the 1920 campaign which shocked the sensibilities of people who believe in decency even in politics and for which he was rewarded by appointment to the ambassadorial position in England, was grilled by correspondents on the question of his impending resignation.

As was to be expected, Harvey lost his temper. He finally admitted that he would resign, but refused to say when. Gawge naively called attention to the fact that ambassadors usually resign; that all of his predecessors save one resigned—and he died.

When reporters told Harvey that the legislatures of Massachusetts and New York had been called upon to act on a resolution demanding his recall because of his pro-British attitude, he declared, "I am an American, but I am not a damned fool!" Realizing the flareup tone of his remark Harvey added, laughingly, "I can guarantee the first part of my answer, but I am not so sure about the second part."

This man Harvey is the American person who attends high brow functions in England, attempts to make speeches and gets his foot in his mouth. He appears to be particularly interested in the question as to whether women have souls. The White House answered the question Harvey sidestepped. It was admitted that he came home to look after business affairs he hadn't time to give attention to on the occasion of his last visit.

In the interest of America's standing in England, it had been hoped that Harvey's visit home meant that he had been recalled to stay, but the White House appears to be deaf, dumb and blind concerning the impression England is getting of America generally from George Harvey in particular.

This conservator of peace, quiet and good order in politics, on several occasions in past months has quoted high up politicians and statesmen indirectly on the question of the possibility of the nomination of Henry Ford as the Democratic candidate for president in 1924.

In the beginning it looked like a flash in the pan, but when keen political analysts like United States Senator Pat H. Davis of Mississippi declare that conditions are such that the Detroit man has more than an even chance for the nomination, if he wants it, the belief is forced that there is something to it.

Altho Ford would be against the field should he enter and even tho he is looked upon as an interloper, Harrison believes the flivver maker would sweep the south and west. "I am not inflating a boom for him," Harrison declared, "nor am I committed to him or any other Democrat, but the fact remains he is tremendously strong among the voters."

Senator Harrison is accredited with being one of the shrewdest political observers in the Democratic ranks. He has just returned from a tour that carried him south and west. He declares Ford's strength is not suspected by most of the politicians.

"The south is for him on account of Muscle Shoals," Harrison said. "He would carry most of the southern states, in my opinion, possibly except Alabama, which would go to Underwood if he entered."

Ford refuses to say whether he will or will not run for president. Senator Harrison spent several hours with the manufacturing wizard of Detroit recently and found him ready to talk about almost everything save presidential possibilities. It is beginning to be believed pretty generally that Henry will make the effort in 1924, but that he is reticent now for the reason he does not wish to trot himself out too early and draw the fire of the battery of opposition among the friends of other candidates.

It appears now to be certain that the Democratic convention will be invaded by a host of candidates. Also, it appears likely that should the contending elements in the party give evidence of the same display of temper most of them showed in 1920, Ford could easily win out by playing them against one another.

Presence in Lima during the past week of John G. Price, former attorney general of Ohio, attending the ceremonies incident to the installation of officers of Lima Lodge of Elks, recalls an interesting bit of political history of the fall of 1922 and serves to bring to the fore a state of affairs now exciting which appears as a threatening cloud to the G. O. P. state of well-being.

Price was attorney general of Ohio before C. C. Crabbe, maker of the Crabbe act, stepped into his shoes. Judge Ben Hough, of the Ohio supreme court, was being attacked fore and aft all over Ohio for his part in the "four-to-three" vote in the supreme court, upholding the emergency clause of the Governor Harry L. Davis upper law, thereby preventing the people of Ohio from calling a referendum upon it.

Former Governor James M. Cox, in the course of the campaign, appeared as a speaker at Memorial hall in Columbus. There and then, with his facts marshaled and his ability as an orator in full play, he proceeded to tell some inside facts concerning the Davis upper in general and the boner pulled by Judge Hough in particular in helping to prevent the people from expressing their estimate of it via the ballot.

In other words, the former governor "hung Ben Hough's hide on the fence." That incident fired Attorney General Price to action. He had not raised his voice against the ripper and its rag tag emergency tail.

A little later, addressing a G. O. P. boom meeting, Price lauded Hough and flayed Cox. His remarks were sassy and his effort fired his Republican hearers to the wildest enthusiasm. It was believed that Price had saved the day for Ben Hough; that is, his political friends so believed.

That was some time before the election. The Cox-Price duel was forgotten by the politicians in the development of other features of the heated campaign. But the voters did not forget. When the opportunity presented itself they upheld the contention of Cox and rejected the argument of Price. They served notice on Judge Hough, previously one of the favored, that the state could very well get along without the services of any judge who was foolish enough to set aside the constitution. He was defeated. Other judges who voted with Hough must face the people in turn. They fear the result of the ordeal.

Most people probably haven't forgotten that during the term of William Howard Taft, as president of the United States, there was more than a little discussion concerning the question of reciprocity between this country and Canada.

Canada was offered an attractive arrangement for commercial reciprocity. It was proposed that if the Canadians would reduce or cancel customs duties on American goods, we would be equally kind to the products of our neighbor to the north. The dominion rejected the proffer. Because the Premier Laurier government favored it, Canada kicked out the government bag and baggage. We were held in suspicion then; feared and despised.

Now Canada wants what it then so indignantly rejected. Times have changed. But it's too late. The farm bloc in the senate has conceived the notion that if reciprocity should be set up, the American agriculturist would be ruined. Farmers of the country are making a brave fight for a living and prefer to take no chances.

It looks like a waste of time in the conduct of a so-called civil service examination over at Wapakoneta, to determine eligibles for appointment as postmaster, to succeed Ad. Schaffer, since Congressman John L. Cable has declared that he is "for George W. Hassenauer first, last and all the time."

It is rather foolish for anyone other than "fuzzies" to hear that lightning will strike in their neighborhood. Hassenauer, Edward Taylor and Reuben W. Wisener filed out the necessary blanks as applicants, while it is understood that Rolland Rogers, Charles Miller and Dr. I. M. Hurlburt reconsidered and will not be in at the finish.

Whom is the present assistant postmaster, while Reynolds is about the only real political friend Frank B. Willis had in Anglin-ee when he was a candidate for re-election as Governor some years ago. It probably figures that Willis, in gratitude, may succeed in upsetting the plans of Hassenauer, the county's G. O. P. leader. It's a pretty contest, since it has narrowed down to three—or, at the very least, to two. As it is not believed that Wisener can get anywhere, it is pretty safe to say, too, that Wapakoneta's next postmaster will be George W. Hassenauer.

Remembering the fate of those who in 1922 set aside the constitution so that the people would be prevented from saying yes or no on the Davis reorganization measure, Attorney General C. C. Crabbe has ruled that the Taft taxation measure, passed by the G. O. P. legislature over the veto of Governor A. V. Donahey, is not an emergency and that it is not immune from a referendum vote, under the provisions of the constitution.

As might be expected, the attorney general had a heap of trouble over the point in question with its author, but the London lawyer has no desire to take the chances faced by his predecessor in office. The Republican legislature was taught a valuable lesson in emergencies. It has finally sensed the fact that the people are not partial to hurriedly made laws so constructed that there is no appeal from the decision of the legislative body.

Crabbe saved his party a lot of trouble when he decided the constitution of Ohio is bigger than party desire.

Another piece of pie is ready to be picked up by a G. O. P. adherent in the Fourth congressional district. Congressman John L. Cable will likely have a whole lot to say about who it shall be, too.

Harold H. Grothman, of Mercerco, deputy internal revenue collector, has resigned, to assume a position with the City Loan and Savings company, in charge of that company's Marion office. Vacating the office has started a scramble among the Republicans. Grothman succeeded H. O. Mowery, a Democrat, who still re-

FLOWING GOLD

Calvin Gray occupies the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel in Lima. He makes friends with Gus Briskow, who has struck oil in Texas, and meets Ma Briskow, Allegheny, the daughter, and Ozark, the son. Gus Briskow, daughter of Gus Briskow, comes home from college and goes into the land business. She buys and sells for Colonel Henry Nelson, son of Bill Nelson, banker. This Briskow tells Gray of a trick that Henry Nelson works on him to beat him out of the sale of some land. Gray offers to take a hand against Nelson, who is his enemy.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"You know them Nelsons?"
"I know—Henry."
"He's hard-boiled 'n his old man. They got a lot of money behind 'em—too much money to act like he done with me. I sure hate to see him git that Evans lease for next to nothin', after the way he done. I'd call it cheatin', but—well, I can't handle it."

The man at the window wheeled suddenly and his face was white, his brows were drawn down. "By God!" he cried, tensely. "He won't get it. Where's that option?"
"I got it right here," Briskow handed over a paper. "An I got the bull title abstract, too. Had it all ready for Nelson."

When he had swiftly scanned the document, Gray said: "This deal means little to you, Briskow, but it means much to me, and I'll make it worth something to both of us. At first I thought the time was too short, but—I work best when I work fast. You've had your chance and failed. Now then, step aside and let a man run who knows how."

Mr. Roswell, president of the bank where Gray had first made himself known, was a shrewd, forceful man who had attained a position in business and arrived at a time of life when he could well afford to indulge his likes and dislikes.

Roswell had liked Gray upon their first meeting, and that liking had deepened. Owing to that fact, he had neglected to secure a report upon him, assuring himself that there was always time for such formalities. He was cordial today when Gray strode into his office bringing Gus Briskow with him.

The banker listened with interest to what he was told, then he studied the map that Briskow spread upon his desk showing the location of his own and other nearby wells.

"That looks like a sure thing," Roswell said, finally. "As sure as anything in oil can be. What is on your mind?"

"I'd like to get the opinion of the bank's oil expert," Gray told him. This was a matter easily disposed of; the expert was summoned and he rendered a prompt opinion. He knew the property; he considered it a cheap lease at a thousand dollars an acre. It was proven stuff and within thirty days it would probably triple in value. When he had gone, the banker smiled.

"Well, Gray," said he, "I know you'd land something good. You're a hustler. You'll make a fortune out of that land."

Gray handed him Gus Briskow's option, and the assignment thereof, the ink upon which was scarcely dry. "There's the joker. It expires tomorrow night and it will go to the Nelsons. They've double-crossed Mr. Briskow."

"Then don't let them get away with it. Take it yourself."

"It is now three o'clock and this is the golfing season in New York," Gray told him. "I couldn't reach

"No funds of your own available?"
"Not enough, at such short notice."
"Well?"
"That lease is worth one hundred and sixty thousand dollars, isn't it?"
The banker nodded. "I'm going to sell it before six o'clock for—eighty thousand. I know people here who will take it, but I've come first to you. Get together a little syndicate right here in the bank, and buy it. I'll agree to take it off your hands within thirty days at one hundred and sixty thousand dollars."
"Is your guaranty any good?"
"That is for you to determine."

"WHAT ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT?" SHE ROUGHLY DEMANDED.

Assume that it is not, and I'll better my first offer. I'll undertake to sell off the land in twenties right here in Lima, double your money, and divide the profits thereafter with you. It is a safe speculation and a quick one. You know I can cut it off."

Mr. Roswell considered briefly before replying. "There's no use denying that we've made money on deals like this—everybody has. So it's nothing new. There's a big play on Ranger stuff and we couldn't lose. But I know nothing about you except the little you've told me. When I go into a deal I put my trust more in the man than the prospect."

"And I trust my own judgment of human character more than that of strangers," Gray said, quickly. "So do you. Thirty days is a long time with me, and the oil business is just my speed. Permit me to remind you that time is flying and that I have given myself only three hours in which to turn this property."

"I like your energy," the banker confessed, "and I'm inclined to bet some of my own money on you. Now—he pushed a button on his desk—"let's see if there are any others here who feel as I do."

It was early evening when Gus Briskow returned to his wife's and his daughter's room at the Ajax. He slipped in quietly and sank into a chair.

"Mersey me! I thought you was run over," Ma Briskow exclaimed.

"I feel like I was," the nester declared with a grin. "Say! Mister Gray sold the Evans lease an'—we got money than ever."

"Then maybe you can afford a new suit," Allie told him. "You look like sin."

Her father nodded, but his mind was full of the incidents of that afternoon and he began at once to recount them. He told the story badly, but in a language that the women understood. He had not gone far, however, when the girl interrupted him to exclaim:

"Wait! Why Pat! You mean to say Mister Gray ain't got no money?"

"He has less 'n a hundred dollars. An' him livin' here like a king with everybody bowin' an' scrapin'!"

Ignoring the effect upon Allie of this intelligence, he continued his recital. "All I done was set around while him an' them bank people talked it over," he said, finally. "Then they got their lawyers in an' he examined the title papers. Seemed like he'd never git thru, but he did, an' they signed some things and we come out, an' Mister Gray told me I'd made forty-eight thousand dollars."

"Goodness me!" Ma Briskow's eyes widened. "Why, that Evans place ain't worth the taxes."

"It's more'n likely with a million. But think! Him tellin' me I'd made forty-eight thousand dollars! It gave me a jolt, an' I says I didn't make it. I told him I'd fell down an' turned the hull thing over to him. 'It's you, that's made forty-eight thousand,' I says."

"What?" Allie inquired, sharply. Then when her father had repeated himself, she asked with even greater intensity: "What'd he say to that? He didn't take it, did he?"

"He laughed like a queer an' says all I got to do to give him a good night's rest is to wire Henry Nelson the deal's closed. An' him with less 'n a hundred dollars!"

Allie spoke again in great relief. "Lord! You give me a turn," her expression altered, her lips parted in a slow smile. "So! He's pore, eh? Pore as we was. Well, I declare!" She rose and turned her back upon her father.

"No, he ain't pore," Briskow said, irritably. "Not now he ain't. I says it's his deal an' his money, an' we got plenty. An' I stuck to it."

Allie wheeled suddenly at this announcement. She uttered a cry of protest; then, "What are you talkin' about?" she roughly demanded.

"We had some argument an' I got kinds riled. Finally he says if I feel that way we'll go pardner. He wouldn't listen to nothin' else, an' that's how it stands. He made twenty-four thousand an' I—"

"You—You fool!"

Gus Briskow looked up with a start to find his daughter standing over him, her face ablaze, her deep bosom heaving. He stared at her in frank amazement, doubting his senses. Never had Allegheny used toward him a word, a tone like this, never had he seen her look as she did at this moment.

"Allie—Allie!" the mother gasped. She, too, was aghast. "You—you're talkin' to your pa?"

"You give him twenty-four thousand dollars? Give it to him? What do you do it for? What'd you—"

A harsh exclamation burst from the girl—to the astonished parents it sounded like an oath, but it could not have been—then she swung her head heavily about and rushed blindly into the next room, slamming the stout metal door behind her with a crash that threatened to unbalance it.

"Well, I be darned!" Gus Briskow turned a black, empty face upon the partners of his joy. "I—I never s'posed that girl would turn out—greedy."

CHAPTER IX

An Electric Wiggle Stick
Of all the oil excitement, that which occurred in North Texas was perhaps the most remarkable; at any rate, the world has never witnessed such scenes as were enacted there.

The strike at Ranger lit the fuse, the explosion came with the first rush of inflammable liquid from the Fowler farm at Burkhurnett.

"Buck" was a sleepy little town, dozing among parched wheat fields. The point was off it; nothing much more exciting than a crop failure ever happened there. The main topic of conversation was the weather, and as Mark Twain said, everybody talked about it, but nothing was done. Within sixty days this sleepy village became a roaring bedlam; every town lot was leased, derricks rose out of chicken runs, boilers painted in front yards, mobs of strangers surged through the streets and the air grew shrill with their bickerings.

Naturally a little country town like this could not hold the newcomers, therefore Wichita Falls became their headquarters. Here there were at least a few hotels and some sort of office quarters—sheds beneath which the shoring could take place—and there the herd assembled.

sides in Celina, but who is engaged in Lima as an expert accountant just at this time.

Charley Nauts, collector at Toledo port, is being made the subject of assaults by applicants and their friends for the place vacated by Grothman. Until an appointment is made and a long continued fight between the Republicans of Meyer and Darkecos settled, Nauts will probably wish Grothman had never heard of a better job to grab off.

Congressman John L. Cable, serving his second term as representative from the Fourth district, will likely not be impelled to try for a third term, considering the manner in which the people of the district have expressed themselves on that sort of proposition.

John has been flirting with the possibility of taking a flyer in the 1924 primary election as a candidate for governor, but there is nothing positive about it as yet.

His retirement as congressman will mean of course that a successor must be elected. In view of what has occurred in the past, it is taken as granted that the man who would win, either a Republican or a Democrat, must have well developed party principles and be free from alliances that afford even the faintest suspicion of friendliness to the liquor traffic.

Judge Emmett Jackson, of criminal court, believes he is that man. He will seek the Democratic nomination, to succeed Cable, it is stated.

Less than one month intervenes before the time specified by law for filing declarations of candidacy for political office comes to a close. In spite of that fact, there is no activity of any character, so far as has been apparent, that would indicate there is to be a grand rush for township and city places.

Full commissions of township officers are to be elected, survey assessors and there are two positions to be filled on the city commission. Only one candidate has announced himself for place as part of the C. A. Bingham official family, while in the townships there has been no move in the direction of places to be filled, so far as the board of elections has heard.

It is necessary for candidates to procure forms of declaration. The board of elections office in the Holmes block is the place to get them, but Chief Deputy Joe Madison and Clerk Art Morris declare the elevator men isn't kept busy carrying candidates in election board headquarters.

However, "business" is expected to pick up within a week or two.

Less than ten months away is the next presidential preferential primary election. Party leaders are beginning to take stock of the situation and perfect plans for 1924.

Ohio is seen in Washington as one of the states in which the result of the presidential primary will be most important and in which the campaign to be fought in both the Republican and Democratic ranks is likely to be quite spirited.

In Ohio the presidential primary will be held on April 29. This state will send 48 delegates to the national conventions of the two big parties, the fourth largest delegation from any single state. Due to the fact Ohio is President Harding's home state, it is conceded that the Buckeye primaries will be the most crucial in the battles to be fought in 19 state primary campaigns. Partic-

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO HER FRIEND, BETTY STOKLEY, IN PARIS

OH MY DEAR BETTY:
I am quite in hopes that I shall be able to persuade dad and mother to let me come over and see you, although I think for the sake of your novel you should be on this side of the Atlantic Ocean at present.

I am sure we are all sitting on a volcano that may blow up any minute. I have told this to Karl Whitney and he said, as he patted my shoulder, "Just sit tight. Little girl, and don't try to cross your bridges until you get to them." Isn't he clever?

I have been learning a lot about men since Leslie got married. With what she writes to mother, dad and me about Jack (and what she doesn't write!) and what I read between the lines, and what Karl Whitney tells me about himself and some of his friends, I am becoming a regular "woman of the world."

The more I see of Karl the more I can't understand why Leslie refused to marry him. He persuaded mother the other night to let me go with him to a dance at the Country Club and, although I was the youngest girl there, he never left me an instant to talk and flirt with the other women—and it wasn't because he didn't have a chance, either.

But to get back to Leslie's pearls. I can't think of anything else very long, for so many peculiar situations may crop up of which Karl and I did not dream when he gave them to me to present to her.

Here is one that has already happened. Jack came near knocking down a man the other night for looking at Leslie more than Jack thought he should. Leslie felt he was looking at her pearls. Of course he was. He probably was a gem expert. Sometimes I think my plan wasn't so bright after all.

Suppose Jack had really knocked the man down; then everything would have had to have been explained.

I am scared to death now for fear Leslie will break the string. That would be a calamity.

I can just hear Leslie in her grand ladyish way saying, as those two thousand-dollar-appeal beads roll around on the floor, "Oh, never mind, it is just a string of beads that my sister Alice gave me and it doesn't matter if you don't find them all."

And then when she takes them to the jeweler to be restringed! Oh my—oh my—

If that thing has got to come I hope I shall be in Europe with you. Do you suppose Leslie's having these pearls could be made a cause for divorce? I asked Karl about it the other night and for a little while I think he felt quite uncomfortable. Then what do you suppose he said?

"I wish, little girl, I had given them to you instead."

I was so happy I threw my arms around his neck and kissed him at the very thought.

He got all red and queer and said, "I think, Miss Alice, it is time for little girls like you to be at home."

I expect to be over there very soon and I'll tell you all the news. Will cable as soon as the family consents to my going.

Lovingly,
ALICE.
P. S.—Karl Whitney says he is going to England this summer.

Nurse Stacey's Suggestions to Middle Aged Women

MRS. H. STACEY
COLLINSVILLE, ILLINOIS

A MOST trying period of a woman's life is that of middle age, fraught with danger to some extent, and invariably with most annoying symptoms, such as hot-flashes, smothering spells, nervous troubles, irregularities and fainting spells.

When a woman like Nurse Stacey after many years of caring for the sick writes a letter of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound like the following, it should influence other women who are passing through the Change of Life to try it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a root and herb medicine especially adapted to act upon the feminine system. It helps nature to build up the weakened, nervous system, and enables women to pass this trying period with the least possible annoying symptoms.

Nurse Stacey's Letter Follows:

COLLINSVILLE, ILL.—"I could almost write a book in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In the first place my husband induced me to try it and I have continued taking it off and on for years. I have become a well woman from its use and am now taking it through the Change of Life just to be on the safe side. I first took it for backache and a weak condition of the whole system and I think it saved my life and my baby. She is now a mother and takes it herself and I think I can count as high as a hundred women I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to, as I am a practical nurse. Use my letter in any way you see fit for I will stand by what I write."—Mrs. H. STACEY, Collinsville, Illinois.

Another Woman's Similar Experience

"During the Change of Life I was always tired and weak, could hardly do my work and did not care to go anywhere or talk to people. After I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I noticed a change and before I had taken four bottles of it I felt like a new person. I can and always will recommend it in cases like mine."—Mrs. JOS. WANISH, 1119 S. 15th St., Manitowoc, Wisconsin.

Why Three Beauties Are Fighting For A Hindu's Ashes

Sudden Puzzling Quest of the Urn After Three Years During Which,

*It Now Seems, the Dead Oriental's
Strange Influence
Over Romantic Women Still Functioned*

Below—Nahami Krupp, Chicago's "Child Poetess," Said to Have Refused the "Prince" in a Powerful Poem.

"Prince" Sarath Kumar
Ghosh in the Hindu
Costume Which Enhanced His Charm in the Eyes of Many Women.

"WHO will claim this vase?" asked the Man in Black.

"I will!" exclaimed a beautiful showgirl and artists' model.

"No; it belongs to me," asserted a well-known society leader, the wife of a millionaire.

"That's not true; it's mine!" burst from the lips of a distinguished woman physician.

The Man in Black looked puzzled, but probably no more so than you are at this moment. What, you are wondering, was in the vase so eagerly sought by three such varied, yet characteristic, types of modern American femininity—priceless pearls, glittering gold, the fabled secret of eternal youth, or a batch of old love letters?

It was none of these—merely a handful of ashes, the last, poor "earthly remains" of a Hindu mystic and "man of magnetism." Yet this urn, containing the dust of "Prince" Sarath Kumar Ghosh, is being as bitterly fought for by Irene Marcellus, of the Ziegfeld Follies; Mrs. Herman Behr, wife of the wealthy sandpaper manufacturer, and Dr. Nona Gould, noted medical practitioner, as though it held a real prince's ransom.

An undertaker started the whole puzzling, three-cornered dispute. For three years Ghosh's cremated ashes had lain in the "parlors" of the Campbell Company, at 370 Broadway, New York City, and the directors of the concern were tired of having them on their hands. So they had an advertisement inserted in the daily newspapers, stating that they would like to get rid of "Prince" Ghosh's remains and inviting claimants to step forward and make their demands known. They hoped, they said, that some distant relative of Ghosh would see the "ad" and, stirred perhaps by secondarily emotion, remove the urn to a more fitting spot. But they little dreamed that a trio of ladies—and such charming American ones at that—would indulge in well-bred scowls and gestures of indignation over Ghosh's long cold dust.

Men friends, who knew him intimately during his vivid career in this country, however, manifest no surprise at this latest demonstration of interest in Ghosh. Indeed, they "register" astonishment that so more than three women have come forward to contest the possession of his ashes, considering the startling spell which the "Prince," while alive, cast over the imaginations of sub-deb, matron and dowager alike.

Here an interesting point in psychology enters the case, one that is riveting the attention of psychiatrists all over the country. Does the "Prince's" spell, despite his death, still hold, they are asking one another? Has he "come back" after three years, to make his former women friends ashamed of their "neglect?" Do his hypnotic eyes still shine, now reproachfully instead of tenderly, from the Land of Beyond? Or is the quarrel over his mortuary casket motivated merely by the whims of Miss Marcellus, Mrs. Behr and Dr. Gould?

Whatever the answer, there is no denying the fascination which the "Prince" exerted over the feminine heart. And so amazing in its wealth of mysterious and romantic detail was his life in America that he has already become a legend, the despair of would-be "matinee idols" and "irresistible shocks."

Dark-eyed, dark-skinned, imperious in bearing, yet gentle and tender toward all whom he met, he was a strange combination of proudness and humility, even when his lustrous silks and governmental decorations covered a shirt worn paper-thin.

He was well known to denizens of Broadway as "that splendid fellow"—a "wonderful mixer." He was "cultivated" and feted and lionized by society leaders as "the latest thing" in thrills from the Orient. In spiritualistic circles he was rated very highly as one who had "pierced the dark heart of the East and made its secrets his own."

His activities were manifold. He lectured on esoteric subjects, ranging from "Soul Projection" to "The Nearness of Nirvana." He wrote several volumes of prose and verse, remarkable for their velvety style and limpid choice of words, critics said. He found time, too, to shine as a wit, while his charm of personality made him as welcome in the atelier of the artist and in the gilded salon of the grand dame as when his funds sank low—in the humble all-night lunch wagon of the midnight vagabond.

But it was as the romantic embodiment of Hindu wooing that he achieved his chief fame. Shortly after his death, for instance, Chicago papers printed an account of his attentions to Miss Nahami Krupp, famed as a "child poetess," who, it was said, had rejected him after voicing her refusal in a strangely moving poem of renunciation.

It was years before that, however, that he crossed the path of Irene Marcellus, then a girl of fifteen, at a private dancing academy, where he was the guest of honor. He told her, she says, of his ability to communicate with spirits. He confided to her his acquaintance with the Prince of Wales, the declares. And one day, in his studio in Gramercy Park, where he often entertained lavishly, he opened his "treasure chest" and showed Miss Marcellus two rich Indian robes.

"I want you to have these when I pass away," he told her solemnly, she says. "They perfectly match your flawless, flower-like beauty."

"Sarah told me he could pass the gates of death," Miss Marcellus declares, "and

Irene Marcellus,
Ghosh Declared,
Possessed a
"Flawless, Flower-Like Beauty." He Met Her When She Was 15, and He Was Playing Host at Lavish Parties in His Gramercy Park Apartments.

I believe he has 'come back' to make me ashamed of what he thinks is my neglect. But he is wrong. I believed Mrs. Behr had taken care of his remains.

"His eyes—how shall I describe them? They were intense, steady, hypnotic. Weeks before I learned that his remains were not being cared for by a loved one I could feel those eyes looking at me, wistfully, pathetically, unforgettably."

"Once when he came to call on me his mood was desperate. He paced about uneasily; then, turning to me, exclaimed, 'Never forget me, Irene, for I shall never forget you.'"

What sounded like a more pretty vow of fidelity, Miss Marcellus admits, may have had something of a threat in it. Is it any wonder that she wants to care for Ghosh's ashes now? But—

"Never," says Mrs. Behr. "I shall take them to India and scatter them over the Ganges River, just as he wished. And—"

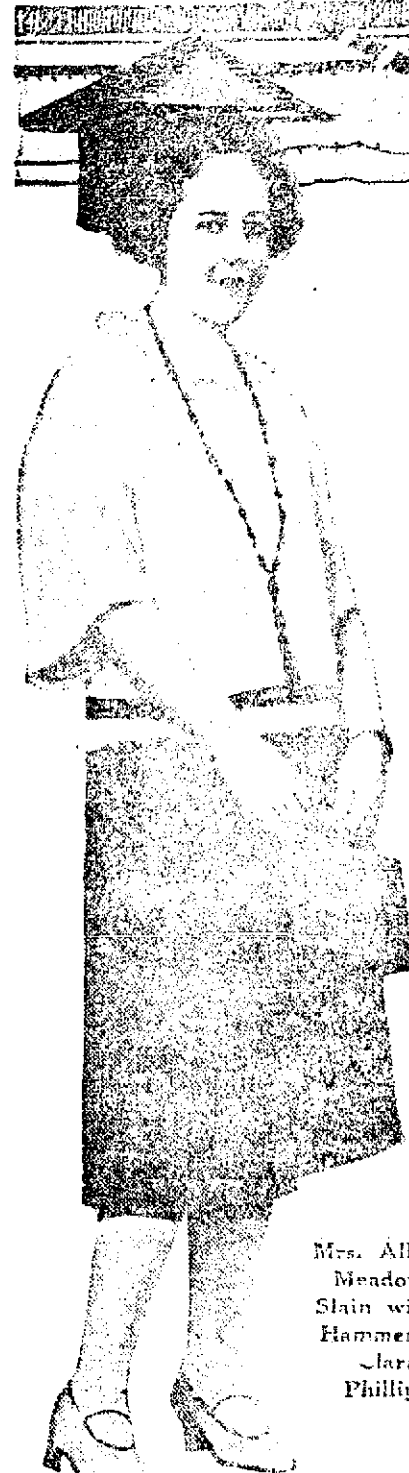

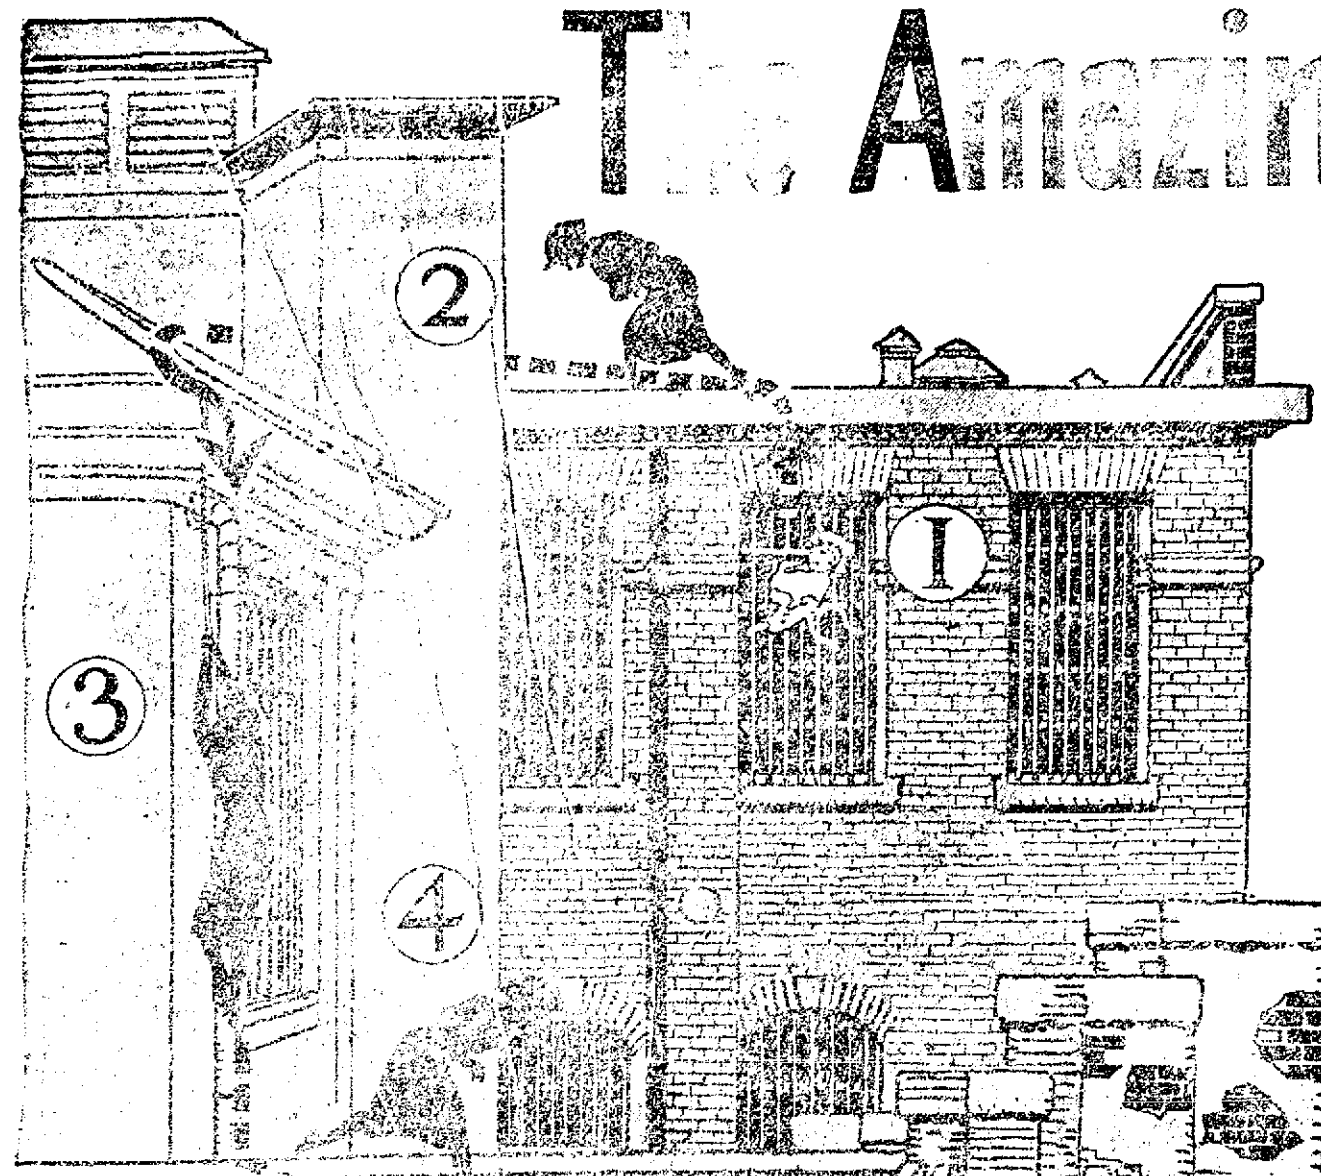

"I was named as executrix of 'Prince' Ghosh's estate," asserts Dr. Gould. And she adds that it is only right and proper that she should administer the "estate," which was declared bankrupt when Ghosh died. Meanwhile if she came to light that Ghosh's will, executed when he was boarding at 47 East Twenty-first street, and never probated, left a third of this same estate to a Miss Annabelle Stretch. Just who Miss Stretch is; where she lives at present; what earthly—or celestial—good the "Prince's" bequest will do her; why he left part of his estate to her, and what she thinks of the extraordinary controversy—these are questions which are still unanswered, but which may eventually be deciding factors in the mysterious muddle.

But the mere mention of Miss Stretch has cast still another shadow-figure on the magic lantern slide of Ghosh's life and death, and people who know him are wondering how many other women may come forward to claim the urn and the ashes—both still held by the Man in Black, whose astonishment and bewilderment grow from day to day.

The Amazing Flight of Clara Phillips

Bars, Walls, Borders, Wildernesses Couldn't Hold This Pretty Western Mountain Murderess with the Daring of a Gorilla and the Charm of a Butterfly

Clara Phillips Attired in the "Bathing Suit" Which Added to Her Reputation as a Beauty, Before the "Hammer Murder."

Mrs. Alberta Meadows, Slain with a Hammer by Clara Phillips.

A PRETTY girl is found guilty of an atrocious murder. She is placed in a cell on the upper tier of a modern, mob-proof jail. Locks, bolts, stone walls, steel bars hem her in. Could she pass them, she would confront a million eyes familiar with her face, a nation plastered with her pictures, all modern machinery to track her down wherever she might hide. If this were fiction, what novelist would dare make her vanish as completely as a pebble flung into a deep valley?

But Life laughs at the tale-spinners. Life took Clara Phillips, convicted hammer murderess, out of the Los Angeles county jail one night, juggled her through the dragnet spread over half a continent, and for months kept her beyond the law's reach in a chase that wound across State and international borders, trailed through the underworlds of many cities, involved smugglers, "slope rings," gangsters and beautiful women, and will not end until the "tiger woman" is finally lodged in San Quentin prison.

Mrs. Phillips was arrested last July 11 at Tucson, Arizona, and charged with the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, who was found, July 12, on lonely Montecito Drive, near Los Angeles, with her head beaten to a jelly.

At the trial, which began October 20 at Los Angeles, Mrs. Peggy Caffee testified she saw Mrs. Phillips kill Mrs. Meadows with a five-cent hammer. She said Mrs. Phillips drove the two of them into the country in an automobile, accused Mrs. Meadows of being too friendly with Phillips, and beat the woman to death.

The jury found Mrs. Phillips guilty and the judge sentenced her to from ten years to life imprisonment.

On the night of December 5, 1922, on the eve of her scheduled transfer to San Quentin, Mrs. Phillips complained of feeling ill and went to bed early in her cell in the Los Angeles county jail. When the matron brought breakfast next morning Mrs. Phillips was gone.

One report had it that the "tiger woman" had escaped disguised as a messenger boy in clothes smuggled to her. But investigation established that three steel bars at the window of the cell, each an inch thick, had been neatly severed. Through this narrow opening Mrs. Phillips must have crawled.

No one but a "human fly" or a woman made desperate by the prospect of a life-time behind bars could have gone on. To reach the ground it was necessary for Mrs. Phillips to climb over a jutting cornice to the roof of the jail, slide down a rope and drainpipe to the roof of an adjoining building, jump four feet across an airshaft to another roof, descend a second rope tied to a vent pipe, and slid down the rope for thirty feet to the top of a ladder leading to the street. Mrs. Phillips did all this, however. Below, in an automobile waiting in a side alley, were her confederates.

Bertillon Finger Prints and Hand Impression of Mrs. Phillips Sent to Honduras to Identify Her with the "Mystery Woman" of That Country.

From the moment the matron discovered the empty cell next morning, all the power of a nationwide police net was bent to catch the fugitive. It was believed she would head for Mexico. Only a few hundred miles away beckoned the Southern California border and Tia Juana, the greatest gambling hell in North America. Further east were El Paso and its neighbor city, Juarez, another mecca for crookdom.

On Tia Juana and Juarez the hunters centered their attention. In one night they raked the underworlds of Tia Juana and Mexcala with a fine-tooth comb. Not a clue to Clara Phillips did they discover. At Juarez no man or woman or vehicle crossed the international bridge unobserved. But not a suspect shed light on the trail of Clara Phillips.

While descriptions of Clara Phillips were being read to patrolmen in New York, Boston, Galveston, Seattle and Key West, a small boy led detectives to a cabin on the outskirts of Beverly Hills, fashionable suburb of Los Angeles. No one was there, but on the floor were remnants of a meal, a tattered dress, a charred note addressed to "Clara."

The baffled investigators were forced to accept the theory that for two weeks, during which they had turned their eyes to remote horizons, Clara Phillips had hidden within fifteen miles of the police station.

That was their first scent on a trail grown cold. The second came from Juarez, where the story was told that Clara Phillips had been seen in a cabaret on the edge of the "white light" district. Her right hand she concealed in the folds of a long, gray cloak. Two men were with her, one of them the "Scurvy Kid," a power in the underworld.

The sheriff of Los Angeles County sent men into Mexico. Clara Phillips, they were told, had fled Juarez. She was in Chihuahua City, further inland. An American had seen her slipping into "La Casa del Flores" (House of Flowers), a notorious underworld haunt. Rumor said she had become a drug addict.

Then, suddenly, Los Angeles newspapers headlined the name of Mrs. Catherine Uribe, former chorus beauty, married to Herbert Uribe, the son of Dr. J. R. Uribe, head of Juarez hospital.

"I know where Clara Phillips is!" announced Mrs. Uribe. "I am holding her as a hostage!"

Herbert Uribe had been arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of automobile stealing.

The Mexican authorities, urged thereto by Mrs. Uribe, did deliver a prisoner to Los Angeles in exchange for Herbert Uribe. But the prisoner was not Clara Phillips. He was "Little Phil" Anquin, wanted for the murder of a sergeant of detectives nearly two years ago.

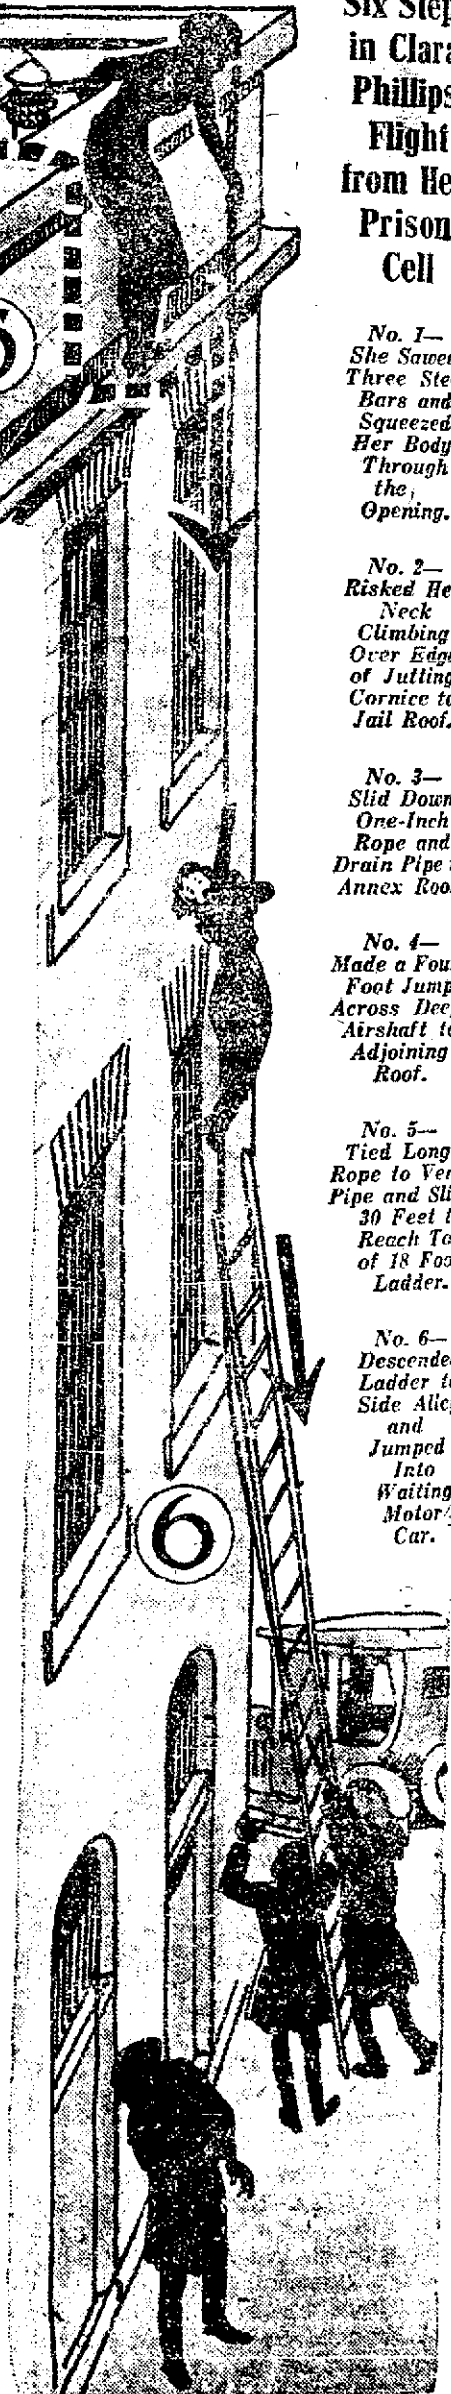

A report gained credence that Mrs. Uribe did have Mrs. Phillips under guard, but that the "hammer murderess," with the help of underworld pals, escaped on the very night she was to have been arrested, making her way south to Mexico City. The discouraged sleuths took up the trail.

While yet they hunted in the haciendas of the Mexican capital, New Orleans declared that Clara Phillips had sailed from that port on January 19 for Vera Cruz. She was traveling with a man whose name was given as Jesse C. Carson. A new theory was given the police to ponder—that Clara Phillips had never been in Mexico, but had gone direct to New Orleans with Carson from Los Angeles.

Mystery was piled on mystery. The woman with Jesse Carson was reported to have reached Central America. She was in Guatemala, then in San Salvador, at last in Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, a republic which has no extradition treaty with the United States.

Had Clara Phillips, defying the detectives of a nation, dodged past them all into that "haven of wanted men," Honduras? Had her long flight put her where the law, hampered by insurmountable barriers of red tape, could not reach her? And were the stories of border "slope rings" of Mexican gangsters, of an ex-chorus beauty standing guard in a lonely hut, merely bluffs to throw the pursuers off the track?

The authorities have sent prints of Clara Phillips' fingertips to Tegucigalpa to be compared with those of the woman in jail there. If she stands on her rights it may be months before she can be extradited—possibly never. And there is always the chance that the Honduras story is but another false clue and the real Clara Phillips still at large—the panning quarry in the most extraordinary flight in American criminal history.

The First Stage of Mistinguett's Ordeal. M. Pierre de Soete, the Belgian Sculptor, Smeared Her with Grease to Prevent the Plaster from Sticking Indefinitely.

MISTINGUETT, musical comedy "queen of caprice," who has been pelted with nicknames, flattering and disdainful, has a new and startling sobriquet—the "Plaster Parisienne."

For years the little dancer with the sad eyes and lithe figure has kept the boulevard humming with gossip about her eccentricities, ranging from weird hats to backstage battles with rivals. Now she's at it again.

Paris thought itself safe from further shocks of the Mistinguett battery of surprises, but Paris guessed wrong. And the electric thrill of her latest "stunt" is still quivering from theatre lobby to cafe terrace, and from the society matrons' drawing rooms to the shop girls' lunch counters.

For Mistinguett hit upon a scheme for personal exploitation utterly without parallel—unique, defying convention, bold, brilliant and—you must admit—"bravely."

She is handing down to posterity the most beautiful feature of her almost flawless self: a plaster cast, "from the life," of those twinkling legs that have captivated thousands of playgoers on two continents.

Was Mistinguett, "merry, mysterious, melancholy Mistinguett," sincere in her avowed wish to preserve for the study of unborn generations those delicately curving limbs? Did she really want artists of the year 2023 to have some token of our day by which to reconstruct a peerless woman of 1923? Did she, gazing into the future's crystal, see her gracious shapeliness enshrined in some museum, pointed out, in true admiration, by young students of art and anatomy, murmured over by elderly scientific professors and ecstatic sculptors?

Or did she merely see in the plaster-casting of her famous legs a superb chance for striking "publicity" which should set the gossiping cackling and the cables throbbing? Paris frankly confesses that it doesn't know and couldn't possibly guess. Paris, as an American art student said, is "simply stumped."

One thing is certain—whatever Mistinguett's motives, she was at least enough interested in the "immortal legs" project to endure intense discomfort, amounting almost to torture, in order to achieve her aim, though the whole affair began more or less as a joke.

It all started in Brussels. Mistinguett was playing at the Alhambra, one of the best-known homes of revue, a temple of frivolity patronized by the smartest "gilded youth" of "Little Paris." Despite the after-the-war poverty of most of its natives, Belgium still finds time—and cash—to pay tribute to visiting stage beauties.

Mistinguett, at least, was a huge success—sold-out houses, waiting lines at the box-office, front rows packed, with bald heads and beardless faces the high notes in the symphony of her praise.

Then one night, as she was twirling and pirouetting and gliding close to the footlights' trough, Belgian admiration for Mistinguett took a sudden, somewhat violently vocal form. A young man in Row A, who had evidently dined without overlooking the wine card, murmured to his companion, whose face also was flushed—perhaps with the love of Art—"Those legs! They are PERFECT! They should never die!"

At least, the speaker thought it was a murmur. But he had spoken during one of those soft-music hushes when the lightest whispers sound like shouts. Mistinguett's ears are delicately attuned. They overheard this frank piece of art criticism. It is not on record that she was annoyed—at least, not much.

In fact, her unknown appraiser's idea took root in her active mind, although she admits that the notion struck her as distinctly funny—at first. She even mentioned the incident to an actress-friend, and the two had several hearty, dressing-room laughs.

Then Fate—or perhaps Fate's first cousin, Coincidence—took a hand in the little drama of "Plaster for Posterity." It was at a semi-fashionable "bohemian" tea—for Mistinguett is "received" by some of Europe's "best people"—that the hostess bore down upon her with a bright-looking young man in tow. Introductions followed.

It appeared that the man was Monsieur Pierre de Soete, a noted sculptor, whose "heads" of famous folk—authors, painters, diplomats and debutantes—had put him in the first rank of his profession, so the critics said.

Like nine-tenths of the civilized world, de Soete was instantly struck with the fascinating possibilities of Mistinguett as a model. He frankly raved over the tragic beauty of her eyes. He talked and talked about the "sad, sweet curve" of her lips. He pronounced her classic Greek profile

"divinely Athenian," and scattered more adjectives over her cheeks than an atomizer had ever scattered perfumes. To short, nothing would content him until his art had caught and crystallized those wonderful features.

Would mademoiselle consent to "sit" for him while he produced a bust worthy to adorn the Paris Salon? Better yet—would she permit a plaster cast to be taken of those flawless lips, cheeks and chin?

At first, Mistinguett demurred with a pout. She was busy at the theatre. It would take a lot of time, yes? She was not a very patient person, alas! People would ridicule her "vanity," no?

But de Soete's persuasive oratory at last got the better of her negatives. She consented to an engagement at his studio. And then—

Happening to drop in at de Soete's atelier a week later, a woman friend of Mistinguett's was astonished by the scene that met her horrified eyes. At first she thought she had made an unpleasant mistake and wandered into the amphitheatre of a hospital instead of into the conventional "picturesque disarray" of a sculptor's workshop.

Stretched rigidly upon a light framework of boards covered with a white cloth, such as surgeons use in operations, lay the motionless, apparently lifeless, form of a woman. She was clad only in a flimsy robe. A bathrobe cap protected her coiffure. Her waist was tightly confined with a stout belt, to which her hands were shackled.

Plaster, thick plaster, covered the face. Bits of plaster clung to the shoulders. And while a moving picture camera snorted and chugged in the background, de Soete bent over the woman's figure, jaws dripping with the liquid, snowy substance. But name of a name! What was he doing now? He was actually coating the lower limbs with the silvery plaster!

Before the visitor had a chance to faint de Soete stopped his work long enough to explain briefly. Mistinguett, he said (for it was she), had come to have her face cast, when she had had another, more brilliant inspiration. But perhaps madame would care to "hear" from Mistinguett's own fingers (she could not speak, of course), just what was happening and why.

Mistinguett's hands were free. Into them the sculptor pressed a pencil and a bit of paper. And the invincible Mistinguett, cruelly cramped, confused and clamped, wrote for madame's inspection: "Que mes jambes ravissantes vivent toujours!" ("That my lovely legs may live forever!")

"There is nothing perfect possible without some pain," was all the further explanation she made when released from her plaster bondage. But she smiled—enigmatically. And now all Paris is wondering what that smile meant—whether the plaster "legs" of Mistinguett will be presented to the Museum of Sciences or hung up in the lobby of the Folies Bergeres.

Fashion Greet the Summer In Organdie and Lawn

THE farmers predict a long hot summer. They can tell from the way the frogs have been croaking, the way the apple blossoms uncurled their petals, from the way the roosters crow in the morning, and the way the cows take to wild garlic, that it is going to be one "huh" dinger of a hot summer!

But what care we? The dress makers, evidently, as well as the farmers, have consulted the oracles. They have been plying busy needles, cutting and snipping and measuring, frilling, ruffling and plating the lightest, flimsiest, airiest, fairest frocks for summer that have been shown since—well, since the days following the French Revolution, when a woman's entire apparel, shoes and all, might not weigh over half a pound.

Lawn and organdie for the slightly bouffant frock, chiffon and lace for the draped or clinging silhouette, volles, ginghams and fine batiste for morning frocks—silk crepes of all sorts and tulle for light as crepes—these are the fabrics out of which the spring frocks are cut.

Valenciennes lace and other sorts of fine narrow lace are used with old-time lavishness on frocks of lawn and batiste. While hand work is desirable on such frocks, bear in mind that there are some exquisite lace-trimmed frocks showing nothing but fine machine work, and, on the other hand, some of the hand-made frocks are to be had at low prices, made from obviously inferior materials. The use of fine narrow lace has come back hand-in-hand with the use of fine tucking.

Slender Slips Under Bouffant Frocks

Add to this that some of these shiny lace and batiste frocks are sometimes posed over colored tulle slips and you have something approaching the old type of lingerie frock that was such a staple in every woman's wardrobe fifteen or sixteen years ago.

These underslips, you must have observed, are cut scant even for the bouffant frocks, for the young woman of 1923, though she may consent to wear a bouffant frock, refuses to be or to look bouffant herself. Therefore, she insists on a narrow slip to show the slender lines that are really hers beneath the outstanding folds of the frock, and this produces an effect of flower-like slenderness that one has to see to appreciate. Under some of the organdie frocks in white or the pastel shades are placed slips of gold or silver cloth and now and then there is a slip of finely plaited colored chiffon that clings to the hips and knees beneath the outstanding lines of the frock.

There are other important differences between the old type of bouffant frock and the new. The skirt usually carries the burden of the elaboration. Bodices are left severely unadorned in many of these lace-trimmed frocks. One charming frock of light blue lawn shows the use of fine tucking and narrow cream lace, but while not a yard is shown on the bodice—save to edge the short puff sleeves and the diminutive collar—the skirt carries a dozen yards or more, producing an effect of bouffancy which is not exactly Second Empire in its reminiscence of the mid-eighteen hundreds.

Taffeta Over Lawn.

It was the old idea to put the lace-trimmed lawn frock over the taffeta slip, now we sometimes see the taffeta placed over the lace and lawn. One frock of white lawn under taffeta is, however, innocent of any signs of lace, but on the contrary is trimmed with clusters of pink beads, while the black satin over frock is banded with pink lawn.

Figured chiffon, usually in simple two-tone design, is too firmly established to be side-tracked by newer, crisper materials. The flowered chiffon is, however, usually worked out in draped styles. Figured organdies are newer and possess more of the crispness so devoutly to be wished in summer. These organdies seem to steer clear of the weird figures that haunt the dreams of present designers. There is usually nothing suggestive of the Congo or Egypt, of Aztec Indians or the south seas, of Indo-China or Bulgaria, for the prevailing design is of the floral sort, printed in soft yet clear colors. One frock of flowered organdie shows the plain full skirt and the close drawn basque bodice with a charming off-the-shoulder lehu. The enormous slit bow is fashioned of bright red ribbon which brings out the deeper shading of the pink, and this produces an effect of flower-like slenderness that one has to Plaited Frocks of Silk.

Wise enough the dressmakers are not plating many of the cotton fabrics. The plaited frock is of silk crepe or chiffon, often of one of the figured chiffons. These plaitings orange almost to a cream, providing somewhere in the range was a yellow matching the daffodil of the frock. Sometimes two or three different ribbons are used in the same chon. One frock of pink and rose chiffon shows a side chon of tulle ribbon, satin ribbon and moire—the satin in the deep rose, loops of the moire in pink and a light rose in tulle.

There is no doubt that the cretonne hat will play an important role in the summer hat box. By way of variety some of these hats show embroidery stitches in gold threads or the use of narrow tinsel ribbon to outline the floral pattern of the chintz.

Hats with rather floppy brims—though often they appear to be more drooping than they really are—are being selected now for summer wear and the milliners who sell expensive hats seem confident that hats of this description, simply trimmed with fruit or flowers, lace drapes or enormous choux of ribbon, will be generally acceptable for out-of-town wear by well-dressed women. But the small poke remains

Pink gingham hat and tie.

SMALL FASHIONS OF BIG IMPORTANCE.

ONE of the ways of giving a one-sided look to the frock is to pose a big ornamental pocket on one side of the skirt.

A striking frock is of navy blue crepe with wool dots embroidered in white over part of its surface. And there is a smart little veil of wide mesh edged with little wool balls.

Gray marabout is used in some of the smartest silk evening wraps for warm weather.

A plaited collar of organdie, drawn in at the front to the square-necked bodice, gives a fluffy, full effect at the back of the neck.

A hand-painted belt of tan leather shows a quite extensive landscape running from one end to the other. It is about two inches wide. The landscape is painted in natural colors, so that red, blue, green, brown and other colors appear.

Big Spanish combs of tortoise shell are worn for evening, and so are huge jet combs.

Flowers of beads are worn as earrings.

Deep cuffs of organdie flare widely at the top and reach to the elbows. They are sometimes edged with lace, sometimes left quite plain.

A gauntlet glove is made with tasseled ends to lacings that are decoratively used to fasten up the gauntlet seams.

Sandals in red, green and blue kid are made with cut-out toes and low heels for sport and morning wear.

A blouse is made with a long turn-back surplice collar of linen, which has one end ending in a pleated sash that hangs down over the skirt.

Puffs of foulard, plaited, are used at the elbows of a serge frock.

A plaited apron overskirt is a feature of a new frock.

are usually of the side or knife variety, though there is a strong tendency now to make use of accordion plating by way of variety, and some of the dressmakers have been using very small box plaits for many weeks.

The placing of the waistline is not so much discussed as it was twelve or six months ago. One takes it as it comes. The chief objective of every woman's efforts seems to be to keep waist and hips and bust so flat and like that it doesn't in the least matter whether the empire circle the waist or a degree of latitude just a few inches above the knees, or possibly somewhat above the so-called normal waistline. This raised waistline appears now and then on a youthful frock for summer—notably one made entirely of yellow lace with ruffles on a scant skirt rather suggestive of 1870 or 1880 and a hem standing away from the shoulders and covering the top of the arms on the otherwise sleeveless bodice.

Whether you are betting on the success of the bustle or the survival of its rival the enormous chon at the hip, you'll have to grant that ribbon will prevail. For the back bustle is almost always made of a bow or loops of very wide ribbon, and of course the side chon is of ribbon, two yards of enormously wide ribbon often being used for this purpose. The side chon may develop into something quite as monstrous as the bustle, and the sight of a left hip is perhaps no more reasonable a place to carry five yards of yard-wide ribbon than the place where 1880 bustles were located.

Much Ribbon Used.

Moire ribbon is usually chosen for the side chon or the bustle and sometimes this ribbon runs from light to dark in the color range in which the frock is cast. For instance a daffodil yellow frock might have a sash shading from deep

Velvet ribbons seem to have taken a sport, rather unexpected, with the approach of summer, and there are frocks showing the enormous hip bow made of wide velvet ribbon. Narrow velvet ribbons are used to outline the juncture of skirt and waist whether that be at the waistline, below it or, as sometimes happens, several inches above. Sometimes the narrow velvet ribbon is tied with long loops and ends in the back, sometimes at the side, and sometimes directly in the front in an absurd little bowknot. This quaint little front bow is especially liked by young girls.

Lightness seems to be as important a consideration for the hat designed for summer days as for frocks. And the brims are growing wider as the warm days draw nearer.

Hats in Matching Sets.

Paris seems to have become obsessed with the idea of buying hat as parts of sets. They are already wearing, at the French resorts, hats of very old or supposedly very old cretonne, with matching skirts or waistcoats cut on severe masculine lines, to be worn with tailored suits and coats. Some times the cretonne hat is accompanied with a little sleeveless cretonne jacket to be worn over a thin summer frock of lawn or organdie. There are hats and scarfs of various sorts, but quite the newest idea seen in this country are the sets of gingham hats with ties to match. The sketch shows a hat of this sort in pink plaid gingham with a tie suitable for a well tailored linen blouse—the two quite appropriate for morning wear on the beach or in the country. One rather dreads the invasion by these cretonne and gingham hats of city streets and devoutly hopes that independent young women won't begin wearing them to their offices, that suburban wives won't don them for their daily round of the markets.

so well liked that it will not pass with the passing of spring and coming of summer. With slightly wider brim it will undoubtedly continue in favor for many months.

Even felt hats will undoubtedly continue in some sort of favor and will add a note of distinction when worn with a frock of sheerest organdie or lawn. But the leather hat must go into retirement, for leather is warm and stuffy at best. However, French dressmakers are making small hats covered with crepe that produces exactly the effect of suede, and these are said to be of feather weight. In black, blue, green and the other shades usual in suede these little crepe hats lend themselves to interesting trimming.

Many Colors Worn.

Almost all and any colors will be in good style for the summer, though you cannot say that the makers and designers of summer frocks have shown impartiality in their color selections. Certainly the ready-made summer frocks show a decided narrowing down in colors—not because there are not always some women who will call for the less usual shades, but because there seems to be economy in the long run. It is only a few of the leading colors are kept in stock.

Usually in the moderate priced shops you will find thin frocks in two or three shades of green—lettuce green and almond green, let us say. There will be frocks of beige, also, and shades of rose, of course—with here and there a yellow and, as the season advances, blues possibly crowding out the greens.

Some interesting combinations have made their appearance. A vivid flame is seen now and then trimming fallow or beige. Coral pink finds ready acceptance when trimmed with turquoise blue, and turquoise blue along with robin's egg blue has recently gained ground rapidly. A soft sky blue is sometimes combined with lavender organdie.

Printed chiffon with plaited skirt, showing white lace petticoat at each side. A plaited cape falls from shoulders in back, and there is a narrow velvet ribbon belt with ends at side.

SHORT SHAVINGS

Charles Cory recalls the experience of an estimable young man who has two peculiarities. He is ticklish, and when nervous would tug at his cuffs.

He went to call upon a young woman whose acquaintance he had just made.

A friend, a natural humorist, told the young woman that he was subject to spells. "You can tell when one is coming on," she was told, "by the way he starts to tug excitedly at his cuffs."

He was perfectly harmless, she was told, but should be seized under the arms from behind, and held fast until the spell passes.

The young man arrived and was introduced to her family. They all sat talking when he became a little embarrassed at something said, and started to tug at his cuffs.

The girl noticed it at once. So did her brother. Following the funny friend's advice he seized the young man from behind, under the arms. The latter, being tickled, burst into hysterical laughter. Then they were sure he had a spell.

The more he struggled the harder they held him, and finally had him on his back on the parlor rug, writhing and yelling as loud as he could.

Just then the funny friend arrived and explained the joke. The young man who tugged at his cuffs didn't think it was much of a joke, reports Cory.

Bob Ewing, Sheriff of Auglaize co., went to a banquet at Wapakoneta.

He feared he would be asked to make a speech, so he arranged to be called away hurriedly at about the time the speech-making was to start. But the banquet began late, and he was called away hungry. Just after the first course had been served.

Hewlett Halliday says he has changed boarding houses. They sure set a fine table where I was boarding," he says. "But the dinner table comedy wasn't up to the standard I'm used to. There was a lady border who asked conundrums. And when nobody would guess the answer there wasn't any way to keep her from telling it herself."

Mrs. Rachel Pfeiffer of Elida, relates that the blackbirds are so thick in that village that when she hangs out the wash she has to be careful not to get a blackbird perched on the wash line. She has to tear strips from a piece of muslin to build a net.

She got around this blackbird attack by the strategy of tying a bunch of rags into strips and throwing them into the yard. They soon disappeared, she says.

LeRoy Brown, 514 W. Spring st., tells about his little cousin Robert, aged two, who while saying his prayers, said, "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep." He hesitated and his mother said, "If I had Aladdin's Lamp for Only a Day," and finished up his prayer by singing the rest of "Carolina in the Morning."

Jose Hagrove tells of a tin roof of a Kansas store that was torn off and rolled into a compact bundle by a cyclone. Having a sense of humor, the owner wrapped a few strands of baling wire around the ruin and shipped it to Henry Ford in due time came a communication saying "It will cost you $48.50 to have your car repaired. For heaven's sake, tell us what hit you!"

Fred Beasley, Bellefontaine, writes that a woman who wanted to order two pounds of coffee at Williams' grocery called the wrong number and her call was answered at the engine house of the Bellefontaine Fire Department.

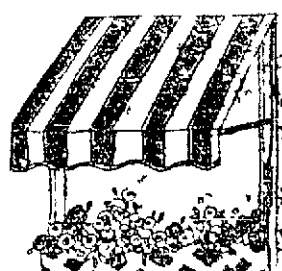

The fireman on the telephone did not wait to hear about the coffee, but thought a fire was being reported, and the department made a quick run to the Williams grocery.

Work We Like
is cleaning the delicate, tall, beautiful things that women like. This kind of work gives a good cleaner a chance to "spread" himself a bit, and show just how good he is.
We suppose this is another reason why most of the women in town call us their cleaners.

Save More Baby Chicks This Year

The very surest way you can save more baby chicks this year is to use the right starting feed. Ordinary grain feeds and home mixed rations kill countless chicks every year. How often you hear the expression "I had bad luck with my chicks. So many of them died." In most cases the trouble is in the starting feed. Make up your mind to save more baby chicks.

Purina Chicken Chowder and Purina Baby Chick Chow fill every requirement of a perfect feed for baby chicks. With Purina Poultry Chows you can give your chicks a double start.

Double development or money back is the guarantee if, when fed as directed, these two Chows do not produce double growth over ordinary grain feeds the first six weeks.

Order these Chows now before your chicks become stunted for lack of proper nourishment.
